THE ## GENUINE REMAINS

IN

V ERSE and PROSE OF

Mr. SAMUEL BUTLER, Author of H U DI BR AS.

Publifhed from the Original Manuscripts, formerly in the Poffeifion of W. Longueville, Eq;
With NOTES

By R. TH Y E R,
Keeper of the Public Library at Manchester.

$$
\begin{aligned}
& \text { IN TWO VOLUMES. } \\
& \text { VOOL.II. } \frac{25282}{23} \cdot 3.31 \end{aligned}
$$

LO ND ON:

Printed for J. and R. Jonson, in the Strand. M DCCLIX.

$$
\begin{aligned} & \text { PR } \\ & 3338 \\
& 1.75 \\ & 1759 \\
& V .2
\end{aligned}
$$

CONTENTS

 OFTHE
SECONDVOLUME.

$\mathcal{T}^{H E}$
Cbaracter of a modern Politician
Page 1 35 52 60 62 65 69
72 77 80 86 90 94 98 The ben-pect Man $\quad 104$
A Small Poet
107
A Pbilofopher 128
A Fantafic 131
A melancholy Man 134
An Haranguer 137
A Popifs Prief
141
A Traveller
A Catbolic
A 2

147
Ibe

C O N T E N TS.
The Cbaracter of a curious Man

$A$ Ranter

A corrupt Fudge
An Amorift
An Aprologer
A Laroyer
An Herald
Page 150
153
155
158 161
164
173
A Latitudinarian
A Mathematician
An Epigrammatift.
A Virtuofo
A Fuytice of Peace
A Fanatic
An Intelligencer.
A Profelite
A Clown
A 2 uibbler
A Wooer
An impudent Man
An Imitator
A Time-Server
A Prater
177 179
183
185
190 194
197 200 203
206 209
212 216
219
An Hermetic Pbilofopher
222
An Alderman
A Difputant
A Sot
An Atbeift
A Juggler
A Sceptic.

CO NTENTS.

The Cbaracter of a Projector.
A Complimenter
A Cburchrwarden
A Romance-writer.
$A$ Cbeat
A Libeller
A tedious Man
A Taylor
A factious Member
A Pretender
A Nervemonger
An Embafador
A Play-writuer
A Mountebank
A modern Critic
A Wittal
A bufy Man
A litigious Man
A Pedant
A Hunter
A Humorif
A Leader of a Faction
A debauched Man
A feditious Man
An affected Man
A Medicine-taker
The rude Man ill $\quad 33^{8}$
A Mijer
A Rabble

Page 268 271
273
275
278
281
284
287
290 293 296 298
301
304
307
310
313
315
318
32 I 324
326 329
33 I
334
336
341 345
The

CHARACTERS.

Vol. II.
B

[ 3 ]

PREFACE.

$T$HE writing of Cbaracters wàs a Kind of Wit much in Fafbion in the Beginning of the laft Century. The two principal Autbors in tbis Way were Sir Thomas Overbury, and Dr. John Earle Tutor to Prince Charles in 1643, and after the Reforation Dean of Weftminfter, and fuccefively Bibhop of Worcefter and Salifbury. How agreeable thefe Sort of Eflays were to the public Tafte may be judged from Sir Thomas's little Book baving fourteen Editions before 1632, and the Bihbop's fix between 1628 and 1633. Whether Butler bas equalled or excelled them, and what Place be is to bold in this Clafs of Writers muft be left to the Decifion of the Public, as the Intereft and Prejudice of a Publiber may render me a fuspected or an incompetent Fudge. The Reader will have an Opportunity of determining for bimSelf, as they bave all attempted to drawe the fame Pictures.

iv P R E F A C.

As in fuch a Variety of Cbaracters there muft be fome drazon from Originals in general the fame, and only differenced by particular Circumfances, the fame Obfervations are fometimes repeated. Whether the Author in this Cafe requires any Apology mujt be left to bis 'judges the Critics; it is enough for me that I can Say I bave done bims Ffufice in priblifling them.

As mot of the ele Cbaracters are dated woben they were compofed, I can inform the curious, that they were cbicfly draion up from 1667 to 1669 , at which time, as bas been before obferved, Butler refided in Wales under the Protection of Lord Carbery.

[ 5 ]

A  MODERN POLITICIAN

MAKES new Difcoveries in Politics, but they are, like thofe that Columbus made of the new World, very rich but barbarous. He endeavours to reftore Mankind to the original Condition, it fell from, by forget_ ing to difcern between Good and Evil; and reduces all Prudence back again to its firft Author the Serpent, that taught Adam Wifdom; for he was really his Tutor, and not Sambofor, as the Rabbins write. He finds the World has been miftaken in all Ages, and that Religion and Morality are but vulgar Errors, that pafs among the Ignorant, and are but mere Words to the Wife. He defpifes all learning as a Pedantic little Thing; and believes Books to be the Bufinefs of Children, and not of Men. He wonders how the Diftinction of Virtue and Vice came into the World's B 3

6 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

Head; and believes them to be more ridiculous than any Foppery of the Schools. He holds it his Duty to betray any Man, that thall take him for fo much a Fool as one fit to be trufted. He ftedfaftly believes, that all Men are born in the State of War, and that the civil Life is but a Ceffation, and no Peace, nor Accommodation : And though all open Acts of Hoftility are forborn by Confent, the Enmity continues, and all Advantages by Treachery or Breach of Faith are very lawful-That there is no Difference between Virtue and Fraud among Friends, as well as Enemies; nor any thing unjuft, that a Man can do without Damage to his own Safety or Intereft-That Oaths are but Springes to catch Woodcocks withal; and bind none but thofe, that are too weak and feeble to break them, when they become ever fo fmall an Impediment to their Advantages - That Confcience is the effect of Ignorance, and the fame with that foolifh Fear, which fome Men apprehend, when they are in the dark and alone-That Honour is but the Word, which a Prince gives a Man to pafs his Guards withal, and fave him from being ftopped by Law and Juftice the Sentinels of Governments, when he has not Wit nor Credit enough to pafs of him-felf-That to fhew Refpect to Worth in any Perfon is to appear a Stranger to it, and not fo familiarly acquainted with it as thofe are, who ufe no Ceremony ; becaufe it is no new Thing to them, as it would appear if they fhould take Notice of it-That the eafieft Way to purchafe a Reputation of Wifdom and Knowledge is to llight and undervalue it ; as the readieft Way to buy cheap is to bring down the Price: for the World will be apt to believe a Man well provided with any neceffary or ufeful Commodity, which he fets a fmall Value upon-Tha to oblige a Friend is but a kind of cafting him in Prifon, after the old Romai Way, or modern Cbinefe, that chains the Keeper and Prifoner together: for he that binds another Man to himfelf, binds himfelf as much to him, and lays a reftraint upon both. For as Men commonly never forgive thofe that forgive them, and always hate thofe that purchafe their Eftates (tho' they pay dear and more than any Man elfe would give) fo they never willin Virgil.

[^0]
A MODERN POLITICIAN. 7

-Dolus, an Virtus, quis in Hofe requirat?

$$
\text { En. L. 2. V. } 390
$$

8 A MODERNPOLITICIAN.

 ingly endure thofe, that have laid any Engagement upon them, or at what rate foever purchafed the leaft Part of their Freedom. - And as Partners for the moft Part cheat or fufpect one another ; fo no Man deals fairly with another, that goes the leaft Share in his Freedom.To propore any Meafure to Wealth or Power is to be ignorant of the Nature of both: for as no Man can ever have too much of cither; fo it is impoffible to determine what is enough; and he, that limits his Defires by propofing to himfelf the Enjoyment of any other Pleafure, but that of gaining more, fhews he has but a dull Inclination, that will not hold out to his Journey's End. And therefore he believes that a Courtier deferves to be beg'd himfelf, that is ever fatisfied with begging : for Fruition without Defire is but a dull Entertainment; and that Pleafure only real and fubftantial, that provokes and improves the Appetite, and increares in the Enjoyment. And all the greateft Mafters in the feveral Arts of othriving concur unanimoufly, that the plain downright Pleafure of Gaining is greater and deferves to be prefered far before all the various

AMODERNPOLITICIAN.

Delights of Spending, which the Curiofity, Wit, or Luxury of Mankind in all Ages could ever find out.

He believes, there is no Way of thriving fo eafy and certain as to grow rich by defrauding the Public: for public Thieveries are more' fafe and lefs profecuted than private, like Robberies committed between Sun and Sun, which the County pays, and no one is greatly concerned in. And as the Monfter of many Heads has lefs Wit in them all than any one reafonable Perfon: fo the Monfter of many Purfes is eafier cheated than any one indifferent crafty Fool. For all the Difficulty lies in being trufted; and when he has obtained that, the Bufinefs does itfelf; and if he fhould happen to be queftioned and called to an Accompt, a Baudy Pardon is as cheap as a Paymafter's Fee, not above fourteen Pence in the Pound.

He thinks, that when a Man comes to Wealth or Preferment, and is to put on a new Perfon, his firft Bufinefs is to put off all his old Friendhips and Acquaintances as Things below him, and no Way confiftent with his prefent Condition; efpecially fuch as may have

io A MODERN POLITICIAN.

Occafion to make ufe of him, or have Reafon to expect any civil Returns from him : for requiting of Obligations received in a Man's Neceflity is the fame Thing with paying of Debts contracted in his Minority, when he was under Age, for which he is not accountable by the Laws of the Land. Thefe he is to forget as faft as he can, and by little Neglects remove them to that Diftance, that they may at length by his Example learn to forget him : for Men, who travel together in Company, when their Occafions lye feveral Ways, ought to take leave and part. It is a hard Matter for a Man that comes to Preferment not to forget himfelf; and therefore he may very well be allowed to take the Freedom to forget others : for Advancement, like the Converfion of a Sinner, gives a Man new Values of Things and Perfons, fo different from thofe he had before, that that, which was wont to be moft dear to him, does commonly after become the moft, difagreeable. And as it is accounted noble to forget and pafs over little Injuries; fo it is to forget little Friendfhips, that are no better than Injuries when they become Difparagements, and can only be importune and troublefome, inftead of being ufeful, as they were before. All Acts of Oblivion have, of late Times, been found to extend, rather to loyal and faithful Services done, than Rebellion and Treafons committed. For Benefits are like Flowers, fweet only and frefh when they are newly gathered, but ftink when they grow ftale and wither ; and he only is ungrateful, who makes returns of Obligations; for he dce; it merely to free himfelf from owing fo much as Thanks. Fair Words are all the Civility and Humanity, that one Man owes to another; for they are obliging enough of themfelves, and need not the Affiftance of Deeds to make them good: for he that does not believe them has already received too much, and he that does, ought to expect no more. And therefore promifes ought to oblige thofe only to whom they are made, not thofe who make them; for he that expects a Man fhould bind himfelf is worfe than a Thief, who does that Service for him, after he has robbed him on the High-way - Promifes are but Words, and Words Air, which no Man can claip a Propriety in, but is equally free to all, and incapable of being confined; and if it were not, yet he who pays Debts, which he can poffibly avoid, does but part with his Money for nothing, and pays more for the mere Reputation of Honefty and Confcience than it is worth.

A MODERN POLITICIAN. II

12 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

He prefers the Way of applying to the Vices and Humours of great Perfons before all other Methods of getting into Favour: for he that can be admitted into thefe Offices of Privacy and Truft feldom fails to arrive at greater ; and with greater Eafe and Certainty than thofe, who take the dull Way of plain Fidelity and Merit. For Vices, like Beafts, are fond of none but thofe that feed them; and where they once prevail, all other Confiderations go for nothing. They are his own Flefh and Blood, born and bred out of him; and he has a ftronger natural Affection for them than all other Relations whatfoever-And he, that has an Intereft in thefe, has a greater Power over him than all other Obligations in the World. For though they are but his Imperfections and Infirmities, he is the more tender of them; as a lame Member, or difeafed Limb is more carefully cherifhed than all the reft, that are found and in perfect Vigour. All Offices of this kind are the greateft Endearments, being real Flatteries enf̣orced by Deeds and Actions, and therefore far more prevalent than thofe, that are performed but by Words and Fawning; though very great Advantages are daily obtained that Way-And therefore he efteems Flattery as the next moft fure and fucceffful Way of improving his Interefts. For Flattery is but a kind of civil Idolatry, that makes Images it felf of Virtue, Worth, and Honour in fome Perfon, that is utterly void of all, and then falls down, and worfhips them. And the more dull and abfurd thefe Applications are, the better they are always received: for Men delight more to be prefented with thofe Things they want, than fuch as they have no need nor ufe of. And though they condemn the Realities of thofe Honours and Renowns, that are falfely imputed to them, they are wonderfully affected with their falfe. Pretences. For Dreams work more upon Men's Paffions, than any waking Thoughts of the fame Kind; and many, out of an ignorant Superftition, give more Credit to them, than the moft rational of all their vigilant Conjectures, how falle foever they prove in the Event-No wonder then if thofe, who apply to Men's Fancies and Humours, have a ftronger Influence upon them than thofe, that feek to prevail upon their Reafon and Underftandings, efpecially in things fo delightful to them as their own Praifes, no Matter how falfe and apparently incredible: for great Perfons may wear counterfeit Jewels of any Caract, with more Confidence and Security from being difcovered, than thofe of meaner Quality ; in whofe Hands the Greatnefs of their Value (if they were true) is more apt to render them fufpected. A Flatterer is like Mabomet's Pigeon, that picks his Food out of his Mafter's Ear, who is willing to have it believed, that he whifpers Oracles into it ; and according!y fets a high Efteem upon the Service he does him, though the Impoftor only defigns his cown Utilities-For Men are for the mon Part better pleafed with other Men's Opinions, though falfe, of their Happinefs, than their own Experiences; and find more Pleafure in the dulleft Flattery of others than all the vaft Imaginations they can have of themfelves, as no Man is apt to be tickled with his own fingers ; becaufe the Applaufes of others are more agreeable to thofe high Conceits, they have of themfelves, which they are glad to find confirmed, and are the only Mufic, that fets them a dancing, like thofe that are bitten with a Tarantula.

15 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

He accounts it an Argument of great Difr cretion, and as great Temper, to take no Notice of Affronts and Indignities put upon him by great Perfons. For he that is infenfible of Injuries of this Nature can receive none; and if he lofe no Confidence by them, can lofe nothing elfe; for it is greater to be above Injuries, than either to do, or revenge them; and he, that will be deterred by thofe Difcouragements from profecuting his Defigns, will never obtain what he propofes to himfelf. When a Man is once known to be able to endure Infolencies eafier than others can impofe them, they will raife the Siege, and leave him as impregnable; and therefore he refolves never to omit the leaft Opportunity of preffing his Affairs, for Fear of being baffled and affronted; for if he can at any Rate render himfelf Mafter of his Purpofes, he would not wifh an eafier, nor a cheaper Way, as he knows how to repay himfelf, and make others receive thofe Infolencies of him for good and current Payment, which he was glad to take before-And he eiteems it no mean Glory to fhew his Temper of fuch a Compafs, as is able to reach from the highert Arrogance to the meaneft, and moft dejected Submiffions. A Man, that has endured all Sorts of Affronts, may be allowed, like an Apprentice that has ferved out his Time, to fet up for himfelf, and put them off upon others; and if the moft common and approved Way of growing rich is to gain by the Ruin and lofs of thofe, who are in neceffity, why fhould not a Man be allowed as well to make himfelf appear great by debafing thofe, that are below him? For Infolence is no inconfiderable Way of improving Greatnefs and Authority in the Opinion of the World. If all Men are born equally fit to govern, as fome late Philofophers affirm, he only has the Advantage of all others, who has the beft Opinion of his own Abilities, how mean foever they really are; and, therefore, he ftedfaftly believes, that Pride is the only great, wife, and happy Virtue that a Man is capable of, and the moft compendious and eafy Way to Felicity-For he, that is able to perfuade himfelf impregnably, that he is fome great and excellent Perfon, how far fhort foever he fall's of it, finds more Delight in that Dream than if he were really fo ; and the lefs he is of what he fancies himfelf to be, the better he is pleafed, as Men covet thofe things, that are forbidden and denied them, more greedily than thofe, that are in their Power to obtain; and he, that can enjoy all the beft Rewards of Worth and Merit without the Pains and Trouble that attend it, has a better Bargain than he, who pays as much for it as it is worth. This he performs by an obftinate implicit believing as well as he can of himfelf, and as meanly of all other Men; for he holds it a kind of Self-Prefervation to maintain a good Eftimation of himfelf : And as no Man is bound to love his Neighbour better than himfelf; fo he ought not to think better of him than he does of himfelf; and he, that will not afford himfelf a very high Efteem, will never fpare another Man any at all. He who has made fo abfolute a Conqueft over himfelf (which Philofophers fay is the greateft of all Victories) as to be received for a Prince within himfelf, is greater and more arbitrary within his own Dominions, than he that depends upon the uncertain Loves or Fears of other Men without him.-And fince the Opinion of the World is vain, and for the moft

[^1]
A MODERN POLITICIAN.

Vol. II.

C

18 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

Part falfe, he believes it is not to be attempted but by Ways as falfe and vain as it felf; and therefore to appear and feem is much better and wifer, than really to be, whatfoever is well efteemed in the general Value of the World.

Next Pride he believes Ambition to be the only generous and heroical Virtue in the World, that Mankind is capable of. For as Nature gave Man an erect Figure, to raife him above the groveling Condition of his fellow Creatures the Beafts: fo he, that endeavours to improve that, and raife himfelf higher, feems beft to comply with the Defign and Intention of Nature. Though the Stature of Man is confined to a certain Height, yet his Mind is unlimited, and capable of growing up to Heaven : And as thofe, who endeavour to arrive at that Perfection, are adored and reverenced by all; fo he, that endeavours to advance himfelf as high as poffibly he can in this World, comes neareft to the Condition of thofe holy and divine Afpirers. All the pureft Parts of Nature always tend upwards, and the more dull and heavy downwards: fo in the little World the nobleft Faculties of Man, his Reafon and Underftanding, that give him a Prerogative above all other earthly Creatures, mount upwards-And therefore he, who takes that Courfe and ftill afpires in all his Undertakings and Defigns, does but conform to that which Nature dictates - Are not the Reafon and the Will, the two commanding Faculties of the Soul, ftill ftriving which fhall be uppermoft? Men honour none but thofe that are above them, conteft with Equals, and difdain Inferiors. The firft Thing that God gave Man, was Dominion over the reft of his inferior Creatures ; but he, that can extend that over Man, improves his Talent to the beft Advantage. How are Angels diftinguifhed but by Dominions, Powers, Tbrones, and Principalities? Then he, who ftill afpires to purchafe thofe, comes neareft to the Nature of thofe heavenly Minifters, and in all Probability is moft like to go to Heaven-No Matter what Deftruction he makes in his Way, if he does but attain his End: for nothing is a Crime, that is too great to be punifhed; and when it is once arrived at that Perfection, the moft horrid Actions in the World become the moft admired and renowned. Birds, that build higheft are moft fafe; and he, that can advance himfelf above the Envy or Reach of his

A MODERN POLITICIAN.

$$
\mathrm{C}_{2}
$$

Inferiors, is fecure againft the Malice and Affaults of Fortune. All Religions have ever been perfecuted in their primitive Ages, when they were weak and impotent; but, when they propagated and grew great, have been received with Reverence and Adoration by thofe, who otherwife had proved their cruelleft Enemies; and thofe, that afterwards oppofed them, have fuffered as feverely as thofe, that firft profeft them. So Thieves, that rob in fmall Parties, and break Houfes, when they are taken are hanged: but, when they multiply and grow up into Armies, and are able to take Towns, the fame things are called heroic Actions, and acknowledged for fuch by all the World. Courts of Fufice, for the moft Part, commit greater Crimes than they punifh, and do thofe that fue in them more Injuries than they can poffibly receive from one another ; and yet they are venerable, and muft not be told fo, becaufe they have Authority and Power to juftify what they do, and the Law (that is, whatfoever they pleafe to call fo) ready to give Judgment for them. Who knows, when a Pbyician cures or kills? and yet he is equally rewarded for both, and the Profeffion efteemed never the lefs wormipful-And therefore he accounts it a ridiculous Vanity in any Man to confider, whether he does right or wrong in any Thing he attempts; fince the Succefs is only able to determine, and fatisfy the Opinion of the World, which is the one, and which the other. As for thofe Characters and Marks of Diftinction, which Religion, Law, and Morality fix upon both, they are only fignificant and valid, when their Authority is able to command Obedience and Submiffion; but when the greatnefs, Numbers, or Intereft of thofe, who are concerned, out-grows that, they change their Natures; and that, which was Injury before, becomes Juftice, and Juftice Injury. It is with Crimes, as with Inventions in the Mechanics, that will frequently hold true to all Purpofes of the Defign, while they are tried in little; but, when the Experiment is made in great, prove falfe in all Particulars, to what is promifed in the Model : So Iniquities and Vices may be punifhed and corrected, like Children while they are little and impotent; but when they are great and fturdy, they become incorrigible, and Proof againft all the Power of Juftice and Authority.

$$
\mathrm{C}_{3}
$$

22 A MODERNPOLITICIAN.

Among all his Virtues there is none, which he fets fo high an Efteem upon as Impudence, which he finds more ufeful and neceffary than a Vizard is to a Highwayman. For he, that has but a competent Stock of this natural Endowment, has an Intereft in any Man he pleafes, and is able to manage it with greater Advantages than thofe, who have all the real Pretences imaginable, but want that dextrous Way of folliciting, by which, if the worft fall out, he is fure to lofe Nothing, if he does not win. He that is impudent is fhot-free, and if he be ever fo much overpowered can receive no hurt; for his Forehead is impenetrable and of fo excellent a Temper, that nothing is able to touch it, but turns Edge and is blunted. His Face holds no Correfpondence with his Mind, and therefore whatfoever inward Senfe or Conviction he feels, there is no outward Appearance of it in his Looks, to give Evidence againft him ; and in any Difficulty, that can befal him, Impudence is the moft infallible Expedient to fetch him off, that is always ready, like his Angel Guardian, to relieve and refcue him in his greateft Extremities; and no outward Impreffion, nor inward neither (though his own Confcience take Part againft him) is able to beat him from his Guards. Though Innocence and a good Confcience be faid to be a brazen Wall, a brazen Confidence is more impregnable, and longer able to hold out; for it is a greater Affliction to an innocent Man to be fufpected, than it is to one, that is guilty and impudent, to be openly convicted of an apparent Crime. And in all the Affairs of Mankind, a brifk Confidence, though utterly void of Senfe, is able to go through Matters of Difficulty with greater Eafe, than all the Strength of Reafon lefs boldly inforced; as the Turks are faid by a fmall llight handling of their Bows, to make an Arrow without a Head pierce deeper into hard Bodies, than Guns of greater Force are able to do a Bullet of Steel. And though it be but a Cheat and Impofture, that has neither Truth nor Reafon to fupport it, yet it thrives better in the World than Things of greater Solidity; as Thorns and Thiftles flourifh on barren Grounds, where nobler Plants would ftarve: And he, that can improve his barren Parts by this excellent and moft compendious Method, deferves much better, in his Judgment, than thofe, who endeavour to do the fame thing by the more ftudious and difficult Way of downright Induftry and Drudging. For Impudence does not only fupply all Defects, but gives them a greater Grace than if they had needed no Art ; as all other Ornaments are commonly nothing elfe, but the Remedies, or Difguifes of Imper-fections-And therefore he thinks him very weak, that is unprovided of this excellent and moft ufeful Quality, without which the beft natural or acquired Parts are of no more ufe, than the Guanches Darts, which, the Virtuofos fay, are headed with Butter hardned in the Sun. It ferves him to innumerable Purpofes, to prefs on and underftand no Repulfe, how fmart or harfh foever; for he, that can fail neareft the Wind, has much the Advantage of all others; and fuch is the Weaknefs or Vanity of fome Men, that they will grant that to obftinate Importunity, which they would never have done upon all the moft juft Reafons and Confiderations imaginable; as thofe, that watch Witches, will make them confefs that, which they would never have done upon any other Account.

Though Innocence.] A joking Allufion to Horace Ail confcire fobi, nulla palleficere Culpa. Ep. L, 1. Ep. 1. V. 60.
C 4

24 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

[^2]
A MODERN POLITICIAN. 25

He believes a Man's Words and his Meaning fhould never agree together: For he, that fays what he think's, lays himfelf open to be expounded by the moft ignorant; and he, who does not make his Words rather ferve to conceal, than difcover the Senfe of his Heart, deferves to have it pulled out, like a Traytor's, and fhewn publicly to the Rabble. For as a King, they fay, cannot reign without diffembling; fo private Men, without that, cannot govern themfelves with any Prudence or Difcretion imaginable-This is the only politic Magic, that has Power to make a Man walk invifible, give him accefs into all Men's Privacies, and keep all others out of his; which is as great an Odds, as it is to difcover, what Cards thofe he plays with have in their Hands, and permit them to know nothing of his. And therefore he never fpeaks his own Senfe, but that which he finds comes neareft to the Meaning of thofe he converfes with; as Birds are drawn into Nets by Pipes that counterfeit their own Voices. By this means he poffeffes Men, like the Dcvil, by getting within them before they are aware, turns them out of themfelves, and either betrays, or renders them ridiculous, as he finds it moft agrecable either to his Hu mour, or his Occafions.

26 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

As for Religion, he believes a wife Man ought to poffefs it, only that he may not be obferved to have freed himfelf from the $\mathrm{Ob}-$ ligations of it, and fo teach others by his Example to take the fame Freedom: For he, who is at Liberty, has a great Advantage over all thofe, whom he has to deal with, as all Hypocrites find by perpetual Experience-That one of the beft Ufes, that can be made of it, is to take Meafure of Men's Underftandings and Abilities by it, according as they are more or lefs ferious in it ; for he thinks, that no Man ought to be much concerned in it but Hypocrites, and fuch as make it their Calling and Profeffion; who, though they do not live by tbeir Faitb, like the Righteous, do that which is nearef to it, get their living by it ; and that thofe only take the fureft Courfe, who make their beft Advantages of it in this World, and truft to Providence for the next, to which purpofe he believes it is moft properly to be relied upon by all Men.

A MODERN POLITICIAN. 27

He admires good Nature as only good to thofe who have it not, and laughs at Friendfhip as a ridiculous Foppery, which all wife Men eafily outgrow; for the more a Man loves another, the lefs he loves himfelf. All Regards and civil Applications fhould, like true Devotion, look upwards, and addrefs to thofe that are above us, and from whom we may in Probability expect either Good or Evil; but to apply to thofe, that are our Equals, or fuch as cannot benefit or hurt us, is a far more irrational Idolatry than worfhipping of Images or Beafts. All the Good, that can proceed from Friendfhip, is but this, that it puts Men in a Way to betray one another. The beft Parents, who are commonly the worft Men, have naturally a tender Kindnefs for their Children, only becaufe they believe they are a Part of themfelves, which fhews, that Self-love is the Original of all others, and the Foundation of that great Law of Nature, Self-Prefervation ; for no Man ever deftroyed himfelf wilfully, that had not firft left off to love himfelf-Therefore a Man's. Self is the proper Object of his Love, which is never fo well employed, as when it is kept within its own Confines, and not fuffered to ftraggle. Every Man is juft fo much a Slave as he is concerned in the Will, Inclinations, or Fortunes of another, or has any thing of himfelf out of his own Power to difpofe of; and therefore he is refolved never to truft any Man with that Kindnefs, which he takes up of himfelf, unlefs he has fuch Security as is moft certain to yield him double Intereft: For he that does otherwife, is but a $\mathfrak{F e r v}$ and a $\mathcal{T u r k}$ to himfelf, which is much worfe than to be fo to all the World befide. Friends are only Friends to thofe who have no need of them, and when they have, become no longer Friends; like the Leaves of Trees, that clothe the Woods in the Heat of Summer, when they have no need of Warmth, but leave them naked when cold Weather comes; and fince there are fo few that prove otherwife, it is not Wifdom to rely on any.

28 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

He is of Opinion, that no Men are fo fit to be employed and trufted as Fools, or Knaves; for the firft underftand no Right, the others regard none ; and whenfoever there falls out an Occafion, that may prove of great Importance,

A MODERN POLITICIAN.

if the Infamy and Danger of the Difhonefty be not too apparent, they are the only Perfons, that are fit for the Undertaking. They are both equally greedy of Employment, the one out of an Itch to be thought able, and the other honeft enough to be trufted, as by Ufe and Practice they fometimes prove: For the general Bufinefs of the World lies, for the moft Part, in Rotines and Forms, of which there are none fo exact Obfervers, as thofe, who underftand nothing elfe to divert them; as Carters ufe to blind their Fore-horfes on both Sides, that they may fee only forward, and fo keep the Road the better; and Men, that aim at a Mark, ufe to fhut one Eye, that they may fee the furer with the other. If Fools are not notorious, they have far more Perfons to deal with of their own Elevation (who underfand one another better) than they have of thofe, that are above them, which renders them fitter for many Bufineffes than wifer Men, and they believe themfelves to be fo for all : For no Man ever thought himfelf a Fool, that was one, fo confident does their Ignorance naturally render them ; and Confidence is no contemptible Qualification in the Management of human Affairs-And as blind Men have fecret Artifices their Ways, which thofe, who have their Eyes and are but hoodwinked, are utterly unable to do: fo Fools have always little Crafts and Frauds in all their Tranfactions, which wifer Men would never have thought upon; and by thofe they frequently arrive at very great Wealth, and as great Succefs, in all their Un-dertakings-For all Fools are but feeble and impotent Knaves, that have as ftrong and vehement Inclinations to all Sorts of Difhonefty as the moft notorious of thofe Engineers, but want Abilities to put them in Practice; and as they are always found to be the moft obftinate and intractable People to be prevailed upon by Reafon or Confcience; fo they are as eafy to fubmit to their Superiors, that is Knaves, by whom they are always obferved to be governed, as all Corporations are wont to choofe their Magiftrates out of their own Members. As for Knaves, they are commonly true enough to their own Interefts; and while they gain by their Employments, will be careful not to differve thofe, who can turn them out when they pleafe, what Tricks foever they put upon others; and therefore fuch Men prove more ufeful to them; in their Defigns of Gain and

A MODERN POLITICIAN. $3 t$

Profit, than thofe, whofe Confciences and Reafon will not permit them to take that Latitude.

And fince Buffoonery is, and has always been fo delightful to great Perfons, he holds him very improvident, that is to feek in a Quality fo inducing, that he cannot at leaft ferve for want of a better ; efpecially fince it is fo eafy, that the greateft Part of the Difficulty lyes in Confidence, and he, that can but ftand fair, and give Aim to thofe that are Gamefters, does not alway lofe his Labour, but many times becomes well efteemed for his generous and bold Demeanor; and a lucky Repartee hit upon by Chance may be the making of a Man. This is the only modern Way of running at Tilt, with which great Perfons are fo delighted to fee Men encounter one another, and break Jefts, as they did Lances heretofore; and he that has the beft Beaver to his Helmet, has the greateft Advantage; and as the former paft upon the Account of Valour, fo does the latter on the Score of Wit, though neither, perhaps, have any great Reafon for their Pretences, efpecially the latter, that depends much upon Confidence, which is commonly a great Support to Wit,

32 A MODERN POLITICIAN.

and therefore believed to be its betters, that ought to take place of it, as all Men are greater than their Dependents-So pleafant it is to fee Men leffen one another, and ftrive who fhall fhew himfelf the moft ill-natured and ill-mannered. As in Cuffing all Blows are aimed at the Face ; fo it fares in thefe Rencounters, where he, that wears the tougheft Leather on his Vifage, comes off with Victory, though he has ever fo much the Difadvantage upon all other Accounts-For a Buffoon is like a MadDog, that has a Worm in his Tongue, which makes him bite at all that light in his Way ; and as he can do nothing alone, but muft have fomebody to fet him that he may throw at, he that performs that Office with the greateft Freedom, and is contented to be laughed at, to give his Patron Pleafure, cannot but be underfood to have done very good Service, and confequently deferves to be well rewarded; as a Mountebank's Pudding, that is content to be cut, and flafhed, and burnt, and poifoned, without which his Mafter can fhew no Tricks, deferves to have a confiderable Share in his Gains.

As for the Meannefs of thefe Ways, which fome may think too bafe to be employed to fo excellent an End, that imports nothing : for what Diflike foever the World conceives againft any Man's Undertakings, if they do but fucceed and profper, it will eafily recant its Error, and applaud what it condemned before; and therefore all wife Men have ever juftly efteemed it a great Virtue to difdain the falfe Values, it commonly fets upon all Things, and which it felf is fo apt to retract - For as thofe, who go up Hill, ufe to ftoop and bow their Bodies forward, and fometimes creep upon their Hands; and thofe, that defcend, to go upright : fo the lower a Man ftoops and fubmits in thefe endearing Offices, the more fure and certain he is to rife; and the more upright he carries himfelf in other Matters, the more like in probability to be ruined-And this he believes to be a wifer courfe for any Man to take than to trouble himfelf with the Knowledge of Arts or Arms: For the one does but bring a Man an unneceffary Trouble, and the other as unneceffary Danger; and the horteft and more eafy Way to attain to both, is to defpife all other Men, and believe as ftedfaftly in Himfelf as he can, a better and more certaint Courfé than that of Merit.

A MODERN POLITICIAN. 33

Vol. II.

D

What he gains wickedly he fpends as vainly; for he holds it the greateft Happinefs, that a Man is capable of, to deny himfelf nothing, that his Defires can propofe to him, but rather to improve his Enjoyments by glorying in his Vices: for Glory being one End of almoft all the Bufinefs of this World, he who omits that in the Enjoyment of himfelf and his Pleafures, lofes the greateft Part of his Delight. And therefore the Felicity, which he fuppofes other Men apprehend that he receives in the Relifh of his Luxuries, is more delightful to him than the Fruition itfelf.

A N

Hypocritical Nonconformift

IS an Embaffador Extraordinary of his own making, not only from God Almighty to his Cburch, but from his Church to him; and pretending to a plenipotentiary Power from both, treats with himfelf, and makes what Agreement he pleafes; and gives himfelf fuch Conditions as are conducible to the Advantage of his own Affairs. The whole Defign of his

This Character, though fairly tranfcribed by our Author, by lying in too damp a Place has received fome little Damage, which will account for feveral Hiatus's, which appear in it. They might, with no great Difficulty, have been filled up; but as the Reader may eafily do it himfelf, and has a much better Right to it than the Publifher, I rather chofe to leave them as I found them, than hazard the Imputation of Impertinence or Interpolation.

It cannot efcape the Obfervation of thofe, who are acquainted with Butler's Writings, that many Paffages both in this and other Characters are fimilar to and explanatory of others in his Hudibras; and it may, perhaps, be thought that References with fhort Annotations might not have been improper: But as thefe, with many others of the like Sort which I meet with in his imperfect Pieces and loofe Papers, may very probably furnifh Matter for a new Edition of that Poem, I think it is doing more Juftice fo the Reader to omit them.

$3^{6}$ AN HYPOCRITICAL

Tranfaction and Employment is really nothing elfe, but to procure frefh fupplies for the good old Caufe and Covenant, while they are under Perfecution; to raife Recruits of new Profelites, and deal with all thofe, who are, or once were, good Friends to both ; to unite and maintain a more clofe and ftrict Intelligence among themfelves againft the common Enemy, and preferve their general Intereft alive, until they fhall be in a Condition to declare more openly for it ; and not out of Weaknefs to fubmit perfidioufly to the Laws of the Land, and rebellioufly endure to live in Peace and Quietnefs under the prefent Government: In which, though they are admitted to a greater Share of rich and profitable Employments than others, yet they will never be able to recover all their Rights which they once enjoyed, and are now unjuftly deprived of, but by the very fame Expedients and Courfes, which they then took.

The Wealth of his Party, of which he vapours fo much to ftartle his Governors, is no mean Motive to enflame his Zeal, and encourage him to ufe the Means, and provoke all Dangers, where fuch large Returns may infallibly be expected. And that's the Reafon why he is fo ready and forward to encounter all appearing Terrors, that may acquire the Reputation of Zeal and Confcience; to defpife the Penalties of the Laws, and commit himfelf voluntarily to Prifon, to draw the Members of his Church into a more fenfible fellow-feeling of his Sufferings, and a freer Miniftration. For fo many and great have been the Advantages of this thriving Perfecution, that the Conftancy and Blood of the primitive Martyrs did not propagate the Church more, than the Money and good Creatures earned by thefe profitable Sufferings have done the Difcipline of the modern Brethren.

He preaches the Gofpel in defpite of it felf; for though there can be no Character fo true and plain of him, as that which is there copied from the Scribes and Pbarijees, yet he is not fo weak a Brother to apply any Thing to himfelf, that is not perfectly agreeable to his own Purpofes; nor fo mean an Interpreter of Scripture, that he cannot relieve himfelf, when he is preft Home with a Text, efpecially where his own Confcience is Judge: For what Privilege have the Saints more than the Wicked, if D 3

$3^{8}$ AN HYPOCRITICAL

they - cannot difpenfe with themfelves in fuch Cafes? This Confcience of his, (like the Righteoufnefs of the Scribes and Pbarijees, from whom it is defcended) is wholly taken up with fuch flight and little Matters, that it is impoffible, it fhould ever be at Leifure to confider Things of greater Weight and Importance. For it is the Nature of all thofe, that ufe to make great Matters of Trifles, to make as little of Things of great Concernment-And therefore he der lights more to differ in Things indifferent; no Matter how flight and impertinent, they are weighty enough, in Proportion to his Judg, ment, to prevail with him before the Peace and Safety of a Nation. But he has a further Artifice in it; for little petulant Differences are more apt and proper to produce and continue Animofities among the Rabble of Parties, than Things of weightier Confideration, of which they are utterly uncapable, as Flies and Gnats are more vexatious in hot Climates, than Creatures that are able to do greater Mifchiefs. And they, that are taught to diflike the indifferent Actions of others muft of Neceflity abominate the greater. And as Zeal is utterly loft, and has no Way to fhew it felf but in Oppofition ; nor Confcience to difcover its Tendernefs but in feeking Occafions to take Offence perpetually at fomething, and the flighter and more trivial the better; fo that Confcience, that appears ftrict and fcrupulous in fmall Matters, will be eafily fuppofed by the erronecus Vulgar to be more careful and fevere in Things of Weight, though nothing has been more falfe upon all Experience.

for violating the Laws of God, as the Laws of the Land, and takes more care upon his Confcience, than to give it any juft Satisfaction; for as it is apt to quarrel upon fmall and trivial Occafions, fo it is as eafily appeafed with flight and trivial Pretences, and in great Matters with none at all; but rather, like the Devil, tempts him to commit all Manner of Wickednefs: for we do not find, that any Poffeffions of the Devil ever produced fuch horrid Actions, as fome Men have been guilty of by being only poffeft with their own Confciences. - And therefore, ever fince the Act of Oblivion reprieved him from the Gallows, he endeavours to fupplant all Law and Government for being partial to him in his own Cafe; as bad Men never ufe to forgive thofe, whom

$$
\text { D } 4
$$

40 AN HYPOCRITICAL

they have injured, or received any extraordinary Obligation from : For he cannot endure to think upon Repentance, as too great a Difparagement for a Saint to fubmit to, that would keep up the Reputation of Godlinefs. And becaufe the Scripture fays, Obedience is better than Sacrifice, he believes the lefs of it will ferve: For he is fo far from being fenfible of God's Mercy and the King's, for his Pardon and Reftoration to a better Condition than he was in before he rebelled, that his Actions make it plainly appear that he accounts it no better than an Apoftacy and Back/liding; and he expects a Revolution of Rebellion as obfinately, as the Turk does Mabomet's Coming, For it is juft with him as with other impenitent Malefactors, whom a Pardon or unexpected Deliverance from fuffering for the firft Crime does but render more eager to commit the fame over again: For like a loofing Gamefter he cannot endure to think of giving over, as long as he can by any Means get Money or Credit to venture again, And as the moft defperate of thofe People, after they have loft all, ufe to play away their Cloaths, he offers to ftake down his very Skin; and not only (as fome barbarous People ufe) fet his Wife and

NONCONFORMIST. $\quad 4 i$

Children, but his Head and four Quarters to the Hangman, if he chance once more to throw out. And yet, as ftubborn and obftinate as he is to obey his lawful Sovereign, of whofe Grace and Mercy he holds his Life, he has always appeared true and faithful to all tyrannical Ufurpations, without the leaft Reluctancy of Confcience: for though he was fool'd and cheated by them, yet they were more agreeable to his own Inclination, that does not care to have any thing founded in Right, but left at large to Difpenfations and Out-goings of Providence, as he fhall find Occafion to expound them to the beft Advantage of his own Will and Intereft.

He crys down the Common-Prayer, becaufe there is no Oftentation of Gifts to be ufed in the reading of it, without which he efteems it no better than mere lofs of Time, and Labour in Vain, that brings him in no Return of Intereft and Vain-Glory from the Rabble; who have always been obferved to be fatisfied with nothing but what they do not underftand; and therefore the Church of Rome was fain (to comply with their natural Inclinations) to enjoin them to ferve God in a Language of which they underftand not one Word; and though they abominate that, yet they endeavour to come as near it as they can, and ferve God in an unknown Senfe, which their own godly Teacher has as great a Care to prepare equal and fuitable to their wonderful Capacities. And therefore, as the Apofles made their divine Calling appear plainly to all the World by fpeaking Languages, which they never underftood before; he endeavours to do the fame Thing mort prepofteroufly by fpeaking that which is no Language at all, nor underftood by any Body, but a Collection of affected and fantaftic Expreffions, wholly abftract from Senfe, as Notbingnefs, Soul Damningnefs and Saringnefs, &c. in fuch a fuftian Stile as the Turks and Perfions ufe; that fignify nothing but the Vanity and want of Judgment of the Speaker; though they believe it to be the true Property of the Spirit, and higheft Perfection of all Sanctity. And the better to fet this off, he ufes more artificial Tricks to improve his Spirit of Utterance either into Volubility or Dullinefs, that it may feem to go of it felf, withont his Study or Direction, than the old Heathen Orators knew, that ufed to liquor their Throats, and harrangue to Pipes.

42 AN HYPOCRITICAL

NONCONFORMIST.

For he hàs fantaftic and extravagant Tones, as well as Phrafes, that are no lefs agreeable to the Senfe of . . . . in a Kind of filo recitativo between finging and braying; and abhors the . . . . . Liturgy, left he fhould feem to conform to it. But as it is a Piece of Art to conceal Art, fo it is by artifir cial Dullnefs to difguife that which is natural ; and as his Intereft has always obliged him to decry human Learning, Reafon, and Senfe; he and his Brethren have with long and diligent Practice found out an Expedient to make that Dullnefs, which would become intolerable, if it did not pretend to fomething above Nature, pafs for Dijpenjations, Ligbt, Grace, and Gifts. For in the Beginning of the late unhappy civil War, the greateft Number of thofe of the Clergy, who by the means of their Parts, or Friends, or Honefty had no Hopes to advance themfelves to Preferment in the Cburch, took Part with the Parliament againft it, who were very willing to give a kind Reception and Encouragement to all thofe, that offered themfelves to promote the Caufe of Reformation, which they found to be the beft Difguife they could poffibly put upon Rebellion; and then this heavy Dullnefs, being a public

44 AN HYPOCRITICAL

Standard of the common Talents of their Teachers, became (for want of a better) a Mode, and afterwards a Character of the Power of Godlinefs, in Oppofition to the Ingenuity and Learning of the other Clergy ; and whofoever was not naturally endued with it, or fo much Hypocrify as would ferve to counterfeit it, was held unable, or fufpected unfit to be confided in. And upon this account it has continued ever fince among the Party, where it paffes for a Mark of Diftinction to difcover who are gifted, and who not; as among the Antient Pagans, when Monfters and Prodigies had gained the Reputation of divine Prefages, the more unnatural and deformed they appeared, they were received with the more devout and pious Regard, and had Sacrifices accordingly appointed for their Expiation. And this he finds ufeful to many Purpofes; for it does not only fave him the Labour of Study, which he difdains as below his Gifts, but exempts him from many other Duties, and gives his idle Infirmities a greater Reputation among his Followers than the greateft Abilities of the moft induftrious; while the painful Heavings and Straining, that he ufes to exprefs himfelf, pafs for the Agonies of thofe that deliver Oracles. And this is the Reafon why he is fo cautious to have all his Exercifes feem to be done Extempore, that his fpiritual Talent may not be thought to receive any Affiftance from natural or artificial Means, but to move freely of it felf, without any Care or Confideration of his; as if Premeditation and Study would but render him, like other falfe Witnefles, the more apt to contrive and imagine, how to betray and abufe the Truth. And to propagate this Cheat among his Hearers, he omits no little Artifice, that he thinks will pafs unperceived: As, when he quotes a Text of Scripture, he commonly only names the Chapter, and about the Beginning, Middle, or End of it, or about fuch or fuch a Verfe, and then turns over the Leaves of his Book to find it, to Shew that he had not fo much Preparation as to do it before ; but was always furprized with his Gifts, and taken tardy before he was aware ; and when he happens to be out, which is not feldom, will fteal a Look, and fquint into his Notes as cunningly as a Schoolboy does into his Leffon that he is to repeat without Book, that he may not be obferved to need the fame Means, which all thofe, that are ungifted, are neceflitated to make ufe of: Although his Concordance fupplies him with all the Gifts he has to cap Texts, and his Adverfaries Writings, with all the Doctrine and Ufe he has, except that which is factious and feditious, which is always his own, and all that, befide Nonfenfe, he can juftly pretend to.

46 AN HYPOCRITICAL

The Contribution, which he receives from his Congregation, ferves him, like a Scale, to take a juft Meafure of the Zeal and Godlinefs of every particular Member of it ; and by computing what their Offerings amount to, in proportion to their Abilities, caft up exactly how much Grace and fpiritual Gifts every Man is endued with. This, like auricular Confeffion, lets him into the darkeft Secrets of their Hearts, and directs him how to apply his Remedies according to their feveral Conftitutions; and by finding out by Obfervation or Enquiry the particular Sins, that any

- . with a Particular of his Effate gainft them, and deliver them over - . . until he . . . . ranfom, and be converted to an equal Contribution and faid to cover a Multitude of Sins; fo does charitable Contribution ; and if that is wanting, it is his Duty to lay them open, and impofe fuch Penances as he judges fitting, as well as difpofe of Indulgences, though he does not like the Word, to the beft Advantage. And therefore he is an implacable Enemy to all ecclefiaftical Judges and Officers in the Church, and would truft no Creature living with the Conduct and Management of Men's Sins, but himfelf and the Devil, who is the only fecular Power that he can confide in to deliver them over to, or redeem them back again at his own Rates. For he is a fpiritual Interloper, that fteals a Trade underhand, and by dealing in prohibited Commodities can underfell, and allow better Bargains of Sins and Abfolution, than thofe that deal fairly and openly can afford. As for the Bi/bops, he is rather a Rival than an Enemy to them, and therefore becomes the more jealous of them: For all the llwill he bears them is only, whatever he pretends, for their Authority and their Lands, with which he is moft paffionately in Love, but cannot poffibly get the Confent of both Parties to the Match; and therefore, like Solomon's Harlot, had rather divide the Child, than let the right Owner have it. For his Church Members have the keeping of his Confcience, as well as he has of theirs, and both fealed and delivered, like a Pair of Indentures, to one another's Ufes; fo that he cannot, though he would, alter his Judgment without their Confent, or fuch a valuable Confideration, as will fecure him againft all Damages, that he may receive by renouncing them and his own Opinion, when he finds it moft convenient to fatisfy all his Scruples, and conform. For as he parted with his Benefice, like a Gamefter that difcards and throws out a fuit that is dealt him to take in a better out of the Pack, and mend his Hand: fo he can as eafily by the fame light and Revelation, be converted, and change his Conventicle for a better fpiritual Improvement, when a good Occafion is offered him. For how is it poffible that he, who cannot conform to himfelf, fhould do fo to any thing elfe; or he that plants all Improvements of Piety in fpiritual Novelties fhould be conftant to any Thing? For he that can endure nothing that is fettled, only becaufe it is fo, can never poffibly fettle in any Thing; but muft, as he outgrows himfelf in Grace, at length outgrow Grace too, 'as the moft refined of his Difciples have done Ordinancès and Government. For he differs no lefs from his own Doctrine and Difcipline, than from that of the Church, and is really made up of nothing but Contradictions; denies free Will, and yet will endure Nothing but his own Will in all the Practice of his Life; is tranfported with Zeal for Liberty of Confcience, and yet is the fevereft Impofer upon all other Men's Confciences in the whole World ; is a profeft Enemy to all Forms in Godlinefs, and yet affects nothing more than a perpetual Formality in all his Words and Actions; makes his Devotions rather Labours than Exercifes, and breaks the Sabbath by taking too much Pains to keep it, as he does the Commandments of God, to find out new Ways for other Men to keep them; calls his holding forth taking of great Pains, and yet pretends to do it by the Spirit without any Labour or Study of his own. And although Cbrift fays, bleffed be the Peacemakers, he will have none fo but the Peacebreakers; and becaufe the firft Cbriftians were commanded to be obedient for Confcience Sake, he commands his Brother Cbriftians to be difobedient for the fame Reafon; makes longer Prayers than a Pbarifee; but, if the Treafon, Sedition, Nonfenfe, and Blaf-

48 AN HYPOCRITICAL

> Vol. II.

E

50 AN HYPOCRITICAL
phemy were left out, fhorter than a Publican ${ }^{\text {; }}$ for he is no Friend to the Lords-Prayer, for the Power and full Senfe of it, and becaufe it is a Form, and none of his own, nor of the Spirit becaufe it is learnt; and therefore prefers the pharifaical Way of Tedioufnefs and Tautology. This he calls the Gift of Prayer, which he highly values himfelf upon, and yet delivers in a Tone that he fteals from the Beggars; blames the Catholics for placing Devotion in the mere Repetition of Words, and yet makes the fame the Character of fpiritual Gifts and Graces in himfelf; for he ufes the old Phrafes of the Engli/b Tranlation of the Bible from the Ferwifs Idiom, as if they contained in them more Sanctity and Holinefs than other Words, that more properly fignify the fame Thing. He profeffes a mortal Hatred to Ceremonies, and yet has more Punctilios than a Ferw ; for he is of too rugged and churlifh a Nature to ufe any Refpect at all to any Thing. And though Ceremonies are Signs of Submiffion, and very ufeful in the public Service of God, yet they do not turn to any confiderable Accompt, nor acquire any Opinion of Gifts from the People to thofe that ufe them; and he pretends to a nearer Familiarity with his Maker than to need any Ceremonies, like a Stranger; and indeed they are nothing agreeable to that audacious Freedom that he affumes in his Applications to him. So he condemns Uniformity in the public Service of God, and yet affects nothing elfe in his own Doctrines and UJes, and Cap and Beard, which are all of the fame Stamp. He denounces againft all thofe that are given over to a reprobate Senfe, but takes no Notice of thofe, that are given over to a reprobate Nonfenfe. He is an implacable Enemy to Superftition and Profanenefs, and never gives it quarter, but is very tender of meddling with Hypocrify, though it be far more wicked, becaufe the Interefts of it are fo mixt with his own, that it is very difficult to touch the one without difordering the other: For though Hypocrify be but a Form of Godlinefs without Power, and he defies Forms above all Things, yet he is content to allow of it there, and difclaim it in all Things elfe.

A

R E P U B L I C A N

IS a civil Fanatic, an Utopian Senator; and as all Fanatics cheat themfelves with Words, miftaking them for Things; fo does he with the falfe Senfe of Liberty. He builds Governments in the Air, and fhapes them with his Fancy, as Men do Figures in the Clouds. $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{e}}$ is a great Lover of his own Imaginations, which he calls his Country; and is very much for Obedience to his own Senfe, but not further. He is a nominal Politician, a faithful and loyal Subject to notional Governments, but an obflinate Rebel to the real. He dreams of a Republic waking; but as all Dreams are difproportionate and imperfect ; fo are his Conceptions of it: For he has not Wit enough to underftand the Difference between Speculation and Practice. He is fo much a Fool, that, like the Dog in the Fable, he lofes his real Liberty, to enjoy the Shadow of it: For the more he ftudies to diflike the Government, he lives under, the further he is off his real Freedom. While he is modelling of Governments, he forgets that no Government was ever made by Model : For they are not built as Houfes are, but grow as Trees do. And as fome Trees thrive beft in one Soil, fome in another; fo do Governments, but none equally in any, but all generally where they are moft naturally produced ; and therefore 'tis probable, the State of Venice would be no more the fame in any other Country, if introduced, than their Trade of Glafs-making. To avoid this he calculates his Model to the Elevation of a particular Clime, but with the fame Succefs (if put in Practicè) as Almanac-Makers do, to ferve only for a Year; and his Predictions of Succefs would be according, but nothing fo certain as their fair and foul Weather. He has not Judgment enough to obferve, that all Models of Governments are merely Utopian, that have no

[^3]
A R E P U BLICAN.

[^4]E 3

54 A R E P U B L I C A N.

Territory but in Books, nor Subjects but in hot Heads and ftrong Fancies; that Plato's is much wifer than any of his Size, and yet it has been a long while in the World quite out of Employment, and is like to continue fo, at leart till his great Year, a fad Difcouragement to a State-Projector--Buthis is like to have a harder Province; for without a previous Rebellion nothing is to be expected, and then that is to profper, or elfe all is loft : Next the Nation is to fall into Ruin and Confufion juft in the Order as he has defigned it, otherwife it will be to no Purpofe-Then nothing is to intervene; but after fo many Alterations the fame Perfons are to outlive all, and continue ftill in the fame Mind they were in, efpecially thofe in Power, and their Interefts to be the very fame they are at prefent, elfe nothing is to be done. After all this, if nothing elfe interpofe, but the Will of God, a Model of a Republic may (if the Times vill bear it) be propofed, and if it be thought fit it fhould go no further, the Propofers fhall be ordered to have Thanks, and be told, that it fhall be taken into Confideration, or is fo already; and then it will be juft where it is now. And this is all the poffible Rotation our fpeculative

A REPUBLICAN.

State-Botcher can in Reafon promife to himfelf to make thofe, that have any Senfe of his Party to believe. This is much more probable than any Dream of the State-Quack, that ufed to mount his Bank in a Coffee-Houfe, and foretold Oliver Cromwel fhould live fo many Years after he was hanged, and after dying leave the Republicans his Heirs; tho' that has been partly performed in fome, who have fince taken upon them to be his Adminiftrators, and in due Time is like to befall the reft. He has a Fancy, for 'tis no more, to a Commonwealth, becaufe he has feen the Picture of it, no Matter whether true or falfe, it pleafes his Humour, though it be nothing but a great Corporation ; for 'tis but calling the Bailiffs of a good Town Confuls, the Aldermen Senators, the Churchwardens 圧diles, and the Parfon Pontifex Maximus, and the Thing is done. Moft that I know of this Sort are Haranguers, that will hold any Argument, rather than their Tongues, and like this Government before any other, becaufe every Man has a Voice in it, and the greateft Orators prove the ableft Statefmen. He catched this Itch at the Rota,

$$
\mathrm{E}_{4}
$$

$5^{6}$ A R E P U B L I C A N.

where a State Charletan feduced him with Coffee and Sedition by promifing his Abilities great Advancements in Oceana. Ever fince he has a mind to be a Piece of a Prince, tho? his own whole Share of Higbnefs will not amount to the Value of a Pepper Corn yearly if it be demanded: Howfoever it will ferve to entitle him to a Share in the Government, which he would fain be at, and believes himfelf right able to manage, though that be an ill Sign; for commonly thofe, that defire it moft, are the moft unfit for it. He follows his Inclination to a Republic, as a Bowler does his Bowl, when he miftakes his Ground, and ferews his Body that Way he would have it run, and to as much Purpofe, but more dangerous; for if he run too far, he may, before he is aware, run his Neck into a Halter. Of all State-Fanatics he is the moft foolifh, and furtheft off any of his Ends, unlefs it be the Gallows. Sure 'tis a very politic Thing to wifh, and great Wifdom is required to fancy properly, and contrive judicioully what might be, if all Things would but fall out as they ought, and Fate were but as wife as it fhould be.

A R EP U B LICAN.

If he could but find out a Way to hold Intelligence with Cardan's Homines aerii, thofe fubtle Inhabitants of the Air, he might in Probability eftablifh his Government among them, much fooner than here, where fo many Experiments have been fo lately made to no Purpofe. For Oceana is but a kind of a floating Ifland, like the Irifb O Brian, that never cafts Anchor; and thofe that have been upon it know not where to find it again, nor what to make on't: For there is no Account of it in the Map, nor any where elfe, but in the Globe of an empty Noddle. Democracy is but the Effect of a crazy Brain ; 'tis like the Intelligible World, where the Models and Ideas of all Things are, but no Things; and 'twill never go further. They are State-Recufants, politic Nonconformifts, that out of Tendernefs of Humour cannot comply with the prefent Government, nor be obedient to the Laws of the Land with a fafe Fancy. They were all Freeborn in Fairy-Land, but changed in the Cradle; and fo being not Natives here, the Air of the Government does not agree with therm. Thy y are filenced Miniffers of State, that hold forth Sedition in Conventicles, and fpread new Governments erroneous both in

$5^{8}$ A R E P U B LICAN.

Doctrine and Difcipline. They mold Governments, as Children do Dirt-Pyes, only to bufy and pleafe themfelves, tho' to no Purpofe. He derives the Pedigree of Government from Univerfals, that produce nothing; and fuppofes the Right of it to be only in thofe, that are incapable of the Ufe of it, that is all Men, which is all one with no Man ; for that which is every where is no where. He will undertake to prevent civil Wars by proving, that Mankind was born to nothing elfe, and reduce them to Subjection and Obedience by maintaining, that Nature made them all equal. He pretends to fecure the Right of Princes by proving, that whofoever can get their Power from them has Right to it, and perfuade them and their Subjects to obferve imaginary Contracts, becaufe they are invalid as foon as made. He has as wife Difputes about the Original of Governments, as the Roficrucions have about the Beginning of the World; when it would puzzle both him and them to find out, how the firft Hammer was made; but he would fain have them made by Laws, becaufe Laws are made by them, as if the Child begot the Parent. His Pedigree of Power and Right are as obfcure, as a Herald's genealogical Tree, that is hung with Matches, like feveral Pair of Spectacles, and you may fee as far into Truth with them. He is a StateQuack, that mounts his Bank in fome obfcure Nook, and vapours what Cures he could do on the Body politic ; when all the Skill he has will not ferve to cure his own Itch of Novelty and Vainglory. All his Governments are Ideots, and will never be admitted to the Adminiftration of their own Eftates, nor come to Years of difcretion.

A R EP U BLIC A N.

[ 60 ]

A

P O L I T'I C I A N

I$S$ a fpeculative Statefman, Student in the liberal Art of free Government, that did all his Exercifes in the late Times of curfed Memory at the Rota, but is not yet admitted to practife. He is a State-Empiric, that has Receipts for all the Infirmities of Governments, but knows nothing of their Conftitutions, nor how to proportion his Dofe. He diffects the Body-politic into Controverfies, as Anatomifts do the Body of a Man, and mangles every Part, only to find out new Difputes. He weighs every Thing in the Ballance of Property, which at firft would turn with the fortieth Part of a Grain, but fince by Ufe is worn fo falfe, that it inclines one Way more than the other moft abominably. He fhapes dirty Governments on his Rota like Pipkins, that never prove without fome Crack or Flaw. He is always finding out of Expedients, but they are fuch as light in his Way by Chance, and nobody elfe would ftoop to take up. The harder he charges his Head with Politics, the more it recoils and is nearer cracking; for, though in Matters of Action the more Experience a Man has the more he knows, it fares otherways with Speculations, in which an Error is feldom difcovered, until it be reduced to Practice; and if but one of thefe creep in among his Contemplations, it makes Way for others to follow, and the further he purfues his Thoughts, the further he is out of his Way. He derives the Pedigree of Government from its firft Original, and makes it begotten on the Body of a Woman by the firft Father, and born with the firft Child, from whom all that are at prefent in the World are lineally defcended. He is wonderfully enamoured of a Commonwealth becaufe it is like a common Whore, which every one may have to do with; but cannot abide Monarcby, becaufe it is honeft and confined to one. He defpifes the prefent Government, let it be what it will, and prefers the old Greek and Roman, like thofe that wear long Beards, Trunk-Hofe, and Ruffs, but never confiders;' that in that they are more fantaftic than thofe, that affect the neweft Fafhions.

[ 62 ]

A  STATE-CONVERT

IS a thrifty Penitent, that never left Rebellion until it left him. He has always appeared very faithful and conftant to his Principles to the very laft: For as he firft engaged againft the Crown for no other Reafon but his own Advantages ; fo he afterward faced about, and declared for it for the very fame Confideration; and when there was no more to be made of it, was thoroughly convinced, and renounced it from the Bottom of his Heart. He efpoufed the good old Caufe, like an old Whore that had Money in her Purfe, and made her an honeft Woman; but, when all was fpent and gone, turned her out of Doors to fhift for her felf, and declared her to be no better than fhe fhould be. He was very much unfatisfied in his Confcience with the Government of the Church, as long as Prefbytery bore the Bag, and had Money to receive for betraying Cbrift; but as foon as thofe Saints were gulled and cheated of all, and that the Covenant began to be no better than a beggarly Ceremony,' his Eyes were prefently opened, and all his Scruples vanifhed in a Moment. He did his Endeavour to keep out the King as long as he could poffibly; but when there was no Hopes left to prevail any longer, he made a Virtue of Neceffity, and appeared among the foremoft of thofe, that were moft earneft to bring him in: and, like Lipfrus's Dog, refolved to have his Share in that which he was able to defend no longer. What he gained by ferving againft the King he laid out to purchafe profitable Employments in his Service; for he is one that will neither obey nor rebel againft him for nothing; and though he inclines naturally to the latter, yet he has fo much of a Saint left as to deny himfelf, when he cannot have his Will, and denounce againft Self-feeking, until he is fure to find what he looks for. He pretends to be the only Man in the World that brought in the King, which is in one Senfe very true; for if he had not driven him out firft, it had been impoffible ever to have brought him in. He endures his Preferment patiently (tho' he efteems it no better than a Relapfe) morely for the Profit he receives by it; and prevails with himfelf to be fatisfied with that and the Hopes of feeing better Times, and then refolves to appear himfelf again, and let the World fee he is no Changeling: And therefore he rejoices in his Heart at any Mifcarriages of State-Affairs, and endeavours to improve them to the uttermoft, partly to vindicate his own former Actions, and partly in Hope to fee the Times come about again to him, as he did to them.

[^5]
A STATE-CONVERT. ${ }^{6} 3$

[^6]
64 A STATE-CONVERT.

[ 65 ]

A

$R \quad I \quad S \quad K \quad R \quad R$

EXPOSED himfelf to very great Ha zards, when he had no other Way in the World to difpofe of himfelf fo well. He ventured very hard to ferve the King in doing the Duty of his Place, that is, in putting him to Charges, when he had nothing for himfelf. He never forfook him in his greateft Extremities, but eat and drunk truly and faithfully upon him, when he knew not how to do fo any where elfe: For all the Service he was capable of doing his Mafter was the very fame with that of Bel and the Dragon's Clerks, to eat up his Meat, and drink up his Drink for

[^7]Vol. II.
F

66 A R I S K E R.

him. He was very induftrious to promote his Affairs to as high a Rate as he could, and improved his Revenue by increafing his Expences to the uttermoft of his Power. 'Tis true he ventured all he had, that is himfelf, in the King's Service: for he left nothing behind him but his Debts, and to avoid thefe and Perfecution he was glad to fly to him for Protection. He ferved him freely, as Soldiers are faid to be Volunteers, that take up Arms becaufe they know not how to live otherwife. He forfook his native Country becaufe it forfook him before, and caft himfelf upon the King, who knew as little what to do with him, as he did with himfelf. As for neglecting his own Affairs, nobody knows what that means, unlefs it be that he did not betray the King, when he might have gotten Money to do it, as fome others of his Fellows did. And thefe are all the great and meritorious Services he has done, for which he believes the King is fo far behind hand with him, that he will never be able to come out of his Debt: For all Men are apt to fet very high Rates upon ever fo little that they do for Kings, as if they were to be over-reckoned by their Prerogatives; or that it were the Mark of Majefty and Power to make Men Thieves, and give them leave to cheat; that it were a Flower of the Crown to be firft ferved with all Sorts of Cheats and Impoftors, for the Management of the Royal Revenue, before the Subject can be admitted to furnifh themfelves for their neceffary Oc_ cafions. He is perfuaded that he deferved fo well of the King in being a Burthen to him in his Neceffities, that he ought to be allowed to be one to the Nation for ever after. He is as confident that he contributed as much as any Man to the King's Reftoration, which is very true; for he did what he could, and though that were nothing, yet no Man can do more. The moft defperate of all his Rilks was to venture over the Sea by Water, with private Infructions or privy Seals to borrow Money for the King's Ufe, and venture it Play for his own, in which he often mifcarried; for the Plot being difcovered, all the Money was loft, except fome fmall Sums, that he laid out for his neceffary Charges of Whores, Fidlers, and Surgeons-In tender Confideration of all which great Services and Sufferings, he believes the King is obliged in Hon-

A R I S K E R.

$$
\mathrm{F}_{2}
$$ beg of him all the Days of his Life, and deny him nothing that he fhall demand according to the Rules of the Court, and in cafe of Refufal to profecute his Suit, till he recover it againft him by main Importunity.

[ 69 ]

A

MODERN STATESMAN

OWNS his Election from Free-Grace in Oppofition to Merits or any Forefight of grod Works: For he is cbofen, not for his Abilities or Fitnefs for his Employment, but, like a Tales in a Jury, for happening to be near in Court-If there were any other Confideration in it (which is a hard Queftion to the wife) it was only becaufe he was held able enough to be a Counfellor extraordinary for the Indifference and Negligence of his Underftanding, and confequently Probability of doing no Hurt, if no Good; for why fhould not fuch prove the fafeft Phyficians to the Body politic, as well as they do to the natural ? Or elfe fome near Friend,

[^8]
70 A MODERN STATESMAN.

or Friend's Friend helped him to the Place, that engaged for his Honefty and good Behaviour in it-Howfoever he is able to fit ftill, and look wife according to bis beft Skill and Cunning; and, though he underftand no Reafon, ferve for one that does; and be moft ftedfaftly of that Opinion, that is moft like to prevail. If he be a great Perfon he is chofen, as Alder$m e n$ are in the City, for being rich enough; and fines to be taken in, as thofe do to be left out; and Money being the Meafure of all Things, it is fufficient to juftify all his other Talents, and render them, like it felf, good and current. As for Wifdom and Judgment with thofe other out-of-fafhioned Qualifications, which have been fo highly efteemed heretofore, they have not been found to be fo ufeful in this Age, fince it has invented Scantlings for Politics, that will move with the Strength of a Child, and yetcarry Matters of very great Weight; and that Raillery and Fooling is proved by frequent Experiments to be the more eafy and certain Way. For as the Germans heretofore were obferved to be wifeft when they were drunk, and knew not how to diffemble: fo are our modern Statefmen, when they are mad, and ufe no referved Cunning in their

A MODERN STATESMAN. 7I

Confultations. And as the Church of Rome and that of the Turks efteem ignorant Perfons the moft devout, there is no Reafon why this Age, that feems to incline to the Opinions of them both, fhould not as well believe them to be the moft prudent and judicious: For heavenly Wifdom does by the Confeffion of Men far exceed all the Subtlety and Prudence of this World. The Heatben Priefts of old never delivered Oracles but when they were drunk, and mad or diftracted, and who knows why our modern Oracles may not as well ufe the fame Method in all their Proceedings-Howfoever he is as ably qualified to govern as that Sort of Opinion that is faid to govern all the World, and is perpetually falfe and foolifh; and if his Opinions are always fo, they have the fairer Title to their Pretenfions. He is fworn to advife no further than his Skill and Cunning will enable him, and the lefs he has of either, the fooner he difpatches his Bufinefs; and Difpatch is no mean Virtue in a Statefman.

[ 72 ]

A

D  U  K  E

OF

B U C K  S

IS one that has ftudied the whole Body of Vice. His Parts are difproportionate to the whole, and like a Monfter he has more of fome, and lefs of others than he fhould have. He

This Character is the only one amongt the many which Butler has drawn, that I find exprefly perfonal. As Dryden has in his Abfalom and Achitophel attempted the fame Picture, it may, perhaps, be fome Satisfaction to the Reader to fee them placed together.

Some of their Cbiefs nvere Princes of the Land:
In the firft Rank of theje did Zimri ftand:
$A$ Man fo various, that be feem'd to be
Not one, but all Mankind's Epitome;
Stiff in Opinions, always in the wrong,
Was every Thing by turns, and notbing long;
But in the Cour $\sqrt{ }$ e of one revolving Moon Was Chymift, Fidler, Statefman, and Buffoon.
Then all for Women, Painting, Rbyming, Drinking;
Befides ten Thoufand Freaks, that dy'd in thinking.

A DUKE OF B UCKS. 73

has pulled down all that Fabric that Nature raifed in him, and built himfelf up again after a Model of his own. He has dam'd up all thofe Lights, that Nature made into the nobleft Profpects of the World, and opened other little blind Loopholes backward, by turning Day into Night, and Night into Day. His Appetite to his Pleafures is difeafed and crazy, like the Pica in a Woman, that longs to eat that, which was never made for Food, or a Girl in the Greenficknefs, that eats Chalk and Mortar. Perpetual Surfeits of Pleafure have filled his Mind with bad and vicious Humours (as well as his Body with a Nurfery of Difeafes) which makes him affect new and extravagant Ways, as being fick and tired with the Old. Continual Wine, Women, and Mufic put falfe Values upon > Bleft Madman, who could every Hour employ With fomething nerw to rwifh, or to enjay! Railing and praifing were bis ufual Themes, And both (to ßerw bis 'fudgment) in Extremes: So over violent, or over civil, That every Man with him weas God or Devil.

> In fquandering Wealtb was bis peculiar Art:
> Notbing rwent unrewarded but Defert.
> Beggar'd by Fools, whom fill be fuund ton late:
> He kad bis feft, and they had bis Eftate.

It may not be improper to obferve in this Place, that what the Oxford Antiquary reports of Butler's being Secretary to the Duke of Buckingbam, and the Writer of his Life adds of the Duke's being a great Benefactor to him, mutt in all Probability be falfe, except to fupport it, we will fuppofe our Author guilty of great Ingratitude and Meannefs.

74 A D UKE OF BUCKS.

Things, which by Cuftom become habitual, and debauch his Underftanding fo, that he retains no right Notion nor Senfe of Things. And as the fame Dofe of the fame Phyfic has no Operation on thofe, that are much ufed to it ; fo his Pleafures require a larger Proportion of Excefs and Variety, to render him fenfible of them. He rifes, eats, and goes to Bed by the Julion Account, long after all others that go by the new Stile; and keeps the fame Hours with Owls and the Antipodes. He is a great Obierver of the Tartars Cuftoms, and never eats, till the great Cham having dined makes Proclamation, that all the World may go to Dinner. He does not dwell in his Houfe, but haunt it, like an evil Spirit, that walks all Night to difturb the Family, and never appears by Day. He lives perpetually benighted, runs out of his Life, and lofes his Time, as Men do their Ways in the Dark; and as blind Men are led by their Dogs, fo is he governed by fome mean Servant or other, that relates to his Pleafures. He is as inconftant as the Moon, which he lives under; and altho' he does nothing but advife with his Pillow all Day, he is as great a Stranger to himfelf, as he is to the reft of the World. His Mind entertains all

A DUKE OF B UCKS. 75

Things very freely, that come and go; but, like Guefts and Strangers they are not welcome, if they ftay long-This lays him open to all Cheats, Quacks, and Impoftors, who apply to every particular Humour while it lafts, and afterwards vanifh. Thus with St. Paul, tho' in a different Senfe, he dies daily, and only lives in the Night. He deforms Nature, while he intends to adorn her, like Indians, that hang Jewels in their Lips and Nofes. His Ears are perpetually drilled with a Fiddleftick. He endures Pleafures with lefs Patience, than other Men do their Pains.

[ 76 ]

A

DEGENERATENOBLE:

OR,

One that is proud of his Birth,

IS like a Turnep, there is nothing good of him, but that which is under-ground, or Rhubarb a contemptible Shrub, that fprings from a noble Root. He has no more Title to the Worth and Virtue of his Anceftors, than the Worms that were engendred in their dead Bodies, and yet he believes he has enough to exempt himfelf and his Pofterity from all Things of that Nature for ever. This makes him glory in the Antiquity of his Family, as if his Nobility were the better, the further off it is in Time, as well as Defert, from that of

Or as Apicius, that fold his Houfe, &c.] What fuggefted to Butler this Piece of Wit is a Story told by Afconius Padianus of one Menius, who fold his Houfe, but referved one Pillar of it, to build a Balcony upon, from whence he might view the Combats of the Gladiators. The Paffage is this, "Menius cum Domum fuam "s venderet Catoni et Flacco Cenforibus, ut ibi Bafilica ædifica"6 retur, exceperat jus fibi unius Columnæ, fuper quam tectum his Predeceffors. He believes the Honour, that was left him, as well as the Eftate, is fufficient to fupport his Quality, without troubling himfelf to purchafe any more of his own; and he meddles as little with the Management of the one as the other, but trufts both to the Government of his Servants, by whom he is equally cheated in both. He fuppofes the empty Title of Honour fufficient to ferve his Turn, though he has fpent the Subftance and Reality of it, like the Fellow that fold his Ais, but would not part with the Shadow of it; or Apicius, that fold his Houfe, and kept only the Balcony, to fee and be feen in. And becaufe he is privileged from being arrefted for his Debts, fuppofes he has the fame Freedom from all Obligations he owes Humanity and his Country, becaufe he is not punifhable for his Ignorance and want of Honour, no more than Poverty or Unfkilfulnefs is in other Profeffions, which the Law fuppofes to be Punifhment enough to it felf. He is like a Fanatic, that" projiceret ex provolantibus tabulatis, unde ipfe et pofteri ejus " fpectare munus Gladiatorum poffent."

A DEGENERATE NOBLE. 77

Whether our Author made a Miftake in applying it to Apicius an infamous Voluptuary, who in the Reign of Ciberizus watted an immenfe Fortune upon his gluttonous Extravagancies; or thought he had a right to make this Alteration as more fuitable to his Purpofe, muft be left to the Reader's Determination.

78 A DEGENERATE NOBLE.

contents himfelf with the mere Title of a Saint, and makes that his Privilege to act all manner of Wickednefs ; or the Ruins of a noble Structure, of which there is nothing left but the Foundation, and that obfcured and buried under the Rubbifh of the Superftructure. The living Honour of his Anceftors is long ago departed, dead and gone, and his is but the Ghoft and Shadow of it, that haunts the Houfe with Horror and Difquiet, where once it lived. His Nobility is truly defcended from the Glory of his Forefathers, and may be rightly faid to fall to him; for it will never rife again to the Height it was in them by his means; and he fucceeds them as Candles do the Office of the Sun. The Confidence of Nobility has rendered him ignoble, as the Opinion of Wealth makes fome Men poor ; and as thofe that are born to Eftates neglect Induftry, and have no Bufinefs, but to fpend; fo he being born to Honour believes he is no further concerned, than to confume and wafte it. He is but a Copy, and fo ill done, that there is no Line of the Original in him, but the Sin only. He is like a Word, that by ill Cuftom and Miftake has utterly loft the Senfe of that, from which it was derived, and now fignifies quite contrary: For the

A DEGENERATE NOBLE. 79

Glory of noble Anceftors will not permit the good or bad of their Pofterity to be obfcure. He values himfelf only upon his Title, which being only verbal gives him a wrong Account of his natural Capacity; for the fame Words fignify more or lefs, according as they are applied to Things, as ordinary and extraordinary do at Court ; and fometimes the greater Sound has the lefs Senfe, as in Accompts though four be more than three, yet a third in Proportion is more than a fourth.

[ 80 ]

A

HUFFING COURTIER

IS a Cypher, that has no Value himfelf, but from the Place he ftands in. All his Happinels confifts in the Opinion he believes others have of it. This is his Faith, but as it is heretical and erroneous, though he fuffer much Tribulation for it, he continues obftinate, and not to be convinced. He flutters up and down like a Butterfly in a Garden; and while he is pruning of his Peruque takes Occafion to contemplate his Legs, and the Symmetry of his Britches. He is part of the Furniture of the Rooms, and ferves for a walking Picture, a moving Piece of Arras. His Bufinefs is only to be feen, and he performs it with admirable Induftry, placing himfelf always in the beft Light, looking wonderfully Politic, and cautious whom he mixes withal. His Occupation is to fhow his Cloaths, and if they could but walk themfelves, they would fave him the

A HUFFING COURTIER. 8i

Labour, and do his Work as well as himfelf. His Immunity from Varlets is his Freehold, and he were a loft Man without it. His Cloaths are but his Taylor's Livery, which he gives him, for 'tis ten to one he never pays for them. He is very careful to difcover the Lining of his Coat, that you may not fufpect any Want of Integrity or Flaw in him from the Skin outwards. His Taylor is his Creator, and makes him of nothing; and though he lives by Faith in him, he is perpetually committing Iniquities againft him. His Souldwells in the Outfide of him, like that of a hollow Tree ; and if you do but pill the Bark off him he deceafes immediately. His Carriage of himfelf is the wearing of his Cloaths, and, like the Cinamon Tree, his Bark is better than his Body. His looking big is rather a Tumor, than Greatnefs. He is an Idol, that has juft fo much Value, as other Men give him that believe in him, but none of his own. He makes his Ignorance pafs for Referve, and, like a Hunting-nag, leaps over what he cannot get through. He has juft fo much of Politics, as Hoftlers in the Univerfity have Latin. He is as humble as a Jefuit to his Superior; but reVol. II.

G

82 A HUFFING COURTIER.

pays himfelf again in Infolence over thofe, that are below him; and with a generous Scorn defpifes thofe, that can neither do him good, nor hurt. He adores thofe, that may do him good, though he knows they never will ; and defpifes thofe, that would not hurt him, if they could. The Court is his Church, and he believes as that believes, and cries up and down every Thing, as he finds it pafs there. It is a great Comfort to him to think, that fome who do not know him may perhaps take him for a Lord; and while that Thought lafts he looks bigger than ufual, and forgets his Acquaintance ; and that's the Reafon why he will fometimes know you, and fometimes not. Nothing but want of Money or Credit puts him in mind that he is mortal; but then he trufts Providence that fomebody will truft him; and in Expectation of that hopes for a better Life, and that his Debts will never rife up in Judgment againft him. To get in debt is to labour in his Vocation; but to pay is to forfeit his Protection; for what's that worth to one that owes Nothing? His Employment being only to wear his Cloaths, the whole Account of his Life and Actions is recorded in Shopkeepers Books, that are his faithful Hiftoriographers to their own Pofterity; and he believes he lofes fo much Reputation, as he pays off his Debts; and that no Man wears his Cloaths in Fafhion, that pays for them, for nothing is further from the Mode. He believes that he that runs in Debt is beforehand with thofe that truft him, and only thofe, that pay, are behind. His Brains are turned giddy, like one that walks on the Top of a Houfe; and that's the Reafon it is fo troublefome to him to look downwards. He is a Kind of Spectrum, and his Cloaths are the Shape he takes to appear and walk in ; and when he puts them off he vanifhes. He rung as bufily out of, one Room into another, as a great Practifer does in Wefminfer-Hall from one Court to another. When he accofts a Lady he puts both Ends of his Microcofm in Motion, by making Legs at one End, and combing his Peruque at the other. His Garniture is the Sauce to his Cloaths, and he walks in his Portcannons like one, that ftalks in long Grafs. Every Motion of him crys Vanity of Vonities, all is Vanity, quoth the Preacher. He rides himfelf like a well-managed Horfe, reins in his Neck, and walks Terra. Terra. He carries his elbows backward, as if he were

A HUFFING COURTIER. 83

84 A HUFFING COURTIER.

pinioned like a truft-up Fowl, and moves as ftiff as if he was upon the Spit. His Legs are ftuck in his great voluminous Britches, like the Whiftles in a Bagpipe, thofe abundant Britches, in which his nether Parts are not cloathed, but packt up. His Hat has been long in a Confumption of the Fafhion, and is now almoft worn to Nothing; if it do not recover quickly it will grow too little for a Head of Garlick. He wears Garniture on the Toes of his Shoes to juftify his Pretenfions to the Gout, or fuch other Malady, that for the Time being is moft in Falhion or Requeft. When he falutes a Friend he pulls off his Hat, as Women do their Vizard-Mafques. His Ribbons are of the true Complexion of his Mind, a Kind of painted Cloud or gawdy Rainbow, that has no Colour of it felf, but what it borrows from Reflection. He is as tender of his Cloaths, as a Coward is of his Flefh, and as loth to have them difordered. His Bravery is all his Happinefs; and like Atlas he carries his Heaven on his Back. He is like the golden Fleece, a fine Outfide on a Sheep's Back. He is a Monfter or an Indian Creature, that is good for nothing in the World but to be feen. He puts himfelf up into a Sedan, like a Fiddle in a Cafe, and is taken out again for the Ladies to play upon, who when they have done with him, let down his treble-String, till they are in the Humour again. His Cook and Valet de Chambre confpire to drefs Dinner and him fo punctually together, that the one may not be ready before the other. As Peacocks and Oftridges have the gaudieft and fineft Feathers, yet cannot fly; fo all his Bravery is to flutter only. The Beggars call him my Lord, and he takes them at their Words, and pays them for it. If you praife him, he is fo true and faithful to the Mode, that he never fails to make you a Prefent of himfelf, and will not be refufed, tho' you know not what to do with him when you have him.

A HUFFING COURTIER. 85

[ 86 ]

A

C O U R T-B E G G A R

wAITS at Court, as a Dog does under a Table, to catch what falls, or force it from his Fellows if he can. When a Man is in a fair Way to be hanged that is rickly worth it, or has hanged himfelf, he puts in to be his Heir and fucceed, him and pretends as much Merit as another, as, no doubt, he has great Reafon to do, if all Things were rightly confidered. He thinks it vain to deferve well of his Prince, as long as he can do his Bufnefs more eafily by begging; for the fame idle Lazinefs poffeffes him that does the reft of his Fraternity, that had rather take an Alms than work for their Livings; and therefore he accounts Merit a more uncertain and tedious Way of rifing, and fometimes dangerous. He values himfelf and his Flace not upon the Honour or Allowances of it, buit

A COURT-BEGGAR.

the convenient Opportunity of begging, as King Claufe's Courtiers do when they have obtained of the fuperior Powers a good Station where three Ways meet, to exercife the Function in-The more ignorant, foolifh, and undeferving he is, provided he be but impudent enough, which all fuch feldom fail to be, the better he thrives in his Calling, as others in the fame Way gain more by their Sores and broken Limbs, than thofe that are found and in Health. He always undervalues what he gains, becaufe he comes eafily by it ; and how rich foever he proves is refolved never to be fatified, as being, like a Friar Minor, bound by his Order to be always a Beggar. He is, like King Agrippa, almoft a Chriftian; for though he never begs any Thing of God, yet he does very much of his Vice-gerent the King that is next him. He fpends lavifhly what he gets, becaufe it cofts him fo little Pains to get more, but pays Nothing; for, if he fhould, his Privilege would be of no ufe at all to him, and he does not care to part with any Thing of his Right. He finds it his beft Way to be always craving, betaufe he lights many Times

G 4.

88 A COURT-BEGGAR.

upon Things that are difpofed of or not beggable; but if one hit, it pays for twenty that mifcarry; even as thofe Virtuofos of his Profeffion at large afk as well of thofe that give them nothing, as thofe few that out of Charity give them fomething. When he has paft almoft all Offices, as other Beggars do from Conftable to Conftable, and after meets with a Stop, it does but encourage him to be more induftrious in watching the next Opportunity, to repair the Charge he has been at to no Purpofe. He has his Emiffaries, that are always hunting out for Difcoveries, and when they bring him in any Thing, that he judges too heavy for his own Intereft to carry, he takes in others to join with him (like blind Men and Cripples that beg in Confort) and if they profper they fhare, and give the Jackal fome fmall Snip for his Pains in quefting, that is, if he has any further ufe of him, otherwife he leaves him like Virtue to reward himfelf; and becaufe he deferves well, which he does by no means approve of, gives him that, which he believes to be the fitteft Recompence of all Merit, juft nothing. He believes, that the King's Reftoration being upon his Birth-Day, he is bound to obferve it all the Days of his Life, and grant, as fome other Kings have done upon the fame Occafion, whatever is demanded of him, though it were the one half of his Kingdom.

ACOURT-BEGGAR.

[ 90 ]

A  B U M P K I N,  OR  COUNTRY-SQUIRE

IS a Clown of Rank and Degree. He is the Growth of his own Land, a Kind of Antoctbanus, like the Atbenians, that fprung out of their own Ground; or Barnacles that grow upon Trees in Scotland: His homely Education has rendered him a Native only of his own Soil, and a Foreigner to all other Places, from which he differs in Language, Manner of Living, and Behaviour, which are as rugged as the Coat of a Colt that has been bred upon a Common. The Cuftom of being the beft Man in his own Territories has made him the worft every where elfe. He affumes the upper End of the Table at an Ale-Houfe, as his Birthright; receives the Homage of his Company, which are always fubordinate, and difpenfes Ale and Communication, like a Selfconforming Teacher in a Conventicle. The chief Points, he treats on, are the Memoirs of his Dogs and Horfes, which he repeats as often as a Holder-forth, that has but two Sermons; to which if he adds the Hiftory of his Hawks and Fifhing, he is very painful and laborious. He does his endeavour to appear a Drole, but his Wit being, like his Eftate, within the Compafs of a Hedge, is fo profound and obfcure to a Stranger, that it requires a Commentary, and is not to be underffood without a perfect Knowledge of all Circumftances of Perfons, and the particular Idiom of the Place. He has no Ambition to appear a Perfon of civil Prudence or Underftanding, more than in putting off a lame infirm Jade for found Wind and Limb; to which Purpofe he brings his Squirehood and Groom to vouch; and, rather than fail, will outfwear an Affidavit-Man. The Top of his Entertainment is horrible ftrong Beer, which he pours into his Guefts (as the Dutch did Water into our Merchants, when they tortured them at Amboyna) till they confefs they can drink no more; and then he triumphs over them as fubdued and vanquifhed, A...B U M P K I N: OR

COUNTRY-SQUIRE. gi

no lefs by the Strength of his Brain, than his Drink. When he falutes a Man, he lays violent Hands upon him, and gripes and fhakes him, like a Fit of an Ague: and, when he accofts a Lady, he ftamps with his Foot, like a French Fencer, and makes a Longee at her, in which he always miffes his Aim, too high or too low, and hits her on the Nofe or Chin. He is never without fome rough-handed Flatterer, that rubs him, like a Horfe, with a Curry-Comb, till he kicks and grunts with the Pleafure of it. He has old Family Stories. and Jefts, that fell to him with the Eftate, and have been left from Heir to Heir time out of Mind: With thefe he entertains all Comers over and over, and has added fome of his own Times, which he intends to tranfmit over to Pofterity. He has but one Way of making all Men welcome, that come to his Houfe, and that is, by making himfelf and them drunk; while his Servants take the fame Courfe with theirs, which he approves of as good and faithful Service, and the rather, becaufe, if he has Occafion to tell a ftrange improbable Story, they may be in a Readinefs to vouch with the more Impudence, and make it a Cafe of Confcience to lye, as well as drink for his Credit. All the

COUNTRY-SQUIRE.

heroical Glory he afpires to, is but to be reputed a moft potent and victorious Stealer of Deer, and beater-up of Parks, to which Purpofe he has compiled Commentaries of his own great Actions, that treat of his dreadful Adventures in the Night, of giving Battle in the Dark, difcomfiting of Keepers, horfing the deer on his own Back, and making off with equal Refolution and Succefs. He goes to Bawdy-Houfes, to fee Fafhions; that is, to have his Pocket pick't, and the Pox into the Bargain.

[ 94 ]

A N

A N T I Q U A R Y

IS one that has his Being in this Age, but his Life and Converfation is in the Days of old. He defpifes the prefent Age as an Innovation, and flights the future; but has a great Value for that, which is paft and gone, like the Madman, that fell in Love with Cleopatra. He is an old frippery-Philofopher, that has fo Itrange a natural Affection to worm-eaten Speculation, that it is apparent he has a Worm in his Skull. He honours his Forefathers and Fore-mothers, but condemns his Parents as too modern, and no better than Upftarts. He neglects himfelf, becaufe he was born in his own Time, and fo far off Antiquity, which he fo much admires; and repines, like a younger Brother, becaufe he came fo late into the World. He fpends the one half of his Time in collecting old infggnificant Trifles,

A N A N T I QUARY. 95

 and the other in fhewing them, which he takes fingular Delight in ; becaufe the oftener he does it, the further they are from being new to him. All his Curiofities take place of one another according to their Seniority, and he values them not by their Abilities, but their Standing. He has a great Veneration for Words that are ftricken in Years, and are grown fo aged, that they have out-lived their Employments-Thefe he ufes with a Refpect agreeable to their Antiquity, and the good Services they have done. He throws away his Time in enquiring after that which is paft and gone fo many Ages fince, like one that fhoots away an Arrow, to find out another that was loft before. He fetches things out of Duft and Ruins, like the Fable of the chymical Plant raifed out of its own Afhes. He values one old Invention, that is loft and never to be recovered, before all the new ones in the World, tho' never fo ufeful. The whole Bufinefs of his Life is the fame with his, that fhows the Tombs at Wefminfler, only the one does it for his Pleafure, and the other for Money. As every Man has but one Father, but two Grand-Fathers and a World of Anceftors; fo he has a proportional Value96 A.N A N T I QUAR Y.
for Things that are antient; and the further off the greater.

He is a great Time-ferver, but it is of Time out of Mind, to which he conforms exactly, but is wholly retired from the prefent. His Days were fpent and gone long before he came into the World, and fince his only Bufinefs is to collect what he can out of the Ruins of thern. He has fo ftrong a natural Affection to any Thing that is old, that he may truly fay to Duft and Worms you are my Father, and to Rottennefs thou art my Motber. He has no Providence nor Fore-fight; for all his Contemplations look backward upon the Days of old, and his Brains are turned with them, as if he walked backwards. He had rather interpret one obfcure Word in any old fenfelefs Difcourfe, than be Author of the moft ingenious new one; and with Scaliger would fell the Empire of Germany (if it were in his Power) for an old Song. He devours an old Manufcript with greater Relifh than Worms and Moths do, and, though there be nothing in it, values it above any Thing printed, which he accounts but a Novelty. When he happens to cure a fmall Botch in an old Author, he is as proud of it, as if he had got the Philofophers Stone, and could cure all the Difeafes of Mankind. He values things wrongfully upon their Antiquity, forgetting that the moft modern are really the moft ancient of all Things in the World, like thofe that reckon their Pounds before their Shillings and Pence, of which they are made up. He efteems no Cuftoms but fuch as have outlived themfelves, and are long fince out of Ufe; as the Catbolics allow of no Saints, but fuch as are dead, and the Fanatics, in Oppofition, of none but the Living.

[^9]
A N A N TIQUARY. 97

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}9^{8}\end{array}\right]$

A

$\begin{array}{llllllll}P & R & O & U & D & M & A & N\end{array}$

I$S$ a Fool in Fermentation, that fwells and boils over like a Porridge-Pot. He fets out his Feathers like an Owl, to fwell and feem bigger than he is. He is troubled with a Tumour and Inflammation of Self-Conceit, that renders every Part of him ftiff and uneafy. He has given himfelf Sympathetic Love-Powder, that works upon him to Dotage, and has transformed him into his own Miftrefs. He is his own Gallant, and makes moft paffionate Addreffes to his own dear Perfections. He commits Idolatry to himfelf, and worfhips his own Image; though there is no Soul living of his Church but himfelf, yet he believes as the Church believes, and maintains his Faith with the Obftinacy of a Fanatic. He is his own Favourite, and advances himfelf not only above his Merit, but all Mankind; is both Damon and Pytbias to his own dear felf, and values his Crony above his Soul. He gives Place to no Man but himfelf, and that with very great Diftance to all others, whom he efteems not worthy to approach him. He believes whatfoever he has receives a Value in being his; as a Horfe in a Nobleman's Stable will bear a greater Price than in a common Market. He is fo proud, that he is as hard to be acquainted with himfelf as with others; for he is very apt to forget who he is, and knows himfelf only fuperficially; therefore he treats himfelf civilly as a ftranger with Ceremony and Compliment, but admits of no Privacy. He ftrives to look bigger than himfelf, as well as others, and is no better than his own Parafite and Flatterer. A little Flood will make a fhallow Torrent fwell above its Banks, and rage, and foam, and yield a roaring Noife, while a deep filent Stream glides quietly on. So a vainglorious infolent proud Man fwells with a little frail Profperity, grows big and loud, and overflows his Bounds, and when he finks, leaves Mud and Dirt behind him. His Carriage is as glorious and haughty, as if he were advanced upon Men's Shoulders, or tumbled over their Heads like Knipperdolling. He fancies

[^10]100 A PROUD M A N.
himfelf a Coloffe, and fo he is, for his Head holds no Proportion to his Body, and his foundation is leffer than his upper Stories. We can naturally take no view of our felves, unlefs we look downwards, to teach us how humble Admirers we ought to be of our own Values. The flighter and lefs folid his Materials are, the more Room they take up, and make him fwell the bigger; as Feathers and Cotton will ftuff Cufhions better than Things of more clofe and folid Parts.

[ 101 ]

A

FIFTH-MONARCHY-MAN

IS one, that is not contented to be a PrivyComnfellor of the Kingdom of Heaven, but would fain be a Minifter of State of this World, and tranflate the Kingdom of Heaven to the Kingdom of Earth. His Defign is to make Cbrift King, as his Forefathers the Feros did, only to abufe and crucify him, that he might fhare his Lands and Goods, as he did his Vicegerents here. He dreams of a Fool's Paradife without a Serpent in it, a golden Age all of Saints, and no Hypocrites, all boly-Court Princes, and no Subjects but the Wicked; a Government of Perkin Warbec and Lambert Simnel Saints, where every Man, that had a Mind to it, might make himfelf a Prince, and claim a Title to the Crown. He fancies a fifth-Monarchy as the Quinteffence of all Governments, abftracted from all Matter, and confifting H 3 wholly of Revelations, Vifions, and Myfteries. Fobn of Leyden was the firft Founder of it, and though he mifcarried, like Romulus in a Tempeft, his Pofterity have Revelations every full Moon, that there may be a Time to fet up his Title again, and with better Succefs; though his Brethren, that have attempted it fince, had no fooner quartered his Coat with their own, but their whole outward Men were fet on the Gates of the City; where a Head and four Quarters ftand as Types and Figures of the fffth-Monarchy. They have been contriving (fince Experiments, that coft Necks are too chargeable) to try it in little, and have depofed King Oberon, to erect their Monarchy in Fairy-Land, as being the moft proper and natural Region in the whole World for their Government, and if it fucceed there to procced further. The $D e-$ vil's Profpect of all the Kingdoms of the Earth, and the Glory of them, has fo dazzled their Eyes, that they would venture their Nccks to take him at his Word, and give him his Price. Nothing comes fo near the Kingdom of Darknefs as the ffith-Monarchy, that is no where to be found, but in dark Prophefies, obfcure Mythologies, and myftical Riddles, like the Vifions Enzeas faw in Hell of the Roman Empire.

102 A FIFTH-MONARCHY-MAN.

A FIFTH-MONARCHY-MAN. 103

Next this it moft refembles Mabomet's Coming to the Turks, and King Artbur's Reign over the Britons in Merlin's Prophefies; fo near of Kin are all fantaftic Illufions, that you may difcern the fame Lineaments in them all. The poor Wicked are like to have a very ill time under them, for they are refolved upon arbitrary Government, according to their ancient and fundamental Revelations, and to have no Subjects but Slaves, who between them and the Devil are like to fuffer Perfecution enough to make them as able Saints, as their Lords and Mafters. He gathers Churches on the Sunday, as the Jerws did Sticks on their Sabbath, to fet the State on Fire. He humms and hahs high Treafon, and calls upon it, as Gamefters do on the Caft they would throw. He groans Sedition, and, like the Pbarifee, rails, when he gives Thanks. He interprets Prophefies, as Whittington did the Bells, to fpeak to him, and governs himfelf accordingly.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}104\end{array}\right]$

THE ## HENPECTMAN

RIDE $S$ behind his Wife, and lets her wear the Spurs and govern the Reins. He is a Kind of prepofterous Animal, that being curbed in goes with his Tail forwards. He is but fubordinate and minifterial to his Wife, who commands in chief, and he dares do nothing without her Order. She takes Place of him, and he creeps in at the Bed's Feet, as if he had married the Grand Seignor's Daughter, and is under Correction of her Pantofle. He is his Wife's Villain, and has nothing of his own further than fhe pleafes to allow him. When he was married he promifed to worfhip his Wife with his Soul inftead of his Body, and endowed her among his worldly Goods with his Humanity. He changed Sexes with his Wife, and put off the old Man to put on the new Woman. She fits at the Helm, and he does but tug like a Slave at the Oar. The little

THE HENPECT MAN. 105

Wit he has being held in capite has rendered all the reft of his Concernments liable to Pupilage and Wardfhip, and his Wife has the Tuition of him during his or her Life; and he has no Power to do any Thing of himfelf, but by his Guardian. His Wife manages him and his Eftate with equal Authority, and he lives unde rher arbitrary Government and Command as his fuperior Officer. He is but a kind of Meffuage and Tenement in the Occupation of his Wife. He and the make up a Kind of Hermaphrodite, a Monfter, of which the one half is more than the whole; for he is the weaker Veffel, and but his Wife's Helper. His Wife efpoufed and took him to Hufband for better or worfe, and the laft Word ftands. He was meant to be his Wife's Head, but being fet on at the wrong End the makes him ferve (like the Jefuits Devil) for her Feet. He is her Province, an Acquifition that the took in, and gives Laws to at Indifcretion; for being overmatched and too feeble for the Encounter, he was forced to fubmit and take Quarter. He has inverted the Curfe, and turned it upon himfelf; for his Defire is towards his Wife, and fhe reigns over him, and with Efau has fold his Birthright for a Mefs of Matrimony.

His Wife took his Liberty among his worldly Goods, to have and to hold till Death them do part. He is but Groom of his Wife's Chamber, and her menial Hurband, that is always in waiting, and a Slave only in the Right of his Wife.

[ 107 ]

A  S M A L L P O E T

TS one, that would fain make himfelf that, which Nature never meant him ; like a Fanatic, that infpires himfelf with his own Whimfies. He fets up Haberdafher of fmall Poetry, with a very fmall Stock, and no Credit. He believes it is Invention enough to find out other Men's Wit ; and whatfoever he lights upon either in Books, or Company, he makes bold with as his own. This he puts together fo untowardly, that you may perceive his own Wit has the Rickets, by the fwelling Difproportion of the Joints. Imitation is the whole Sum of him ; and his Vein is but an Itch or Clap, that he has catched of others; and his Flame like that of Charcoals, that were burnt before: But as he wants Judgment to underftand what is beft, he naturally takes the worft, as being moft agreeable to his own Talent. You may know his Wit not to be natural, 'tis fo unquiet and troublefome in him: For as thofe, that have Money but feldom, are always fhaking their Pockets, when they have it ; fo does he, when he thinks he has got fomething, that will make him appear. He is a perpetual Talker ; and you may know by the Freedom of his Difcourfe, that he came lightly by it, as Thieves fipend freely what they get. He meafures other Men's Wits by their Modefty, and his own by bis Confidence. He makes nothing of writing Plays, becaufe he has not Wit enough to underfand the Difficulty. This makes him venture to talk and fcribble, as Chowfes do to play with cunning Gamefters, until they are cheated and laughed at. He is always talking of Wit, as thofe, that have bad Voices, are always finging out of Tune; and thofe, that cannot play, delight to fumble on Inftruments. He grows the unwifer by other Men's Harms; for the worfe others write, he finds the more Encouragement to do fo too. His Greedinefs of Praife is fo eager, that he fwallows any Thing, that comes in the Likenefs of it, how notorious and palpable foever, and is as Shot-free againft any Thing, that may leffen his good Opinion of himfelf-This renders him incurable, like Difeafes, that grow infenfible.

108 A S M A L L P O ET.

If you dillike him it is at your own Peril; he is fure to put in a Caveat beforehand againft your Underftanding; and, like a Malefactor in Wit, is always furnifhed with Exceptions againft his Judges. This puts him upon perpetual Apologies, Excufes, and Defences, but ftill by Way of Defiance, in a Kind of whiffling Strain, without Regard of any Man, that &tands in the Way of his Pageant. Where he thinks he may do it fafely, he will confidently own other Men's Writings; and where he fears the Truth may be difcovered, he will by feeble Denials and feigned Infinuations give Men Occafion to fuppofe fo.

If he underAtands Latin or Greek he ranks himfelf among the Learned, defpifes the Ignorant, talks Criticifms out of Scaliger, and repeats Martial's baudy Epigrams, and fets up his Reft wholly upon Pedantry. But if he be not fo well qualified, he crys down all Learning as pedantic, difclaims Study, and profefles to write with as great Facility, as if his Mufe was

ir A SMALL POET.

fliding down Parnoflus. Whatfoever he hears. well faid he feizes upon by poetical Licence; and one Way makes it his own, that is by ill repeating of it-This he believes to be no more Theft, than it is to take that, which others throw away. By this means his Writings are, like a Taylor's Cufhion, of mofaic Work, made up of feveral Scraps fewed together. He calls a flovenly nafty Defcription great Na ture, and dull Flatnefs frange Eafinefs. He writes down all that comes in his Head, and makes no Choice, becaufe he has nothing to do it with, that is Judgment. He is always repealing the old Laws of Comedy, and like the long Parliament making Ordinances in their Stead; although they are perpetually thrown out of Coffee-Houfes, and come to Nothing. He is like an Italian Thief, that never robs, but he murthers, to prevent Difcovery ; fo fure is he to cry down the Man from whom he purloins, that his petty Larceny of Wit may pafs unfufpected. He is but a Copier at beft, and will never arrive to practife by the Life: For bar him the Imitation of fomething he has read, and he has no Image in his Thoughts.

[^11]Obfervation and Fancy, the Matter and Form of juft Wit, are above his Philofophy. He appears fo over concerned in all Men's Wits, as if they were but Difparagements of his own; and crys down all they do, as if they were Encroachments upon him. He takes Jefts from the Owners and breaks them, as Fuftices do falfe Weights, and Pots that want Meafure. When he meets with any Thing, that is very good, he changes it into \{mall Money, like three Groats for a Shilling, to ferve feveral Occafions. He difclaims Study, pretends to take Things in Motion, and to thoot flying, which appears to be very true by his often miffing of his Mark. His Wit is much troubled with Obftructions; and he has Fits as painful as thofe of the Spleen. He fancies himfelf a dainty fpruce Shepherd, with a Flock and a fine filken Shepherdefs, that follows his Pipe, as Rats did the Conjurers in Germany.

As for Epitbets, he always avoids thofe, that are near akin to the Senfe. Such matches are unlawful, and not fit to be made by a Cbrifian Poet; and therefore all his Care is to chufe out fuch, as will ferve, like a wooden Leg, to piece out a maim'd Verfe, that wants a Foot or two; and if they will but rhime now and then into the Bargain, or run upon a Letter, it is a Work of Supererrogation.

[^12]
112 A S MALL POET.

For Similitudes, he likes the hardeft and moft obfcure beft: For as Ladies wear black Patches, to make their Complexions feem fairer than they are; fo when an Illuftration is more obfcure than the Senfe that went before it, it muft of Neceflity make it appear clearer than it did : For Contraries are beit fet off with Contraries.

He has found out a Way to fave the Expence of much Wit and Senfe: For he will make lefs than fome have prodigally laid out upon five or fix Words ferve forty or fifty Lines. This is a thrifty Invention, and very eafy; and, if it were commonly known, would much increafe the Trade of Wit, and maintain a Mul-

[^13]titude of fmall Poets in conftant Employment. He has found out a new Sort of poetical Georgics, a Trick of fowing Wit like clover-grafs on barren Subjects, which would yield nothing before. This is very ufeful for the Times, wherein, fome Men fay, there is no Room left for new Invention. He will take three Grains of Wit like the Elixir, and projecting it upon the Iron-Age turn it immediately into GoldAll the Bufinefs of Mankind has prefently vanifhed, the whole World has kept Holiday; there has been no Men but Heroes and Poets, no Women but Nymphs and Shepherdeffes; Trees have born Fritters, and Rivers flowed Plum-Porrige.

We read that Virgil ufed to make fifty or fixty Verfes in a Morning, and afterwards reduce them to ten. This was an unthrifty Vanity, and argues him as well ignorant in the Hufbandry of his own Poetry, as Seneca fays he was in that of a Farm; for in plain Engli/h.

As Seneca Says be was in that of a farm.] Seneca in his 86th Epiftle finds feveral Faults with Virgil's Rules and Obfervations in Hufbandry, as they are delivered in his Georgics, and adds of him "Qui non quod veriffime, fed quid decentiffime diceretur, ad" fpexit; nec Agricolas docere voluit, fed legentes delectare."

> Vol. II.

II4 A SMALL POET.

it was no better than bringing a Noble to Ninepence. And as fuch Courfes brought the prodigal Son to eat with Hogs: So they did him to feed with Horfes, which were not much better Company, and may teach us to avoid doing the like. For certainly it is more noble to take four or five Grains of Senfe, and, like a Gold-Beater, hammer them into fo many Leaves as will fill a whole Book; than to write nothing but Epitomies, which many wife Men believe wili be the Bane and Calamity of Learning.

When he writes, he commonly fteers the Senfe of his Lines by the Rhime that is at the End of them, as Butchers do Calves by the Tail. For when he has made one Line, which is eafy enough ; and has found out fome fturdy hard Word, that will but rhime, he will hammer the Senfe upon it, like a Piece of hot Iron upon an Aavil, into what Form he pleafes.

There is no Art in the World fo rich in Terms as Poetry; a whole Dictionary is fcarce able to contain them: For there is hardly a Pond, a Sheep-walk, or a Gravel-pit in all Greece, but the antient Name of it is become a Term of Art in Poetry. By this means fmall Poets have fuch a Stock of able hard Words lying by them, as Dryades, Hamadryales, Aonides, Fauni, Nympha, Sylvani, $\mathcal{B}^{3}$. that fignify nothing at all; and fuch a World of pedantic Terms of the fame Kind, as may ferve to furnifh all the new Inventions and thorough-Reformations, that can happen between this and Plato's great Year.

[^14]
A SMALL POET.

When he writes he never propofes any Scope or Purpofe to himfelf, but gives his Genius all Freedom : For as he, that rides abroad for his Pleafure, can hardly be out of his Way; fo he that writes for his Pleafure, can feldom be befide his Subject. It is an ungrateful Thing to a noble Wit to be confined to any Thing To what Purpofe did the Antients feign Pega/ius to have Wings, if he mult be confined to the Road and Stages like a Pack-Horfe, or be forced to be obedient to Hedges and Ditches? There.
which relates to the Diftempers of Horfes, was employed in $A u$ guffus's Stables with great succefs, ard by that Means introduced himfelf into the Favour of that Priace. .

if A S M A L L POET.

fore he has no Refpect to Decorum and Propriety of Circumftance; for the Regard of Perfons, Times, and Places is a Reftraint too fervile to be impofed upon poetical Licence; like him that made Plato confefs $\mathfrak{F}$ fuenal to be a Philofopher, or Perfius, that calls the Atbenians 2 2irites.

For Metaphors, he ufes to chufe the hardeft, and moft far-fet that he can light upon-Thefe are the Jewels of Eloquence, and therefore the harder they are, the more precious they muft be.

He'll take a fcant Piece of coarfe Senfe, and ftretch it on the Tenterhooks of half a fcore Rhimes, until it crack that you may fee through it, and it rattle like a Drum-Head. When you fee his Verfes hanged up in Tobacco-Shops, you may fay, in defiance of the Proverb, that the zeeakeft does not always go to the Wall; for 'tis

Like bim that made Plato, &c.] Who this Blunder is to be fathered upon I cannot difcover; but that which he imputes to Perfius, and another of 7uvenal's, a Paffage of his own in a Part of his Profe Collections called Criticifms upon Books and Authors, will explain - Perfius, fays he, commits a very great Abfurdity, when laying the Scenc of his fourth Satyr in Greece, and bringing in Socrates reproving a young Statefman, he makes him call the Grosians Quifites.
well known the Lines are ftrong enough, and in that Senfe may juftly take the Wall of any, that have been written in our Language. He feldom makes a Confcience of his Rhimes; but will often take the Liberty to make preach rhime with Cbeat, Vote with Rogue, and Com-mittee-Man with Hang.

He'll make one Word of as many Joints, as the Tin-Pudding, that a Jugler pulls out of his Throat, and chops in again-What think you of glud-fum-flam-bafa-minantes? Some of the old Latin Poets bragged, that their Verfes were tougher than Brafs, and harder than Marble; what would they have done, if they had feen thefe? Verily they would have had more reafon to wifh themfelves an hundred Throats, than they then had, to pronounce them,

There are fome, that drive a Trade in writing in praife of other Writers, (like Rooks, 2uid deinde loguere, Quirites,

Hoc puto non jufum eft, illud male, rectius illud. Perf.S. 4.

[^15]
ı8 A S M A L L P O E T.

that bet on Gamefters Hands) not at all to celebrate the learned Author's Merits, as they would fhew, but their own Wits, of which he is but the Subject. The Letchery of this Vanity has fpawned more Writers than the civil Laze: For thofe, whofe Modefty muft not endure to hear their own Praifes fpoken, may yet publin of themfelves the moft notorious Vapours imaginable. For if the Privilege of Love be allowed-Dicere qua puduit, fcribere jufit Anor, why fhould it not be fo in SelfLove too? For if it be Wifdom to conceal our Imperfections, what is it to difcover our Virtues? It is not like, that Nature gave Men great Parts upon fuch Terms, as the Fairies ufe to give Money, to pinch and leave them if they fpeak of it. They fay-Praife is but the Sbadow of Virtue; and fure that Virtue is very foolifh, that is afraid of its own Shadow.

When he writes Anagrams, he ufes to lay the Outfides of his Verfes even (like a Brick-

In this be im:tates Ben Johnfon.] We are told in Ben. Fubnfon's Life, that he was intended for a Brick-layer, and worked for fome time at that Trade.

Benlowfe's Poetry.] As I never heard of any Poet of this Name, I take it for granted, that this is a cant Word for fome one that he did not chufe to name; and I think it not improbable that the Per-layer) by a Line of Rhime and Acroftic, and fill the Middle with Rubbifh-In this he imitates Ber. Fobnson, but in nothing elfe.

There was one, that lined a Hat-Cafe with a Paper of Benlorefés Poetry-Prymne bought it by Chance, and put a new Demi-Caftor into it. The firft Time he wore it he felt only a finging in his Head, which within two Days turned to a Vertigo-He was let Blood in the Ear by one of the State-Phyficians, and recovered; but before he went abroad he writ a Poem of Rocks and Seas, in a Stile fo proper and natural, that it was hard to determine, which was ruggeder.

There is no Feat of Activity, nor Gambol of Wit, that ever was performed by Man, from him that vaults on Pegafus, to him that tumbles through the Hoop of an Anagram, but Benlows has got the Maftery in it, whether it be high-rope Wit, or low-rope Wit. He fon meant was Sir Gobn Denbam. What fuggefted to me this Conjecture is Butler's avowed Sentiments of that Gentleman, and a Circumftance which follows in the next Paragraph, in which Benlows is faid to have been a Captain once, which coincides with the Hiftory of Sir Gobn, who in the Beginning of the civil War was employed in a military Capacity in the King's Service.

120 A S M A L L P O ET.
has all Sorts of Echoes, Rebus's, Cbronograms, &c. befides Carwitchets, Clenches, and QuibblesAs for Altars and Pyramids in Poetry, he has out-done all Men that Way; for he has made a Gridiron, and a Frying-Pan in Verfe, that, befide the Likenefs in Shape, the very Tone and Sound of the Words did perfectly reprefent the Noife, that is made by thofe Utenfils, fuch as the old Poet called fartago loquendi. When he was a Captain, he made all the Furniture of his Horfe, from the Bit to the Crupper, in beaten Poetry, every Verfe being fitted to the Proportion of the Thing, with a moral Allufion of the Senfe to the Thing; as the Bridle of Moderation, the Saddle of Content, and the Crupper of Conftancy; fo that the fame Thing was both Epigram and Emblem, even as a Mule is both Horfe and Afs.

Some Critics are of Opinion, that Poets ought to apply themfelves to the Imitation of Nature, and make a Confcience of digrefling from her; but he is none of thefe. The antient Magicians could charm down the Moon, and force Rivers back to their Springs by the [^16]Power of Poetry only; and the Moderns will undertake to turn the Infide of the Earth outward (like a Jugler's Pocket) and fhake the Cbaos out of it, make Nature Chew Tricks like an Ape, and the Stars run on Errands; but ftill it is by dint of Poetry. And if Poets can do fuch noble Feats, they were unwife to defcend to mean and vulgar : For where the rareft and moft common Things are of a Price (as they are all one to Poets) it argues Difeafe in Judgment not to chufe the moft curious. Henice fome infer, that the Account they give of things deferves no Regard, becaufe they never receive any Thing, as they find it, into their Compofitions, unlefs it agree both with the Meafure of their own Fancies, and the Meafure of their Lines, which can very feldom happen: And therefore when they give a Character of any Thing or Perfon, it does commonly bear no more Proportion to the Subject, than the Fifhes and Ships in a Map do to the Scale. But let fuch know, that Poets, as well as Kings, ought rather to confider what is fit for them to give, than others to receive; that they are fain to have regard to the Exchange of Language, and

> Cum ro:dcas, quarifne unde.brec fartago loquendi > Perf. Sat, I. V. 80.
write high or low, according as that runs: For in this Age, when the fmalleft Poet feldom goes below more the moft, it were a Shame for a greater and more noble Poet not to out-throw that cut a Bar.

There was a Tobacco-Man, that wrapped Spanifb Tobacco in a Paper of Verfes, which Benlores had written againft the Pope, which by a natural Antipathy, that his Wit has to any Thing that's Catholic, fpoiled the Tobacco; for it prefentiy turned Mundungus. This Author will take an Englifb Word, and, like the Frencbman, that fwallowed Water and fit it out Wine, with a little Heaving and Straining would turn it immediately into Latin, as plunderat ille Donos-Mille Hocopokiana, and a thoufand fuch.

There was a young Practitioner in Poetry, that found there was no good to be done without a Miftrefs: For he, that writes of Love before he hath tried it, doth but travel by the Map; and he, that makes Love without a Dame, does like a Gamefter, that plays for [^17]Nothing. He thought it convenient therefore, firft to furnifh himfelf with a Name for his Miftrefs beforehand, that he might not be to feek, when his Merit or good Fortune fhould beftow her upon him: for every Poet is his miftreffe's Godfather, and gives her a new Name, like a Nun that takes Orders. He was very curious to fit himfelf with a handfome Word of a tunable Sound; but could light upon none, that fome Poet or other had not made ufe of before. He was therefore forced to fall to coining, and was feveral Months before he could light on one, that pleafed him perfectly. But after he had overcome that Difficulty, he found a greater remaining, to get a Lady to own him. He accofted fome of all Sorts, and gave them to underitand, both in Profe and Verfe, how incomparably happy it was in his Power to make his Miftref's, but could never convert any of them. At length he was fain to make his Landrefs fupply that Place as a Proxy, until his good Fortune, or fomebody of better Quality would be more kind to him, which after a while he neither hoped nor cared for; for how mean foever her Condition was before, when he had once pretended to her, fhe was fure to be a Nymph and a Goddefs. For what greater Honour can a Woman be capable of, than to be tranflated into precious Stones and Stars? No Herald in the World can go higher. Befides he found no Man can ufe that Freedom of Hyperbole in the Character of a Perfon commonly known (as great Ladies are) which we can in defcribing one fo obfcure and unknown, that nobody can difprove him. For he, that writes, but one Sonnet upon any of the public Perfons, fhall be fure to have his Reader at every third Word cry out-What an Afs is this to call Spanifb paper and Cerufe Lilies and Rofes, or claps In-fuences-To fay, the Graces are her waiting Women, when they are known to be no better than her Bawdes-that Day breaks from ber Eyes, when the looks afquint-Or that ber Breath perfumes the Arabian Winds, when the puffs Tobacco?

124 A SMALL POET.

It is no mean Art to improve a Language, and find out Words, that are not only removed from common ufe, but rich in Confonants, the Nerves and Sinews of Speech, to raife a

[^18]
A S MALL POET.

foft and feeble Language like ours to the Pitch of High-Dutch, as he did, that writ-

Arts rattling Forefkins Sbrilling Bagpipes quell.

This is not only the moft elegant, but moft politic Way of Writing, that a Poet can ufe; for I know no Defence like it to preferve a Poem from the Torture of thofe that lifp and ftammer. He that wants Teeth may as well venture upon a Piece of tough horny Brawn as fuch a Line, for he will look like an Afs eating Thiftles.

He never begins a Work without an Invocation of his Mufe; for it is not fit that fhe fhould appear in public, to fhew her Skill before fhe is entreated, as Gentlewomen do not ufe to fing, until they are applied to, and often defired.

I fhall not need to fay any Thing of the Excellence of Poetry, fince it has been already performed by many excellent Perfons, among whom fome have lately undertaken to prove, that the civil Government cannot poffibly fubfift without it, which, for my Part, I believe to be true

[^19]126 A S M A L L P O ET.
in a poetical Senfe, and more probable to be received of it, than thofe ftrange Feats of building Walls, and making Trees dance, which Antiquity afcribes to Verfe. And though Pbilofophers are of a contrary Opinion, and will not allow Poets fit to live in a Commonwealth, their Partiality is plainer than their Reafons; for they have no other Way to pretend to this Prerogative themfelves, as they do, but by removing Poets, whom they know to have a fairer Title; and this they do fo unjuftly, that Plato, who firft banifhed Poets his Republic, forgot that that very Commonwealth was poetical. I fhall fay nothing to them, but only defire the World to confider, how happily it is like to be governed by thofe, that are at fo perpetual a civil War among themfelves, that if we fhould fubmit ourfelves to their own Refolution of this Queftion, and be content to allow them only fit to rule if they could but conclude it fo themfelves, they would never agree upon itMean while there is no lefs Certainty and Agreement in Poetry than the Mathematics; for they all fubmit to the fame Rules without Difpute or Controverfy. But whofoever fhall pleafe to look into the Records of Antiquity fhall find their Title fo unqueftioned, that the greateft Princes

A S M A L L P O ET.

in the whole World have been glad to derive their Pedigrees, and their Power too, from Poets. Alexander the great had no wifer a Way to fecure that Empire to himfelf by Rigbt, which he had gotten by Force, then by declaring himfelf the Son of Jupiter; and who was Fupiter but the Son of a Poet? So Cafar and all Rome was tranfported with Joy, when a Poet made Fupiter his Colleague in the Empire; and when $\mathfrak{j} u p i t e r$ governed, what did the Poets, that governed Jupiter ?

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}128\end{array}\right]$

A

P H I L O S O P H E R

SEATS himfelf as Spectator and Critic on the great Theater of the World, and gives Sentence on the Plots, Language, and Action of whatfoever he fees reprefented, according to his own Fancy. He will pretend to know what is done behind the Scene, but fo feldom is in the Right, that he difcovers nothing more than his own Miftakes. When his Profeffion was in Credit in the World, and Money was to be gotten by it, it divided itfelf into Multitudes of Sects, that maintained themfelves and their Opinions by fierce and hot Contefts with one another; but fince the Trade decayed and would not turn to Account, they all fell of themfelves, and now the World is fo unconcerned in their Controverfies, that three Reformado Sects joined in one, like Epi-

[^20]
A PHILOSOPHER.

curo-Gafendo-Charltoniana, will not ferve tomaintain one Pedant. He makes his Hypothefes himfelf, as a Taylor does a Doublet without Meafure, no Matter whether they fit Na ture, he can make Nature fit them, and, whether they are too ftrait or wide, pinch or ftuff out the Body accordingly. He judges of the Works of Nature juit as the Rabble do of State-Affairs: They fee things done, and every Man according to his Capacity gueffes at the Reafons of them, but knowing nothing of the Arcana or fecret Movements of either, they feidom or never are in the Right; howfoever they pleafe themfelves, and fome others, with their Fancies, and the further they are oft Truth, the more confident they are they are near it ; as thofe, that are out of their Way, believe, the further they have gone, they are the nearer their Journey's End, when they are furtheft of all from it. He is confident of inimaterial Subftances, and his Reafons are very pertinent, that is, fubfantial as he thinks, and immaterial as others do. Heretofore his Beard was the Badge of his Profeffion, and the Length Phyfiologia Epicuro-Gaffendo-Charltoniana. Or a Fabrick of $n^{n}$ itural Science erected upon the moft ancient Hypothefis if Atsms. Lond. 1653. Fol.

Vol. II.
K

130 A PHILOSOPHER. of that in all his Polemics was ever accounted the Length of his Weapon; but when the Trade fell, that fell too. In Lucius's time they were commonly called Beard-Wearers; for all the Strength of their Wits lay in their Beards, as Sampfon's did in his Locks: But fince the World began to fee the Vanity of that Hairbrained Cheat, they left it off, to fave their Credit.

[ 131 ]

A

F A N T A $\quad$ S T I C

I$S$ one that wears his Feather on the Infide of his Head. His Brain is like Quickfilver, apt to receive any Impreffion, but retain none. His Mind is made of changeable Stuff, that alters Colour with every Motion towards the Light. He is a Cormorant, that has but one Gut, devours every Thing greedily, but it runs through him immediately. He does not know fo much as what he would be, and yet would be every Thing he knows. He is like a PaperLanthorn, that turns with the Smoak of a Candle. He wears his Cloaths, as the antient Laws of the Land have provided, according to his Quality, that he may be known what he is by them; and it is as eafy to decipher him by his Habit as a Pudding. He is rigg'd with Ribbon, and his Garniture is his Tackle;

132 A F A N TAS T I C.
all the reft of him is Hull. He is fure to be the earlieft in the Fafhion, and lays out for it like the firft Peafe and Cherries. He is as proud of leading a Fafhion, as others are of a Faction, and glories as much to be in the Head of a Mode, as a Soldier does to be in the Head of an Army. He is admirably fkilful in the Mathematics of Cloaths; and can tell, at the firft View, whether they have the right Symmetry. He alters his Gate with the Times, and has not a Motion of his Body, that (like a Dottrel) he does not borrow from fomebody elfe. He exercifes his Limbs, like the Pike and Mufket, and all his Poftures are prac-tifed-Take him all together, and he is nothing but a Tranflation, Word for Word, out of French, an Image caft in Plaifter of Paris, and a Puppet fent over for others to drefs themfelves by. He fpeaks French, as Pedants do Latin, to fhew his Breeding; and moft naturally, where he is leaft underftood. All his non-Na. turals, on which his Health and Difeafes depend, are file novo. French is his Holiday-Language, that he wears for his Pleafure and Ornament, and ufes Englifh only for his Bufinefs and neceffary Occafions. He is like a $S$ cotchman, though he is boin a Subject of his own

A FANTASTIC.

Nation, he carries a French faction within him.

He is never quiet, but fits as the Wind is faid to do, when it is moft in Motion. His Head is as full of Maggots as a Paftoral Poet's Flock. He was begotten, like one of Pliny's Portuguefe Horfes, by the Wind-The Truth is he ought not taliave been reared ; for being calved in the Increafe of the Moon, his Head is troubled with a - N. B. The laft Word not legible.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}134 & ]\end{array}\right.$

A

MELANCHOLY MAN

IS one, that keeps the worft Company in the World, that is, his own; and tho' he be always falling out and quarrelling with himfelf, yet he has not power to endure any other Converfation. His Head is haunted, like a Houfe, with evil Spirits and Apparitions, that terrify and fright him out of himfelf, till he ftands empty and forfaken. His Sleeps and his Wakings are fo much the fame, that he knows not how to diftinguifh them, and many times when he dreams, he believes he is broad awake and fees Vifions; The Fumes and Vapours that rife from his Spleen and Hypocondries have fo fmutched and fullied his Brain (like a Room that fmoaks) that his Underftanding is blear-ey'd, and has no right Perception of any Thing. His Soul lives in his Body, like a Mole in the Earth, that labours in the Dark, and cafts up Doubts and Scruples of his own Imaginations, to make that rugged and uneafy, that was plain and open before. His Brain is fo cracked, that he fancies himfelf to be Glafs, and is afraid that every Thing he comes near fhould break him in Pieces. Whatfoever makes an Impreflion in his Imagination works it felf in like a Screw, and the more he turns and winds it, the deeper it fticks, till it is never to be got out again. The Temper of his Brain being earthy, cold, and dry, is apt to breed Worms, that fink fo deep into it, no Medicine in Art or Nature is able to reach them. He leads his Life, as one leads a Dog in a Slip that will not follow, but is dragged along until he is almoft hanged, as he has it often under Confideration to treat himfelf in convenient Time and Place, if he can but catch himfelf alone. After a long and mortal Feud between his inward and his outward Man, they at length agree to meet without Seconds, and decide the Quarrel, in which the one drops, and the other flinks out of the Way, and makes his Efcape into fome foreign World, from whence it is never after heard of. He converfes with nothing fo much as his own Imagination, which being apt to mifreprefent Things to him, K 4

136 A MELANCHOLY MAN.

makes him believe, that it is fomething elfe than it is, and that he holds Intelligence with Spirits, that reveal whatfoever he fancies to him, as the antient rude People, that firft heard their own Voices repeated by Echoes in the Woods, concluded it muft proceed from fome invifible Inhabitants of thofe folitary Places, which they after believed to be Gods, and called them Sylvans, Fauns, and Dryads. He makes the Infirmity of his Temper pafs for Revelations, as Mabomet did by his falling Sicknefs, and infpires himfelf with the Wind of his own Hypocondries. He laments, like Heraclitus the Maudlin Philofopher, at other Men's Mirth, and takes Pleafure in nothing but his own un-fober Sadnefs. His Mind is full of Thoughts, but they are all empty, like a Neft of Boxes. He fleeps little, but dreams much, and foundeft when he is waking. He fees Vifions further off than a fecond-fighted Man in Scotland, and dreams upon a hard Point with admirable Judgment. He is juft fo much worfe than a Madman, as he is below him in Degree of Frenzy ; for among Madmen the moft mad govern all the reft, and receive a natural Obedience from their Inferiors.

[ 137 d

A N

H A R A N G U E R

IS one, that is fo delighted with the fweet Sound of his own Tongue, that William Prynne will fooner lend an Ear, than he, to any Thing elfe. His Meafure of Talk is till his Wind is fpent; and then he is not filenced, but becalmed. His Ears have catched the Itch of his Tongue, and though he fcratch them, like a Beart with his Hoof, he finds a Pleafure in it. A filenced Minifter, has more Mercy on the Government in a fecure Conventicle, than he has on the Company, that he is in. He fhakes a Man by the Ear, as a Dog does a Pig, and never loofes his Hold, till he has tired himfelf, as well as his Patient. He does not talk to a Man, but attack him, and whomfoever he can get into his Hands he lays violent Language on. If he can he will run a Man up againft a Wall, and hold him at a ## 138 AN $\mathrm{H}_{0}$ ARANGUER.

Bay by the Buttons, which he handles as bad as he does his Perfon, or the Bufinefs he treats upon. When he finds him begin to fink, he holds him by the Cloaths, and feels him as a Butcher does a Calf, before he kills him. He is a walking Pillory, and crucifies more Ears than a dozen ftanding ones. He will hold any Argument rather than his Tongue, and maintain both fides at his own Charge; for he will tell you what you will fay, though, perhaps, he does not intend to give you leave. He lugs Men by the Ears, as they correct Children in Scotland, and will make them tingle, while he talks with them, as fome fay they will do, when a Man is talked of in his Abfence. When he talks to a Man, he comes up clofe to him, and like an old Soldier lets fly in his Face, or claps the Bore of his Piftol to his Ear, and whifpers aloud, that he may be fure not to mifs his Mark. His Tongue is always in Motion, tho' very feldom to the Purpofe, like a Barber's Sciffars, which are always fnipping, as well when they do not cut, as when they do. His Tongue is like a Bagpipe Drone, that has no Stop, but makes a continual ugly Noife, as long as he can fqueeze any Wind out of himfelf. He never leaves a Man until he has run him down, and then he winds a Death over him. A Sow-Gelder's Horn is not fo terrible to Dogs and Cats, as he is to all that know him. His Way of Argument is to talk all, and hear no Contradiction. Firft he gives his Antagonift the Length of his Wind, and then, let him make his Approaches if he can, he is fure to be beforehand with him. Of all diffolute Difeafes the Running of the Tongue is the worft, and the hardeft to be cured. If he happen at any time to be at a Stand, and any Man elfe begins to fpeak, he prefently drowns him with his Noife, as a Water-Dog makes a Duck dive: for when you think he has done he falls on, and lets fly again, like a Gun, that will difcharge nine Times with one Loading. He is a Rattlefnake, that with his Noife gives Men warning to avoid him, otherwife he will make them wifh they had. He is, like a Bell, good for nothing but to make a Noife. He is like common Fame, that fpeaks moft and knows leaft, Lord Brooks, or a Wildgoofe always cackling when he is upon the Wing. His Tongue is like any Kind of Carriage, the lefs Weight it bears, the fafter and eafier it goes. He is fo full of Words, that they run over, and are thrown away to no Purpofe; and fo empty of Things, or Senfe, that his Drynefs has made his Leaks fo wide, whatfoever is put in him runs out immediately. He is fo long in delivering himfelf, that thofe that hear him defire to be delivered too, or difpatched out of their Pain. He makes his Difcourfe the longer with often repeating to be fbort, and talks much of in fine, but never means to come near it.

140 AN HARANGUER.

[ 141 ]

A

POPISHPRIEST

IS one that takes the fame Courfe, that the Devil did in Paradife, he begins with the Woman. He defpifes all other Fanatics as Upftarts, and values himfelf upon his Antiquity. He is a Man-Midwife to the Soul, and is all his Life-time in this World deluding it to the next. Cbrift made St. Peter a Fifher of Men; but he believes it better to be a Fifher of Women, and fo becomes a Woman's Apoftle. His Profeffion is to difguife himfelf, which he does in Sheep's-Cloathing, that is, a Lay Habit ; but whether, as a Wolf, a Thief, or a Shepherd, is a great Queftion ; only this is certain, that he had rather have one Sheep out of another Man's Fold, than two out of his own. He gathers his Church as Fanatics do, yet defpifes them for it, and keeps his Flock always in Hurdles, to be removed at his Pleafure; and though their Souls be rotten or fcabby with

142 A POPISH PRIEST.
Hypocrify, the Fleece is fure to be found and orthodox. He tars their Confciences with Confeffion and Penance, but always keeps the Wool, that he pulls from the Sore, to himfelf. He never makes a Profelyte, but he converts him to his very Shirt, and turns his Pockets into the Bargain; for he does nothing unlefs his Purfe prove a good Catholic. He never gets within a Family, but he gets on the Top of it, and governs all down to the Bottom of the Cellar-He will not tolerate the Scullion unlefs he be orthodox, nor allow of the turning of the Spit, but in ordine ad Spiritualia. His Dominion is not founded in Grace, but Sin; for he keeps his Subjects in perfect Awe by being acquainted with their moft facred Iniquities, as Furvenal faid of the Greeks.

Scire volunt fecreta domus, atque inde timeri.
By this means he holds Intelligence with their own Confciences againft themfelves, and keeps their very Thoughts in Slavery; for Men commonly fear thofe that know any Evil of them, and out of Shame give Way to them. He is very cautious in venturing to attack any Man by Way of Converfion, whofe Weaknefs he-is not very well acquainted with; and like the

A POPISH PRIEST.

Fox, weighs his Goofe, before he will venture to carry him over a River. He fights with the Devil at his own Weapons, and ftrives to get ground on him with Frauds and Lies-Thefe he converts to pious Úfes. He makes his Prayers (the proper Bufinefs of the Mind) a Kind of Manufaoture, and vents them by Tale, rather than Weight ; and, while he is bufied in numbring them, forgets their Senfe and Meaning. He fets them up as Men do their Games at Picquet, for fear he fhould be mifreckoned; but never minds whether he plays fair or not. He fells Indulgences, like Lockier's Pills, with Directions how they are to be taken. He is but a Copyholder of the Catbolic Church, that claims by Cuftom. He believes the Pope's Chain is faftened to the Gates of Heaven, like King Harry's in the Privy-Gallery.

[ I 44 ]

A

T R A V E L L E R

I$S$ a Native of all Countries, and an Alien at Home. He flies from the Place where he was hatched, like a Wildgoofe, and prefers all others before it. He has no Quarrel to it, but becaufe he was born in it, and like a Baftard, he is afhamed of his Mother, becaufe the is of him. He is a Merchant, that makes Voyages into foreign Nations, to drive a Trade in Wifdom and Politics, and it is not for his Credit to have it thought, he has made an ill Return, which muft be, if he fhould allow of any of the Growth of his own Country. This makes him quack and blow up himfelf with Admiration of foreign Parts, and a generous Contempt of Home, that all Men may admire, at leaft, the means he has had of Improvement, and deplore their own Defects. His Obfervations are like a Sieve, that lets the finer Flour pafs, and retains only the Bran of Things;

A T R A V E L L E R: 145

for his whole Return of Wifdom proves to be but Affectation, a perifhable Commodity, which he will never be able to put off. He believes all Men's Wits are at a ftand, that fay at Home, and only thofe advanced, that travel ; as if Change of Pafture did make great Politi-. cians, as well as fat Calves. He pities the little Knowledge of Truth which thofe have, that have not feen the World abroad, forgetting, that at the fame time he tells us, how little Credit is to be given to his own Relations and thofe of others, that fpeak and write of their Travels. He has worn his own Language to Rags, and patched it up with Scraps and Ends of foreign-This ferves him for Wit ; for when he meets with any of hisforeign Acquaintances, all they fmatter paffes for Wit, and they applaud one another accordingly. He believes this Raggednefs of his Difcourfe a great Demonftration of the Improvement of his Knowledge ${ }^{3}$ as Inns-of-Court Men intimate their Proficiency in the Law by the Tatters of their Gowns: All the Wit he brought Home with him is like foreign Coin, of a bafer Alloy than our own; and fo will not pafs here without great Lofs. All noble Creatures, that are famous in any Vol. II. L one Country, degenerate by being tranfplanted ; and thofe of mean Value only improve-If it hold with Men, he falls among the Number of the latter, and his Improvements are little to his Credit. All he can fay for himfelf is, his Mind was fick of a Confumption, and change of Air has cured him : For all his other Improvements have only been to eat in . . . . and talk with thofe he did not underffand; to hold Intelligence with all Gazettes, and from the Sight of Statefmen in the Street unriddle the Intrigues of all their Councils, to make a wondrous Progrefs into Knowledge by riding with a Mefienger, and advance in Politics by mounting of a Mule, run through all Sorts of Learning in a Waggon, and found all Depths of Arts in a Felucca, ride poft into the Secrets of all States, and grow acquainted with their clofe Defigns in Inns and Hoftleries; for certainly there is great Virtue in Highways and Hedges to make an able Man, and a good Profpect cannot but let him fee far into Things.

146 A T R A V E L L E R:

[ 147 ]

A  C A $\quad$ T $\quad \mathrm{H} \quad \mathrm{O} \quad \mathrm{L} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{C}$

SA YS his Prayers often, but never prays, and worfhips the Crofs more than Cbrift. He prefers his Church merely for the Antiquity of it, and cares not how found or rotten it be, fo it be but old. He takes a liking to it as fome do to old Cheefe, only for the blue Rottennefs of it. If he had lived in the primitive Times he had never been a Cbriftion; for the Antiquity of the Pagan and Fewib Religion would have had the fame Power over him againft the Cbrifian, as the old Roman has againft the modern Reformation. The weaker Veffel he is, the better and more zealous Member he always proves of his Church; for Religion, like Wine, is not fo apt to leak in a leathern Boraccio as a great Calk, and is better preferved in a fmall Bottle ftopped with a light Cork, than a veffel of greater Capacity, where the Spirits being more and ftronger are the

$$
\text { L } 2
$$

148 A C A T H O L I C.

more apt to fret. He allows of all holy Cheats, and is content to be deluded in a true, orthodox, and infallible Way. He believes the Pope to be infallible, becaufe he has deceived all the World, but was never deceived himfelf, which was grown fo notorious, that nothing lefs than an Article of Faith in the Church could make a Plafter big enough for the Sore. His Faith is too big for his Charity, and too unwieldy to work Miracles; but is able to believe more than all the Saints in Heaven ever made. He worfhips Saints in Effigie, as Dutchmen hang abient Malefactors; and has fo weak a Memory, that he is apt to forget his Patrons, unlefs their Pictures prevent him. He loves to fee what he prays to, that he may not miftake one Saint for another ; and his Beads and Crucifix are the Tools of his Devotion, without which it can do nothing. Nothing ftaggers his Faith of the Pope's Infallibility fo much, as that he did not make away the Scriptures, when they were in his Power, rather than thofe that believed in them, which he knows not how to underftand to be no Error. The lefs he underftands of his Religion, the more violent he is in it, which, being the perpetual Condition of all thofe that are deluded, is a great Argument that he is miftaken. His Religion is of no Force without Ceremonies, like a Loadftone that draws a greater Weight through a Piece of Iron, than when it is naked of it felf. His Prayers are a kind of Crambe that ufed to kill Schoolmafters; and he values them by Number, not Weight.

A C A T H O L I C. 149

[ 150 ]

A  C URIOUS M A N

VALUES things not by their Ufe or Worth, but Scarcity. He is very tender and fcrupulous of his Humour, as Fanatics are of their Confciences, and both for the moft part in Trifles. He cares not how unufeful any Thing be, fo it be but unufual and rare. He collects all the Curiofities he can light upon in Art or Nature, not to inform his own Judgment, but to catch the Admiration of others, which he believes he has a Right to, becaufe the Rarities are his own. That which other Men neglect he believes they overfee, and ftores up Trifles as rare Difcoveries, at leaft of his own Wit and Sagacity. He admires fubtleties above all Things, becaufe the more fubtle they are, the nearer they are to nothing; and values no Art but that which is .pun fo

A CURIOUS MAN. ${ }^{\text {I }} \mathrm{F}$

thin, that it is of no Ufe at all. He had rather have an iron Chain hung about the Neck of a Flea, than an Alderman's of Gold, and Homen's Iliads in a Nuthel than Alexander's Cabinet. He had rather have the twelve Apoftles on a Cherry-Stone, than thole on St. Peter's Portico, and would willingly fell Cbrif again for that numerical Piece of Coin, that Judas took for him. His perpetual Dotage upon Curiofities at length renders him one of them, and he flews himfelf as none of the meanest of his Rarities. He fo much affects singulacity, that rather than follow the Fafhion, that is unfed by the reft of the World, he will wear diffenting Cloaths with odd fantaftic Devices to diftinguifh himfelf from others, like Marks feet upon Cattle. He cares not what Pains he throws away upon the meanef Trifle, fo it be but ftrange, while forme pity, and others laugh at his ill-employed Induftry, He is one of thole, that valued Epictetus's Lamp above the excellent Book he writ by it. If he be a Bookman he fiends all his Time and Study upon Things that are never to be known. The Pbilofopher's Stone and universal Medicine cannot

$$
\mathrm{L}_{4}
$$

- 52 A C URIOUS MAN.

 poflibly mifs him, though he is fure to do them: He is wonderfully taken with abftrufe Knowledge, and had rather hand to Truth with a Pair of Tongs wrapt up in Myfteries and Hieroglyphics, than touch it with his Hands, or fee it plainly demonftrated to his Senfes.
[ 153 ]

A
$\begin{array}{llllll}\mathrm{R} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{N} & \mathrm{T} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{R}\end{array}$

IS a Fanatic Hector, that has found out by a very ftrange Way of new Light, how to transform all the Devils into Andels of Ligbt; for he believes all Religion confifts in Loofenefs, and that Sin and Vice is the robole Duty of Man. He puts off the old Man, but puts it on again upon the new one, and makes his Pagan Vices ferve to preferve his Cbrifian Virtues from wearing out; for if he fhould ufe his Piety and Devotion always it would hold out but a little while. He is loth that Iniquity and Vice fhould be thrown away, as long as there may be good. Ufe of it; for if that, which is wickedly gotten, may be difpofed to pious Ufes, why fhould not Wickednefs itfelf as well? He believes himfelf Shot-free againft all the Attempts of the Devil, the World, and the Flefb, and therefore is not afraid to attack them in their own Quarters, and encounter them at their own Weapons.

154 A $R$ A $N$ T E R.

For as ftrong Bodies may freely venture to do and fuffer that, without any Hurt to themfelves, which would deftroy thofe that are feeble: So a Saint, that is ftrong in Grace, may boldly engage himfelf in thofe great Sins and Iniquities, that would eafily damn a weak Brother, and yet come off never the worfe. He believes Deeds of Darknefs to be only thofe Sins that are committed in private, not thofe that are acted openly and owned. He is but an Hypocrite turned the wrong Side outward; for, as the one wears his Vices within, and the other without, fo when they are counterchanged the Ranter becomes an Hypocrite, and the Hypoorite an able Ranter. His Church is the Devil's Chappel; for it agrees exactly both in Doctrine and Difcipline with the beft reformed Baudy-Houfes. He is a Monfter produced by the Madnefs of this latter Age; but, if it had been his Fate to have been whelped in old Rome he had pait for a Prodigy, and been received among raining of Stones and the fpeaking of Bulls, and would have put a ftop to all public Affairs, until he had been expiated, Nero cloathed Cbrifians in the Skins of wild, Beafts; but he wraps wild Beafts in the Skins of Cbriftians.

[ 155 ]

A  CORRUPT JUDGE

PASSES Judgment as a Gamefter does falfe Dice. The firft Thing he takes is his Oath and his Commiffion, and afterwards the ftrongeft Side and Bribes. He gives Judgment, as the Council at the Bar are faid to give Advice, when they are paid for it. He wraps himfelf warm in Furs, that the cold Air may not ftrike his Confcience inward. He is never an upright Judge, but when he is weary of fitting, and ftands for his Eafe. All the Ufe he makes of his Oath is to oppofe it againft his Prince, for whofe Service he firft took it, and to bind him with that, which he firft pretended to bind himfelf with; as if the King by imparting a little of his Power to him gave him a Title to all the reft, like thofe who holding a little Land in Capite render all the reft

I56 A CORRUPT JUDGE.
liable to the fame Tenure. As for that which concerns the People, he takes his Liberty to do what he pleafes; this he maintains with Canting, of which himfelf being the only Judge, he can give it what arbitrary Interpretation he pleafes; yet is a great Enemy to arbitrary Power, becaufe he would have no Body ufe it but himfelf. If he have Hopes of Preferment he makes all the Law run on the King's Side ; if not, it always takes part againft him; for as he was bred to make any Thing right or wrong between Man and Man, fo he can do between the King and his Subjects. He calls himfelf Capitalis, $\mathcal{E}^{c}$. which Word he never ufes but to Crimes of the higheft Nature. He ufurps unfufferable Tyranny over Words; for when he has enflaved and debafed them from their original Senfe, he makes them ferve againft themfelves to fupport him, and their own Abufe. He is as ftiff to Delinquents, and makes as harfh a Noife as a new Cart-wheel, until he is greafed, and then he turns about as eafily. He calls all neceffary and unavoidable Proceedings of State, without the punctual Formality of Law, arbitrary and illegal, but never confiders, that his own Interpretations of Law are more arbitrary, and, when he pleafes, illegal. He cannot be denied to be a very impartial Judge; for right or wrong are all one to him. He takes Bribes, as pious Men give Alms, with fo much Caution, that his right Hand never knows what his left receives.

A CORRUPT JUDGE. ${ }^{1} 57$

[ 158 ]

A N

A $\quad \mathrm{M} \quad \mathrm{O} \quad \mathrm{R} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{S} \quad \mathrm{T}$

$\mathrm{I}^{\mathrm{s}}$an Artificer, or Maker of Love, a fworn Servant to all Ladies, like an Officer in a Corporation. Though no one in particular will own any Title to him, yet he never fails, upon all Occafions, to offer his Services, and they as feldom to turn it back again untouched. He commits nothing with them, but himfelf to their good Graces; and they recommend him back again to his own, where he finds fo kind a Reception, that he wonders how he does fail of it every where elfe. His Paffion is as eafily fet on Fire as a Fart, and as foon out again. He is charged and primed with LovePowder like a Gun, and the leaft Sparkle of an Eye gives Fire to him, and off he goes, but feldom, or never, hits the Mark. He has common Places and Precedents of Repartees and Letters for all Occafions; and falls as readily into his Method of making love, as a Parfon does into his Form of Matrimony. He converfes, as Angels are faid to do, by Intuition, and expreffes himfelf by Sighs moft fignificantly. He follows his Vifits, as Men do their Bufinefs, and is very induftrious in waiting on the Ladies, where his Affairs lie; among which thofe of greateft Concernment are 2uefions and Commands, Purpofes, and other fuch received Forms of Wit and Converfation; in which he is fo deeply ftudied, that in all Queftions and Doubts, that arife, he is appealed to, and very learnedly declares, which was the moft true and primitive Way of proceeding in the pareft Times. For thefe Virtues he never fails of his Summons to all Balls, where he manages the Country-Dances with fingular Judgment, and is frequently an Affiftant at L'hombre; and thefe are all the Ufes they make of his Parts, befide the Sport they give themfelves in laughing at him, which he takes for fingular Favours, and interprets to his own Advantage, though it never goes further; for all his Employments being public, he is never admitted to any private Services, and they defpife him as not Woman's Meat: For he applies to too many to be trufted by any one; as Baftards by having many Fathers, have none at all. He goes often mounted in a Coach as a Convoy, to guard the Ladies, to take the Duft in Hyde-Park; where by his prudent Management of the Glafs Windows he fecures them from Beggars, and returns fraught with China-Oranges and Ballads. Thus he is but a Gentleman-Ufher General, and his Bufinefs is to carry one Lady's Services to another, and bring back the others in Exchange.

160 A N A M ORIS T.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}161\end{array}\right]$

A N

A S TROLOGER

IS one that expounds upon the Planets, and teaches to conftrue the Accidents by the due joining of Stars in Confruction. He talks with them by dumb Signs, and can tell what they mean by their twinckling, and fquinting upon one another, as well as they themfelves. He is a Spy upon the Stars, and can tell what they are doing, by the Company they keep, and the Houfes they frequent. They have no Power to do any Thing alone, until fo many meet, as will make a Quorum. He is Clerk of the Committee to them, and draws up all their Orders, that concern either public or private Affairs. He keeps all their Accompts for them, and fums them up, not by Debtor, but Creditor. alone, a more compendious Way. They do ill to make them have fo much Authopity over the Earth, which, perhaps, has as much as any one of them but the Sun, and as much Right to fit and vote in their Councils, as any other: But becaufe there are but feven Electors of the German Empire, they will allow of no more to difpofe of all other ; and moft foolifhly and unnaturally depofe their own Parent of its Inheritance; rather than acknowledge a Defect in their own Rules. Thefe Rules are all they have to fhew for their Title; and yet not one of them can tell whether thofe they had them from came honeftly by them. Virgil's Defcription of Fame, that reaches from Earth to the Stars, tam ficti pravique tenax, to carry Lies and Knavery, will ferve Aftrologers without any fenfible Variation. He is a FortuneSeller, a Retailer of Deftiny, and petty Chapman to the Planets. He cafts Nativities as Gamefters do falfe Dice, and by flurring and palming fextile, quartile, and trine, like fize, quater, trois, can throw what chance he pleafes. He fets a Figure, as Cheats do a Main at Hazard; and Gulls throw away their Money at it. He fetches the Grounds of his Art fo far off, as well from Reafon, as the Stars, that, like a Traveller, he is allowed to lye by Authority. And as Beggars, that have no Money themfelves, believe all others have, and beg of thofe, that have as little as themfelves: So the ignorant Rabble believe in him, though he has no more Reafon for what he profeffes, than they.
Vol. II.

M

162 AN ASTROLOGER.

AN ASTROLOGER.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}164\end{array}\right]$

A

$\begin{array}{llllll}\mathrm{L} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{W} & \mathrm{Y} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{R}\end{array}$

IS a Retailer of Juftice, that ufes falfe Lights, falle Weights, and falfe Meafures - He meafures Right and Wrong by his retaining Fee, and, like a French Duelift, engages on that Side that firft befpeaks him, tho' it be againft his own Brother, not becaufe it is right, but merely upon a Punctilio of Profit, which is better than Honour to him, becaufe Riches will buy Nobility, and Nobility nothing, as having no intrinfic Value. He fells his Opinion, and engages to maintain the Title againft all that claim under him, but no further. He puts it off upon his Word, which he believes himfelf not bound to make good, becaufe when he has parted with his Right to it, it is no longer his. He keeps no Juftice for his own Ufe,

[^21]
A L A W Y E R. 165

as being a Commodity of his own Growth, which he never buys, but only fells to others: and as no Man goes worfe fhod than the Shoemaker; fo no Man is more out of Juftice than he that gets his Living by it. He draws Bills, as Children do Lots at a Lottery, and is paid as much for Blanks as Prizes. He undoes a Man with the fame Privilege as a Doctor kills him, and is paid as well for it, as if he preferved him, in which he is very impartial, but in nothing elfe. He believes it no Fault in himfelf to err in Judgment, becaufe that part of the Law belongs to the Judge, and not to him. His beft Opinions and his worft are all of a Price, like good Wine and bad in a Tavern, in which he does not deal fo fairly as thofe, who, if they know what you are willing to beftow, can tell how to fit you accordingly. When his Law lies upon his Hands, he will afford a good Penyworth, and rather pettyfog and turn common Barreter, than be out of Employment. His Opinion is one Thing while it is his own, and another when it is paid for; for the Property being altered, the

[^22]166 A L A W Y E. R.
Cafe alters alfo. When his Council is not for his Client's Turn, he will never take it back again, though it be never the worfe, nor allow him any Thing for it, yet will fell the fame over and over again to as many as come to him for it. His Pride encreafes with his Practice, and the fuller of Bufinefs he is, like a Sack, the bigger he looks. He crouds to the Bar like a Pig through a Hedge; and his Gown is fortified with Flankers about the Shoulders, to guard his Ears from being galled with Elbows. He draws his Bills more extravagant and unconfcionable than a Taylor; for if you cut off two thirds in the Beginning, Middle, or End, that which is left will be more reafonable and nearer to Senfe than the whole, and yet he is paid for all : For when he draws up a Bufinefs, like a Captain that makes falfe Mufters, he produces as many loofe and idle Words as he can poffibly come by, until he has received for them, and then turns them off, and retains only thofe that are to the Purpofe-This he calls drawing of Breviates. All that appears of his Studies is in fhort Time converted into Wafte-Paper, Taylor's Meafures, and Heads for Children's Drums: He appears very violent againft the other Side, and rails to pleafe his Client, as they do Children, give me a Blow and I'll frike , bim, ab naugbty, $\mathcal{E}^{2}$ c.-This makes him feem very zealous for the good of his Client, and, though the Caufe go againft him, he lofes no Credit by it, efpecially if he fall foul on the Council of the other Side, which goes for no more among them than it does with thofe virtuous Perfons, that quarrel and fight in the Streets, to pick the Pockets of thofe that look on. He hangs Men's Eftates and Fortunes on the flighteft Curiofities and feebleft Niceties imaginable, and undoes them like the Story of breaking a Horfe's Back with a Feather, or finking a Ship with a fingle Drop of Water; as if Right and Wrong were only notional, and had no Relation at all to practice (which always requires more folid Foundations) or Reafon and Truth did wholly confift in the right Spelling of Letters, when, as the fubtler Things are, the nearer they are to nothing; fo the fubtler Words and Notions are, the nearer they are to Nonfenfe. He overruns $L a$ tin and Frencb with greater Barbarifm, than the Gotbs did Italy and France, and makes as mad a Confufion of Language by mixing both with Englifh. Nor does he ufe Englifh much M 4

A L A W Y E R. 167

168 A L A W Y E R.
better, for he clogs it fo with Words, that the Senfe becomes as thick as Puddle, and is utterly loft to thofe, that have not the Trick of fkipping over, where it is impertinent. He has but one Termination for all Latin Words, and that's a Dafh. He is very juft to the firft Syllables of Words, but always bobtails the laft, in which the Senfe moft of all confifts, like a Cheat, that does a Man all Right at the firf, that he may put a Trick upon him in the End. He is an Apprentice to the Law without a Mafter, is his own Pupil, and has no Tutor but himfelf, that is a Fool. He will fcrew and wreft Law as unmercifully as a Tumbler does his Body, to lick up Money with his Tongue. He is a Swi $/ s$, that profeffes mercenary Arms, will fight for him, that gives him beft Pay, and, like an Italian Bravo, will fall foul on any Man's Reputation, that he receives a retaining Fee againft. If he could bụt maintain his Opinions as well as they dohim, he were a very juft and righteous Man ; but when he has made his moft of it, he leaves it, like his Client, to fhift for itfelf. He fetches Money out of his Throat, like a Jugler : and as the Rabble in the Country value Gentlemen by their Houfekeeping and their Eating; fo is he fuppofed to have fo much Law as he has kept Commons, and the abler to deal with Clients by how much the more he has devoured of Inns o' Court Mutton; and it matters not, whether he keep his Study, fo he has but kept Commons. He never ends a Suit, but prunes it, that it may grow the fafter, and yield a greater Increafe of Strife. The Wifdom of the Law is to admit of all the petty, mean, real Injuftices in the World, to avoid imaginary poffible great ones, that may perhaps fall out. His Client finds the Scripture fulfilled in him, that it is better to part with a Coat too, than go to Law for a Cloke; for as the beft Lawes are made of the worft Manners, even fo are the beft Lawyers of the worft Men. He humms about Wefminfer-Hall, and returns Home with his Pockets, like a Bee with his Thighs laden ; and that which Horace fays of an Ant, Ore trabit quodcunque poteft, atque addit acervo, is true of him; for he gathers all his Heap with the Labour of his Mouth, rather than his Brain and Hands. He values himfelf, as a Carman does his Horfe, by the Money he gets, and looks down upon all that gain lefs as Scoundrels. The Law is like that double-formed ill-begotten Monlter, that was kept in an intricate Labyrinth, and fed with Men's Flefh; for it devours all that come within the Mazes of it, and have not a Clue to find the Way out again. He has as little Kindnefs for the Statute Law, as Catbolics have for the Scripture, but adores the common Law as they do Tradition, and both for the very fame Reafon: For the ftatute Law being certain, written and defigned to reform and prevent Corruptions and Abufes in the Affairs of the World (as the Scriptures are in Matters of Religion) he finds it many Times a great Obitruction to the Advantage and Profit of his Practice ; whereas the common Law being unwritten, or written in an unknown Language, which very few underftand but himfelf, is the more pliable and eafy to ferve all his Purpofes, being utterly expofed to what Interpretation and Conftruction his Intereft and Occafions fhall at any Time incline him to give it ; and differs only from arbitrary Power in this, that the one gives no Account of itfelf at all, and the other fuch a one as is perhaps worfe than none, that is implicit, and not to be under-ftood, or fubject to what Conftruction he pleafes to put upon it.

A L A W Y E R. $\quad 169$

[^23]
A. L A W Y E R. 171

Great Critics in a noverint univerf,
Know all Men by thefe Prefents how to curfe ye; Pedants of faid and forefaid, and both Frenches Pedlars, and Pokie, may thofe rev'rend Benches Y' afpire to be the Stocks, and may ye be No more call'd to the Bar, but Pillory ;
Thither in Triumph may ye backward ride,
To have your Ears moft juftly crucify'd,
And cut fo clofe, until there be not Leather
Enough to ftick a Pen in left of either ;
Then will your Confciences, your Ears, and Wit Be like Indentures Tripartite cut fit:
May your Horns multiply, and grow as great As that which does blow Grace before your Meat :
May Varlets be your Barbers now, and do The fame to you, they have been done unto ; That's Law and Gofpel too, may it prove true, Then they fhall do Pump-Juftice upon you; And when y' are fhav'd and powder'd you fhall fall Thrown o'er the Bar, as they did o'er the Wall, though I don't find, that our Dictionary-writers ever give it that Signification.

172 A L A W Y E R.

Never to rife again, unlefs it be
To hold your Hands up for your Roguery;
And when you do fo, may they be no lefs
Sear'd by the Hangman, than your Confciences :
May your Gowns fwarm, until you can determine
The Strife no more between yourfelves and Vermin,
Than you have done between your Clients purfes-
Now kneel, and take the laft and worfe of curfes-May you be bonef, woben it is too late, That is, undone the only Way you bate.

[ 173 ]

A N

$\begin{array}{llllll}\mathrm{H} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{R} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{L} & \mathrm{D}\end{array}$

CALLS himfelf a King, becaufe he has Power and Authority to bang, drawe, and quarter Arms; for affuming a Jurifdiction over the diftributive Juftice of Titles of Honour, as far as Words extend, he gives himfelf as great a Latitude that Way, as other Magiftrates ufe to do, where they have Authority, and would enlarge it as far as they can. 'Tis true he can make no Lords nor Knights of himfelf, but as many Squires and Gentlemen as he pleafes, and adopt them into what Family they have a Mind. His Dominions abound with all Sorts of Cattle, Fifh, and Fowl, and all manner of Manufactures, befides whole Fields of Gold and Silver, which he magnificently beftows upon his Followers, or fells as cheap as Lands in Famaica. The Language they ufe is barbarous, as being but a Dialect of Pedlar's French, or the Egyptian, though of a loftier Sound, and in the Propriety affecting Brevity, as the other does Verbofity. His Bufinefs is like that of all the Schools, to make plain Things hard with perplexed Methods and infignificant Terms, and then appear learned in making them plain again. He profeffes Arms not for ufe, but Ornament only, and yet makes the bafeft Things in the World, as Dogs-Turds and Women's Spindles, Weapons of good and worfhipful Bearings. He is wifer than the Fellow that fold his Afs; but kept the Shadow for his own Ufe; for he fells only the Shadow (that is the Picture) and keeps the Afs himfelf. He makes Pedigrees as 'Pothecaries do Medicines, when they put in one Ingredient for another that they have not by them : by this means he often makes inceftuous Matches, and caufes the Son to marry the Mother. His chief Province is at Funerals, where he commands in chief, marfhals the trifitica irritamenta, and like a Gentleman-Sewer to the Worms ferves up the Feaft with all punctual Formality. He will join as many Shields together as would make a Roman Teftudo, or Macedonian Phalanx, to fortify the Nobility of a new made Lord, that will pay for the imprefting of them, and allow him Coat and Conduct Money. He is a kind of a Necromancer, and can raife the Dead out of their Graves, to make them marry and beget thofe they never heard of in their Life-time. His Coat is like the King of Spain's Dominions all Skirts; and hangs as loofe about him ; and his Neck is the Wafte, like the Picture of Nobody with his Breeches faftened to his Collar. He will fell the Head or a fingle Joint of a Beaft or Fowl as dear as the whole Body, like a Pig's Head in Bartlemero-Fair, and after put off the reft to his Cuftomers at the fame Rate. His Arms being utterly out of Ufe in War, fince Guns came up, have been tranflated to Difhes and Cups, as the Ancients ufed their precious Stones according to the Poet-Gemmas ad pocula transfert a Gladiis, $\mathcal{F}^{\circ}$. and fince are like to decay every Day more and more ; for fince he gave Citizens Coats of Arms, Gentlemen have made bold to take their Letters of Mark by way of Reprifal. The Hangman has a Receipt to mar all his Work in a Moment; for by nailing the wrong End of a Scutcheon upwards upon a Gibbet, ail the Honour and Gentility extinguifhes of itfelf, like a Candle that's held with the Flame down_ wards. Other Arms are made for the filling ${ }_{176}$ A $N$ H E R A L D. of Blood; but his only purify and cleanfe it like Scurvy-grafs; for a fmall Dofe taken by his Prefcription will refine that which is as bafe and grofs as Bull's Blood (which the Athenians ufed to poifon withal) to any Degree of Purity.

174 A N H E R A L D.

A N H E R A L D.

[ 177 ]

A

LATITUDINARIAN

GIVES himfelf the more Scope, becaufe he that has the largeft Confcience is moft like, in all Probability, to keep within Compafs of it: for one that is ftrait is uneafy, apt to pinch, and will not do half the Service that a wider will endure. He does not greatly care to live within the Pale of the Church, but had rather have the Church live within his Pale. He believes the Way to Heaven is never the better for being ftrait, and if it could be made wider it would be much more convenient ; for there being fo many that undertake that Journey, how few foever arrive at the End of it, they muft of Neceflity juftle, croud and fall foul upon one another, as we find they do, and therefore he thinks it beft, both for himfelf and the Eafe of his FellowTravellers, to get out of the common Road, and leave the more Room for thofe that cannot leap Ditches, and if they could, when they are once out, do not know how to get in again fo well as he does. He is but a Kind of a modeft Ranter, that believes Cbrifitian Liberty and natural Liberty may very well confift together ; for being Things of the fame Kind there can be no poffible Difference between them, but only in Degreee, which can never caufe the one to deftroy the other; and natural Liberty being of the elder Houfe, if there be any Precedency, ought to have a Right to it. He believes Obedience is nothing but a civil Complacence, that obliges a Man no further than faying-I am your bumble Servant; and that Uniformity is too like a Thing made and complotted to be true. He believes Laws are made to punifh thofe only, that do not underftand how to break them difcreetly, and to do no Man right, that has not Money or Intereft to compel them to it ; that like foolifh Magiftrates require Refpect in public, but will endure all Manner of Affronts in private, efpecially among Friends.
Vol. II,

178 A LATITUDINARIAN.

[ 179 ]

A ## MATHEMATICIAN

SHEW S as many Tricks on the Outfide of Body, as Pbilofopbers do on the Infide of it, and for the moft Part to as little Purpofe; the only Difference is, that the one begins in Nonfenfe and ends in Senfe, and the other quite contrary begins in Senfe and ends in Nonfenfe: For the Mathematician begins with Body abftract, which was never found in Na ture, and yet afterwards traces it to that which' is real and practical; and the Philofopher begins with Body as it is really in Nature, and afterwards wears it away with much handling into thin Subtilties that are merely notional. The Philofopher will not endure to hear of Body without Quantity, and yet afterwards gives it over, and has no Confideration of it any further : And the Mathematician will allow

$$
\mathrm{N}_{2}
$$

180 A MATHEMATICIAN.
of Being without Quantity, and yet afterwards confiders nothing elfe but Quantity. All the Figures he draws are no better, for the moft Part, than thofe in Rhetoric, that ferve only to call certain Rotines and Manners of Speech by infignificant Names, but teach nothing. His Art is only inftrumental, and like others of the fame Kind, when it outgrows its Ufe becomes mercly a Curiofity ; and the more it is fo, the more impertinent it proves; for Curiofities are impertinent to all Men but the Cu rious, and they to all the reft of the World. His Forefathers paft among the Ancients for Conjurers, and carried the Credit of all Inventions, becaufe they had the Luck to ftand by when they were found out, and cry'd balf's ours. For though the Mechanics have found out more excellert Things, than they have Wit enough to give names to, (though the greatert Part of their Wit lies that Way) yet they will boldly affume the Reputation of all to themfelves, though they had no Relation at all to the Inventions; as great Perfons ufe to claim kindred (though they cannot tell how it comes about) with their Inferiors when they thrive in the World. For certainly Geometry has no more right to lay Claim to the Inventions of

A MATHEMATICIAN. i8r

 the Mechanics than Grammar has to the original of Language, that was in Ufe long before it ; and when that Ufe and Cuftom had prevailed, fome Men by obferving the Conftruction, Frame, and Relations that Words have to one another in Speech drew them into Rules, and of thefe afterwards made an Art; and juft fo and no more did Geometry by the Dimenfions, Figures, and Proportions of Things that were done long before it was in being; nor does the prefent Ufe of one or the other extend further than this, to teach Men to fpeak, and write, and proportion things regularly, but not to contrive or defign at all. Mathematicians are the fame Things to Mechanics, as Markers in Tennis Courts are to Gamefters; and they that afcribe all Inventions to Mathematics are as wife as thofe that fay, no Man can play well that is not a good Marker; as if all the Skill of a Goldfmith lay in his Balance, or a Draper in his Yard; or that no Man can play on a Lute that is not a good Fiddle-Maker.When his Art was in its Infancy, and had by Obfervation found out the Courfe of the N 3

182 A MATHEMATICIAN.
Sun and Moon and their Eclipfes (though imperfectly) and could predict them, which the reft of the World were ignorant of, he went further, and would undertake upon that Account to foretel any Thing, as Liars that will make one Truth make Way for a hundred Lies. He believes his Art, or rather Science, to be wholly practical, when the greateft Part of it, and as he believes the beft, is merely contemplative, and paffes only among Friends to the Mathematics and no further, for which they flatter and applaud one another moft virtuoufly.

$\left[\begin{array}{lll}{[83}\end{array}\right]$

A N

EPIGRAMMATIST

IS a Poet of fmall Wares, whofe Mufe is fhort-winded, and quickly out of Breath. She flies like a Goofe, that is no fooner upon the Wing, but down again. He was originally one of thofe Authors, that ufed to write upon white Walls, from whence his Works being collected and put together pafs in the World, like fingle Money among thofe that deal in fmall Matters. His Wit is like Fire in a Flint, that is nothing while it is in, and nothing again as foon as it is out. He treats of all Things and Perfons that come in his Way, but like one that draws in little, much lefs than the Life.

His Bus'ness is $t$ inveigh and flatter
Like parcel Parafite and Satyr.

$$
\mathrm{N}_{4}
$$

184 A N EPIGRAMMATIST.

He is a Kind of Vagabond Writer, that is never out of his Way; for nothing is befide the Purpofe with him, that propofes none at all. His Works are like a running Banquet, that have much Variety but little of a Sort; for he deals in nothing but Scraps and Parcels like a Taylor's Broker. He does not write, but fet his Mark upon Things, and gives no Accompt in Words at length, but only in Figures. All his Wit reaches but to four Lines, or fix at the molt; and if he ever venture further it tires immediately like a Poft-Horfe, that will go no further than his wonted Stages. Nothing agrees fo naturally with his Fancy as Bawdery, which he difpenfes in fmall Pittances to continue his Reader ftill in an Appetite for more.

$\left[\begin{array}{lll}185\end{array}\right]$

A

V I R T U O S O

TS a Well-willer to the Mathematics - He perfues Knowledge rather out of Humour than Ingenuity, and endeavours rather to feem, than to be. He has nothing of Nature but an Irclination, which he ftrives to improve with Induftry ; but as no Art can make a Fountain run higher than its own Head; fo nothing can raife him above the Elevation of his own Pole. He feldom converfes but with Men of his own Tendency, and wherefoever he comes treats with all Men as fuch, for as Country-Gentlemen ufe to talk of their Dogs to thofe that hate Hunting, becaufe they love it themfelves; fo will he of his Arts and Sciences to thofe that neither know, nor care to know any Thing of them. His Induftry were admirable, if it did not attempt the greateft Difficulties with the feebleft Means : for he commonly flights any Thing. that is plain and eafy, how ufeful and ingenious

186 A V I R T U O S O.

foever, and bends all his Forces againft the hardeft and moft improbable, tho to no Purpofe if attained to; for neither knowing how to meafure his own Abilities, nor the Weight of what he attempts, he fpends his little Strength in vain, and grows only weaker by it-And as Men ufe to blind Horfes that draw in a Mill, his Ignorance of himfelf and his Undertakings makes him believe he has advanced, when he is no nearer to his End than when he fet out firft. The Bravery of Difficulties does fo dazzle his Eyes, that he profecutes them with as little Succefs, as the Taylor did his Amours to Queen Elizabeth. He differs from a Pedant, as Things do from Words; for he ufes the fame Affectation in his Operations and Experiments, as the other does in Language. He is a Haberdafher of fmall Arts and Sciences, and deals in as many feveral Operations as a baby-Artificer does in Engines. He will ferve well enough for an Index, to tell what is handled in the World, but no further. He is wonderfully delighted with Rarities, and they continue ftill fo to him, though he has fhown them a thoufand Times; for every new Admirer, that gapes upon them, fets him a gaping too. Next thefe he loves ftrange natural Hiftories; and as thofe, that read Romances, though they know them to be Fictions, are as much affected as if they were true, fo is he, and will make hard Shift to tempt himfelf to believe them firft to be poffible, and then he's fure to believe them to be true, forgetting that Belief upon Belief is falfe Heraldry. He keeps a Catalogue of the Names of all famous Men in any Profeffion, whom he often takes Occafion to mention as his very good Friends, and old Acquaintances. Nothing is more pedantic than to feem too much concerned about Wit or Knowledge, to talk much of it, and appear too critical in it. All he can poffibly arrive to is but like the Monkies dancing on the Rope, to make Men wonder, how 'tis poffible for Art to put Nature fo much out of her Play.

A V I R T U O S O.

His Learning is like thofe Letters on a Coach, where many being writ together no one appears plain. When the King happens to be at the Univerfity, and Degrees run like Wine in Conduits at public Triumphs, he is fure to have his Share; and though he be as free to chufe his Learning as his Faculty, yet like St. Aufin's Soul creando infunditur, infundendo creatur. Nero was the firft Emperour of his Calling, tho' it be not much for his Credit. He is like an Elephant that, though he cannot fwim, yet of all Creatures moft delights to walk along a River's Side; and as in Law, Things that appear not, and tbings that are not, are all one; fo he had rather not be than not appear. The Top of his Ambition is to have his Picture graved in Brafs, and publifhed upon Walls, if he has no Work of his own to face with it. His want of Judgment inclines him naturally to the moft extravagant Undertakings, like that of making old Dogs young, telling bow many Perfons there are in a Room by knocking at a Door, fopping up of Words in Bottles, &xc. He is like his Books, that contain much Knowledge, but know nothing themfelves. He is but an Index of Things and Words, that can direct where they are to be fpoken with, but no further. He appears a great Man among the ignorant, and like a Figure in Arithmetic, is fo much the more, as it fl ands before Ciphers that are nothing of themfelves. He calls himfelf an Antijocordift a Name unknown to former Ages, but fpawned by the Pedantry of the prefent. He delights moft in attempting Things beyond his

188  A VIRTUOSO.

A V I R T U O S O.

Reach, and the greater Diftance he fhoots at, the further he is fure to be off his Mark. He fhows his Parts, as Drawers do a Room at a Tavern, to entertain them at the Expence of their Time and Patience. He inverts the Moral of that Fable of him, that careffed his Dog for fawning and leaping up upon him, and beat his Afs for doing the fame Thing; for it is all one to him, whether he be applauded by an Afs, or a wifer Creature, fo he be but applauded.

[ 190 ]

\[

\]

IS one that has a Patent for his Wit, and underftands by Commiffion, in which his Wife and his Clerk are of the 2uorum. He is Judge of the Peace, but has nothing to do with it until it is broken; and then his Bufinefs is to patch it up again. His Occupation is to keep the Peace, but he makes it keep him; and lives upon the Scraps of it, as thofe he commits do on the common Bafket. The Conftable is his Factor, and the Jaylor the Keeper of his Warehoufe, and Rogues, Bawds; and Thieves his Goods. He calls taking of Many Strokes in this Character the Reader may find in that which Butler has drawn of his Counfellor and Jufice in Hudibras P. 3. C. 3 .

Pigs and Capons taking of Bail; and they pals with him for fubfantial Houfe-keepers. Of thefe he takes Security, that the Delinquent fhall anfwer it before the Seffions, that is before the Court fits next, otherwife Forfeiture of Recognizance is fure to rife up in Judgment. He binds Men over, as Highwaymen do, to unty their Purfes, and then leaves them to unbind themfelves again, or rather as Surgeons do, to let their Purfes Blood. He makes his Commiffion a Patent, that no Man fhall fet up any Sin without Licence from him. He knows no Virtue, but that of his Commiffion, for all his Bufinefs is with Vice, in which he is fo expert, that he can commit one Sin inftead of another, as Bribery for Bawdery, and Perjury for Breach of the Peace. He ufes great Care and Moderation in punifhing thofe, that offend regularly, by their Calling, as refidentiary Bawds, and incumbent Pimps, that pay Parifh DutiesShopkeepers, that ufe conftant falfe Weights and Meafures, thefe he rather prunes, that they may grow the better, than difables; but is very fevere to Hawkers and Interlopers, that commit Iniquity on the Bye. He interprets the Statutes, as Fanatics do the Scripture, by his own Spirit ; and is moft expert in the Cafes of light Bread, Highways, and getting of Bafs tards. His whole Authority is like a WelfhHook; for his Warrant is a Puller to ber, and his Mittimus a thruft-ber from ber. He examines bawdy Circumftances with fingular Attention, and files them up for the Entertainment of his Friends, and Improvement of the Wit of the Family. Whatfoever he is elfe, he is fure to be a Squire, and bears Arms the firft Day he bears Office; and has a more indubitate and apparent Title to reor $/ \mathrm{i} i$, than any other Perfon. If he be of the long Robe he is more bufy and pragmatical on the Bench, than a fecular Juftice ; and at the Seffions, by his Prerogative, gives the Charge, which puts him to the Expence of three Latin Sentences, and as many Texts of Scripture; the reft is all of Courfe. He fells good Behaviour, and makes thofe, that never had any, buy it of him at fo much a Dofe, which they are bound to take off in fix Months or longer, as their Occafions require, He is apt to miftake the Senfe of the Law, as when he fent a zealous Botcher to Prifon for Serwing Sedition, and committed a Mountebank for raijng the Market, becaufe he fet up his Bank in it. Much of his Bufinefs and Ability confifts in the diffributive Juftice of difpofing of Baftards, before they are born, to the right Proprietors, that no Parifh may be wronged, and forced to pay for more Fornication, than they have had Occafion for. Next this he does his Country fignal Service in the judicious and mature Legitimation of tipling Houfes, that the Subject be not impofed upon with illegal and arbitrary Ale. At the Seffions his Recognifances appear, or hide their Heads, according as his Wife and Clerk have found the Bill; for Delinquents, like Aldermen, that fine for't, are excufed, otherwife they muft ftand and bear Office in the Court, tho' it be but to be whipped, or fet in the Pillory. If he be of the 2 rorum he is a double Juftice, and ought, like a double Jugg, to hold as much as two fimple ones; but if he hap to be empty and out of Juftice in any Bufinefs, he is not at Home ; or not at Leifure, and fo the Matter is tranfmitted to the next in Capacity. His Confcience is never troubled for his own Sins, efpecially thofe of Commiffion (which he takes to be but the Privilege of his Place) for he finds it is Bufinefs enough for one Man, to have to do with thofe of others.

192 A J U S T I C E
VoL. II.

[ 194 ]

A  F A N A T I C.

SA IN T Paul was thought by Feffus to be mad with too much Learning; but the Fanatics of our Times are mad with too little. He choofes himfelf one of the Elect, and packs a Committee of his own Party to judge the twelve Tribes of Ifrael. The Apofles in the primitive Church worked Miracies to confirm and propagate their Doctrine; but he thinks to confirm his by working at his Trade. He affumes a Privilege to imprefs what Text of Scripture he pleafes for his own Ufe, and leaves thofe that make againft him for the Ufe of the Wicked. His Religion, that tends only to Facsion and Sedition, is neither fit for Peace nor War, but Times of a Condition between both; like the Sails of a Ship, that will not endure a a Storm, and are of no Ufe at all in a Calm. He believes it has enough of the primitive Chriftiañ, if it be bụt perfecuted as that was, no Matter for the Piety or Doctrine of it ; as if there were nothing required to prove the Truth of a Religion but the Punifhment of the Profeffors of it; like the old Mathematicians, that were never believed to be profoundly knowing in their Profeffion, until they had run through all Punifhments, and juft 'fcaped the Fork. He is all for fuffering for Religion, but nothing for acting; for he accounts good Works no better than Encroachments upon the Merits of free believing, and a good Life the moft troublefome and unthrifty Way to Heaven. He canonizès himfelf a Saint in his own Life-time, as the more fure and certain Way, and lefs troublefome to others. He outgrows Ordinances, as a 'Prentice that has ferved out his Time does his Indentures, and being a Freeman fuppofes himfelf at Liberty to fet up what'Religion he pleafes. He calls his own fuppofed Abilities Gifts, and difpofes of himfelf like a Foundation defigned to pious Ufes, although, like others of the fame Kind, they are always diverted to other Purpofes. He owes all his Gifts to his Ignorance, as Beggars do the Alms they receive to their Poverty. They are fuch as the Fairies are faid to drop in 196 A F A N A T I C.

A F A N A T I C. 195

Men's Shoes, and when they are difcovered to give them over and confer no more; for when his Gifts are difcovered they vanifh, and come to nothing. He is but a Puppet Saint, that moves he knows not how, and his Ignorance is the dull leaden Weight that puts all his Parts in Motion. His outward Man is a Saint, and his inward Man a Reprobate; for he carries his Vices in his Heart, and his Religion in his Face.

[ 197 ]

A N

I N TELLIGENCER

WOULD give a Peny for any Statefman's Thought at any Time. He travels abroad to guefs what Princes are defigning by feeing them at Church or Dinner; and will undertake to unriddle a Government at firft Sight, and tell what Plots fhe goes with, male or female ; and difcover, like a Mountebank, only by feeing the public Face of Affairs, what private Marks there are in the moft fecret Parts of the Body politic. He is fo ready at Reafons of State, that he has them, like a Leffon, by Rote: but as Charlatans make Difeafes fit their Medicines, and not their Medicines Difeafes; fo he makes all public Affairs conform to his own eftablifhed Reafon of State, and not his Reafon, though the Cafe alter ever fo much, comply with them. He thinks to obtain a great Infight into State-Affairs by obferving $\mathrm{O}_{3}$

198 A N INTELLIGENCER.

 only the outfide Pretences and Appearances of Things, which are feldom or never true; and may be refolved feveral Ways all equally probable; and therefore his Penetrations into thefe Matters are like the Penetrations of Cold into natural Bodies, without any Senfe of itfelf, or the Thing it works upon-For all his Difcoveries in the End amount only to Entries and Equipages, Addrefies, Audiences, and Vifits, with other fuch politic Speculations, as the Rabble in the Streets is wont to entertain itfelf rvithal. Neverthelefs he is very cautious not to omit his Cipher, though he writes nothing but what every one does, or may fafely know; for otherwife it would appear to be no Secret. He endeavours to reduce all his Politics into Maxims, as being moft eafily portable for a travelling Head, though, as they are for the moft Part of flight Matters, they are but, like Spirits drawn out of Water, infipid and good for nothing. His Letters are a Kind of Bills of Exchange, in which he draws News and Politics upon all his Correfpondents, who place it to Accompt, and draw it back again upon him; and though it be falfe, neither cheats the other, for it paffes between both for good and fufficient Pay. If he drives an inland Trade, he is Factor to certain remote Country Virtuofos, who finding themfelves unfatisfied with the Brevity of the Gazette defire to have Exceedings of News, befides their ordinary Commons. To furnifh thofe he frequents Clubs and CoffeeHoufes, the Markets of News, where he engroffes all he can light upon; and, if that do not prove fufficient, he is forced to add a Lye or two of his own making, which does him double Service ; for it does not only fupply his Occafions for the prefent, but furnifhes him with Matter to fill up Gaps the next Letter with retracting what he wrote before, and in the mean-time has ferved for as good News as the beft ; and, when the Novelty is over it is no Matter what becomes of it, for he is betteit paid for it than if it were true.
AN INTELLIGENCER。

[ 200 ]

A

P R O S E L I T E.

APrieft ftole him out of the Craddle, like the Fairies, and left a Fool and Changeling in his Place. He new dyes his Religion, and commonly into a fadder and darker Colour than it was before. He gives his Opinion the So-mer-Salt, and turns the wrong Side of it outwards. He does not mend his Manners, but botch them with Patches of another Stuff and Colour. Change of Religion being for the moft Part ufed by thofe, who underftand not why one Religion is better than another, is like changing of Money two Sixpences for a Shilling; both are of equal Value, but the Change is for Convenience or Humour. There is nothing more difficult than a Change of Religion for the better ; for as all Alterations in Judgment are derived from a precedent confeft. Error, that Error is more probably like to produce another, than any Thing of fo different a Nature as Truth. He impofes upon himfelf in believing the Infirmity of his Nature to be the Strength of his Judgment, and thinks he changes his Religion when he changes himfelf, and turns as naturally from one thing to another, as a Maggot does to a Fly. He is a Kind of Freebooty and Plunder, or one Head of Cattle driven by the Priefts of one Religion out of the Quarters of another; and they value him above two of their own: for befide the Glory of the Exploit they have a better Title to him, (as he that is conquered is more in the Power of him that fubdued him, than he that was born his Subject) and they expect a freer Submiffion from one that takes Quarter, than from thofe that were under Command before. His Weaknefs, or Ignorance, or both, are commonly the chief Caufes of his Converfion; for if he be a Man of a Profeffion, that has no Hopes to thrive upon the Accompt of mere Merit, he has no Way fo eafy and certain, as to betake himfelf to fome forbidden Church, where, for the common Caufe's Sake, he finds fo much brotherly Love and Kindnefs, that they will rather employ him than one of another Perfuafion though more fkilful; and he gains by turning and winding his Religion as Tradefmen do by their Stocks. The Prieft has commonly the very fame Defign upon him; for he that is not able to go to the Charges of his Converfion may live free enough from being attacked by any Side. He was troubled with a Vertigo in his Confcience, and nothing but Change of Religion, like Change of Air, could cure him. He is like a Sick-man, that can neither lye ftill in his Bed, nor turn himfelf but as he is helped by others. He is like a Revolter in an Army; and as Men of Honour and Commanders feldom prove fuch, but common Soldiers Men of mean Condition frequently to mend their Fortunes: So in Religion Clergymen, who are Commanders, feldom prevail upon one another, and, when they do, the Profelyte is ufually one, who had no Reputation among his own Party before, and after a little Trial finds as little among thofe, to whom he revolts.

202  A PROSELITE.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}203\end{array}\right]$

A
C $\quad \mathrm{L} \quad \mathrm{O} \quad \mathrm{W} \quad \mathrm{N}$

IS a Centaur, a Mixture of Man and Beaft, like a Monfter engendred by unnatural Copulation, a Crab engrafted on an Apple. He was neither made by Art, nor Nature, but in Spight of both, by evil Cuftom. His perpetual Converfation with Beafts has rendered him one of them, and he is among Men but a naturalized Brute. He appears by his Language, Genius and Behaviour to be an Alien to Mankind, a Foreigner to Humanity, and of fo oppofite a Genius, that'tis eafier to make a Spaniard a Frencbman, than to reduce him to Civility. He difdains every Man that he does not fear, and only refpects him, that has done him Hurt, or can do it. He is like Nebucbadnezzar after he had been a Month at Grafs, but will never return to be a Man again as he did, if he might; for he defpifes all Manner of Lives but his own, unlefs it be his Horfe's to whom he is but Valet de-Chambre. He never fhews himfelf humane or kind in any Thing, but when he pimps to his Cow, or makes a Match for his Mare; in all Things elfe he is furly and rugged, and does not love to be pleafed himfelf, which makes him hate thofe that do him any Good. He is a Stoic to all Paffions but Fear, Envy, and Malice; and hates to do any Good, though it coft him nothing. He abhors a Gentleman becaufe he is moft unlike himfelf, and repines as much at his Manner of Living, as if he maintained him. He murmurs at him as the Saints do at the Wicked, as if he kept his Right from him ; for he makes his Clownery a Sect, and damns all that are not of his Church. He manures the Earth like a Dunghill, but lets himfelf lye Fallow, for no Improvement will do good upon him. Cain was the firft of his Family, and he does his Endeavour not to degenerate from the original Churlifhnefs of his Anceftor. He that was fetched from the Plough to be made Dictator had not half his Pride and Infolence; nor Caligula's

A C L O W N. 205

Horfe, that was made Conful. All the worft Names that are given to Men are borrowed from him, as Villain, Deboy $\mathcal{F}_{2}$ Peafant, \&c. He wears his Cloaths like a Hide, and fhifts them no oftner than a Beaft does his Hair. He is a Beaft, that Gefner never thought of.

A  Q U I B B L E R

IS a Jugler of Words, that fhows Tricks with them, to make them appear what they were not meant for, and ferve two Senfes at once, like one that plays on two Ferws Trumps. He is a Fencer of Language, that falfifies his Blow, and hits where he did not aim. He has a foolifh Slight of Wit, that eatches at Words only, and lets the Senfe go, like the young Thief in the Farce, that took a Purfe, but gave the Owner his Money back again. He is fo well verfed in all Cafes of Quibble, that he knows when there will be a Blot upon a Word, as foon as it is out. He packs his Quibbles like a Stock of Cards, let him but fhuffle, and cut where you will, he will be fure to have it. He dances on a Rope of Sand, does the Somerfet, Strapado, and balf-frapado with Words, plays at all manner of Games with Clincbes, Carwickets, and Quibbles, and talks under-Leg., His Wit is left-handed, and therefore what others mean for right, he apprehends quite contrary. All his Conceptions are produced by equivocal Generation, which makes them juftly efteemed but Maggots. He rings the Changes upon Words, and is fo expert, that he can tell at firf Sight, how many Variations any Number of Words will bear. He talks with a Trill, and gives his Words a double Relifh. He had rather have them bear two Senfes in vain and impertinently, than one to the Purpofe, and never fpeaks without a Lere-Senfe. He talks nothing but Equivocation and mental Refervation, and mightily affects to give a Word a double Stroke, like a Tennis-Ball againft two Walls at one Blow, to defeat the Expectation of his Antagonift, He commonly flurs every fourth or fifth Word, and feldom fails to throw Doublets. There are two Sorts of Quibbling, the one with Words, and the other with Senfe, like the Rhetoricians Figura Dictionis & Figura Sententic - The firft is already cried down, [^24]See Bailey's Dictionary.

A QUIB B L ER.

208 A CU I B B L E R. and the other as yet prevails; and is the only Elegance of our modern Poets, which eafy Judges call Eafinefs; but having nothing in it but Eafnefs, and being never ufed by any lafting Wit, will in wifer Times fall to nothing of itfelf.

[ 209 ]

A

sTANDS Candidate for Cuckold, and if he mifs of it, it is none of his Fault; for his Merit is fufficiently known. He is commonly no Lover, but able to pafs for a moft defperate one, where he finds it is like to prove of confiderable Advantage to him; and therefore has Paffions lying by him of all Sizes proportionable to all Women's Fortunes, and can be indifferent, melancholy, or ftark-mad, according as their Eftates give him Occafion; and when he finds it is to no Purpofe, can prefently come to himfelf again, and try another. He profecutes his, Suit againft his Miftrefs as Clients do a Suit in Law, and does nothing without the Advice of his learned Council, omits no Advantage for want of foliciting, and, when he gets her Confent, overthrows her. He en-

$$
\text { Vol. II. } \quad \text { P }
$$

210 A W O O E R.

deavours to match his Effate, rather than himfelf, to the beft Advantage, and if his Miftrefs's Fortune and his do but come to an Agreement, their Perfons are eafily fatisfied, the Match is foon made up, and a Crofs Marriage between all four is prefently concluded. He is not much concerned in his Lady's Virtues, for if the Opinion of the Stoics be true, that the virtuous are always rich, there is no doubt, but fhe that is rich muft be virtuous. He never goes without a Lift in his Pocket of all the Widows and Virgins about the Town, with Particulars of their Jointures, Portions, and Inheritances, that if one mifs he may not be without a Referve; for he efteems Cupid very improvident, if he has not more than two Strings to his Bow. When he wants a better Introduction, he begins his Addreffes to the Chamber-maid, like one that fues the Tenant to eject the Landlord, and according as he thrives there makes his Approaches to the Miftrefs. He can tell readily what the Difference is between Jointure with Tuition of Infant, Land, and Money of any Value, and what the Odds is to a Penny between them all, either to take or leave. He does not fo much go a wooing as put in his Claim, as if ail Men of Fortune had a fair Title to all Women of the fame Quality, and therefore are faid to demand them in Marriage. But if he be a Wooer of Fortune, that defigns to raife himfelf by it, he makes wooing his Vocation, deals with all Matchmakers, that are his Setters, is very painful in his Calling, and, if his Bufinefs fucceed, fteals her away and commits Matrimony with a felonious Intent. He has a great defire to beget Money on the Body of a Woman, and as for other Iffue is very indifferent, and cares not how old fhe be, fo the be not paft Money-bearing.

A W O O E R. 211

[ 212 ]

A N

IMPUDENTMAN

IS one, whofe want of Money and want of Wit have engaged him beyond his Abilities. The little Knowledge he has of himfelf being fuitable to the little he has in his Profeffion has made him believe himfelf fit for it. This double Ignorance has made him fet a Value upon himfelf, as he that wants a great deal appears in a better Condition, than he that wants a little. This renders him confident, and fit for any Undertaking, and fometimes (fuch is the concurrent Ignorance of the World) he profpers in it, but oftner mifcarries, and becomes ridiculous; yet this Advantage he has, that as nothing can make him fee his Error, fo nothing can difcourage him that Way; for he is fortified, with his Ignorance, as barren and rocky Places are by their Situation, and he will rather believe that all Men want Jadgment,

AN I M P U D E N T M A N. 2Iz

than himfelf. For as no Man is pleafed, that has an ill Opinion of himfelf, Nature, that finds out Remedies herfelf, and his own Eafe render him infenfible of his Defects-From hence he grows impudent; for as Men judge by Comparifon, he knows as little what it is to be defective, as what it is to be excellent. Nothing renders Men modeft, but a juft Knowledge how to compare themfelves with others; and where that is wanting, Impudence fupplies the Place of it: for there is no Vacuum in the Minds of Men, and commonly, like other Things in Nature, they fwell more with Rarefaction than Condenfation. The more Men know of the World, the worfe Opinion they have of it; and the more they underftand of Truth, they are better acquainted with the Difficulties of it, and confequently are the lefs confident in their Affertions, efpecially in matters of Probability, which commonly is fquintey'd, and looks nine Ways at once. It is the Office of a juft Judge to hear both Parties, and he that confiders but the one Side of Things can never make a juft Judgment, though he may by Chance a true one. Impudence is the Baftard of Ignorance, not only unlawfully,

214 A N I M P U D E N T M A N.

but inceftuoufly begotten by a Man upon his own Underftanding, and laid by himfelf at his own Door, a Monfter of unnatural Production; for Shame is as much the Propriety of human Nature (though overfeen by the Philofophers) and perhaps more than Reafon, laughing, or looking afquint, by which they diftinguifh Man from Beafts; and the lefs Men have of it, the nearer they approach to the Nature of Brutes. Modefty is but a noble Jealoufy of Honour, and Impudence the Proftitution of it; for he, whofe Face is proof againft Infamy, muft be as little fenfible of Glory. His Forehead, like a voluntary Cuckold's, is by his Horns made Proof againft a Blufh. Nature made Man barefaced, and civil Cuftom has preferved him fo ; but he that's impudent does wear a Vizard more ugly and deformed than Highway Thieves difguife themfelves with. Shame is the tender moral Confcience of good Men. When there is a Crack in the Skull, Nature herfelf with a tough horny Callus repairs the Breach; fo a flaw'd Intellect is with a brawny Callus Face fupplied. The Face is the Dial of the Mind; and where they do not go together, 'tis a Sign, that one or both are out of Order. He that is impudent is like a Merchant, that trades upon his Credit without a Stock, and if his Debts were known, would break immediately. The Infide of his Head is like the Outfide ; and his Peruke as naturally of his own Growth, as his Wit. He paffes in the World like a Piece of Counterfeit Coin, looks well enough until he is rubbed and worn with Ufe, and then his Copper Complexion begins to appear, and nobody will take him, but by Owl-light.

A N I M P U DENT M A N. 215

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}216\end{array}\right]$

A N

I M I $\quad \mathrm{T} \quad \mathrm{A} \quad \mathrm{T} \quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{R}$

IS a counterfeit Stone, and the larger and fairer he appears the more apt he is to be difcovered, whilft fmall ones, that pretend to no great Value, pafs unfufpected. He is made like a Man in Arras-Hangings, after fome great Mafter's Defign, though far fhort of the Original. He is like a Spectrum or walking Spirit, that affumes the Shape of fome particular Perfon, and appears in the Likenefs of fomething that he is not, becaufe he has no Shape of his own to put on. He has a Kind of Monkey and Baboon Wit, that takes after fome Man's Way, whom he endeavours to imitate. but does it worfe than thofe Things that are naturally his own ; for he does not learn, but take his Pattern out, as a Girl does her Sampler. His whole Life is, nothing but a Kind of Education, and he is always learning to be fomething that he is not, nor ever will be: For Nature is free, and will not be forced out of her Way, nor compelled to do any Thing againft her own Will and Inclination. He is but a Retainer to Wit, and a Follower of his Mafter, whofe Badge he wears every where, and therefore his Way is called fervile Ininitation. His Fancy is like the innocent Lady's, who by looking on the Picture of a Moor that hung in her Chamber conceived a Child of the fame Complexion; for all his Conceptions are produced by the Pictures of other Men's Imaginations, and by their Features betray whofe Baftards they are. His Mufe is not infpired but infected with another Man's Fancy; and he catches his Wit, like the Itch, of fomebody elfe that had it before, and when he writes he does but fcratch himfelf. His Head is, like his Hat, fafhioned upon a Block, and wrought in a Shape of another Man's Invention. He melts down his Wit, and cafts it in a Mold: and as metals melted and calt are not fo firm and folid, as thofe that are wrought with the Hammer ; fo thofe Compofitions, that are founded and run in other Men's Molds, are always more brittle and loofe than thofe, that are forged in a Man's own Brain. He binds himfelf Prentice to a Trade, which he has no Stock to fet up with, if he fhould ferve out his Time, and live to be made free. He runs a whoring after another Man's Inventions (for he has none of his own to tempt him to an incontinent Thought) and begets a Kind of Mungrel Breed, that never comes to good.

2I8 A N I M I T A T ER.

[ 219 ]

A

T I M E-S E R V ER

WEARS his Religion, Reafon, and Underftanding always in the Mode; and endeavours as far as he can to be one of the firlt in the Fafhion, let it change as oft as it can. He makes it his Bufinefs, like a politic Epicure, to entertain his Opinion, Faith, and Judgment, with nothing but what he finds to be moft in Seafon; and is as careful to make his Underftanding ready according to the prefent Humour of Affairs, as the Gentleman was, that ufed every Morning to put on his Cloaths by the Weather-Glafs. He has the fame reverend Efteem of the modern Age, as an Antiquary has for vencrable Antiquity ; and like a Glafs receives readily any prefent Ob ject, but takes no Notice of that which is paft, or to come. He is always ready to become any Thing as the Times thall pleafe to difpofe of him, but is really nothing of himfelf; for he that fails before every Wind can be bound for no Port. He accounts it Blafphemy to fpeak againft any Thing in prefent Vogue, how vain or ridiculous foever, and Arch-Herefy to approve of any Thing, though ever fo good and wife, that is laid by; and thercfore cafts his Judgment and Underftanding upon Occafion, as Bucks do their Horns, when the Seafon arrives to breed new againft the next, to be caft again. He is very zealous to fhew himfelf, upon all Occafions, a true Member of the Church for the Time being, that has not the leaft Scruple in his Confcience againft the Doctrine or Difcipline of it, as it ftands at prefent, or fhall do hereafter, unfight unfeen: for he is refolved to be always for the Truth, which he believes is never fo plainly demonftrated as in that Character, that fays-It is great and prevails, and in that Senfe only fit to be adhered to by a prudent Man, who will never be kinder to Truth than fhe is to him; for fuffering is a very evil Effect, and not like to proceed' from a good Caufe. He is a Man of a right public Spirit, for he refigns himfelf wholly to the Will and Pleafure of the Times; and, like a zealous implicit Patriot, believes as the State believes, though he neither knows, nor cares to know, what that is.

220 A T I M E-S E R V E R.

A T I M E-S ER V E R. 221

[ 222 ]

A

P R A T E R

IS a common Nufance, and as great a Grievance to thofe that come near him as a Pewterer is to his Neighbours. His Difcourfe is like the braying of a Mortar, the more impertinent the more voluble and loud, as a Peftle makes more Noife when it is rung on the Sides of a mortar, than when it ftamps downright and hits upon the Bufinefs. A Dog that opens upon a wrong Scent will do it oftner than one that never opens but upon a right. He is as longwinded as a Ventiduct, that fills as faft as it empties, or a Trade-Wind, that blows one Way for half a Year together, and another as long, as if it drew in its Breath for fix Months, and blew it out again for fix more. He has no Mercy on any Mans Ears or Patience, that he can get within his Sphere of Activity, 'but tortures him, as they correct Boys in Scotland, by fuctching their Lugs without Remorif.

A $\quad \mathrm{P} \quad \mathrm{R} \quad \mathrm{A} \quad \mathrm{T} \quad \mathrm{E}$ R. 223

He is like an Earwig, when he gets within a Man's Ear he is not eafily to be got out again. He will Stretch a Story as unmercifully as he does the Ears of thofe he tells it to, and draw it out in length like a Breaft of Mutton at the Jfercules Pillars, or a Piece of Cloth fet on the Tenters, till it is quite fpoiled and good for nothing. If he be an Orator, that fpeaks diftincté et ornaté, though not apté, he delivers his Circumfances with the fame mature Deliberation, that one that drinks with a Gufto fwallows his Wine, as if he were loth to part with it fooner than he muft of Neceflity; or a Gamefter, that pulls the Cards that are dealt him one by one, to enjoy the Pleafure more diftinctly of feeing what Game he has in his Hand. He takes fo much Pleafure to hear himfelf fpeak, that he does not perceive with what Uneafinefs other Men endure him, though they exprefs it ever fo plainly; for he is fo diverted with his own Entertainment of himfelf, that he is not at Leifure to take Notice of any elfe. He is a Siren to himfelf, and has no Way to efcape Shipwreck but by having his Mouth ftoped, inftead of his Ears. He plays with his Tongue as a Cat does with her Tail, and is tranfported with the Delight he gives himfelf of his own making. He underftands no Happinefs like that of having an Opportunity to fhew his Abilities in public, and will venture to break his Neck to fhew the Activity of his Eloquence, for the Tongue is not only the worft Part of a bad Servant, but of an ill Mafter, that does not know how to govern it ; for then it is like Gufman's Wife, very beadfrong and not fure of Foot.

224 A P R A T E R.

[ 225 ]

A N

H ER M E T I C

P H I L O S O P HER.

HE is a Kind of Hector in Learning, that thinks to maintain himfelf in Reputation by picking Quarrels with his gentle Readers, and compounding them to his own Advantage ; as if he meant to baffle their Underftandings, and fright them into a reverend Opinion of his great Abilities. He comes forth in public with bis concealed Trutbs, as he calls

In Juftice to the author I muft. declare, that this Character, though fairly copied out for the Prefs, is left by him without a Title; and that that, which it now bears, is only added for the Sake of Uniformity. The Reader will from feveral Circumftances quickly perceive that the firf Part of it is perfonal ; and from the fame one may with a good deal of Certainty pronounce, that it was intended for the Author of a Book entituled-Magia Adamica; or the Antiquity of Mogic, and its defent from Adam. With a Di'covery of the true Calum Te, rp, or Magicians beavenly Chaos, and firft Matter of all Thirgs by T. W. Lond. 1650. $12^{\circ}$. The Book itfelf I have rot been able to get a Sight of; and I found my Conjecture upon the Title, and what little Account Butler gives of it in his own Notes upon two Paffages in his Hudibras printed in 1674.

Vol. II,
Q

226 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

them, like one that had ftolen fomething under his Cloak ; and being afraid to be ftopped falls foul on any Man, that has the ill Hap to be in his Way: for if you dillike him it is at your own Peril, he is fure to put in a Caveat beforehand againft your Underftanding; and, like a Malefactor in Wit, is always furnifhed with Exceptions againft his Judges. This puts him upon perpetual Apologies, Excufes, and Defences, but fill by Way of Defiance, in a Kind of whiffling Strain, without Regard of any Man, that he thinks will ftand in the Way of his Pageant. He fhews as little Refpect to Things as Perfons; for his conftant Method is to Thuffle Things of different Kinds together, like a Pack of Cards, and then deal them out as they happen. He pretends to contemn the prefent Age, and addrefs his Writings to Pofterity, to fhew, that he has a better Opinion of his own Prophefy, than the Knowledge of any Man now living; and that he underftands more of the Ages to come, than this does of him. Next to Pofterity he is in love with Antiquity, of which he feems to be fo fond, that he contemns Setb's Pillars as modern, and derives the Pedigree of Magic from Adam's firft green Britches; becaufe Fig-leaves being the firf Cloaths, that Mankind wore, were only ufed for Covering, and therefore are the moft ancient Monuments of concealed Myfteries.He controuls his fellow Labourers in the Fire with as much Empire and Authority, as if he were fole Overfeer of the great Work, to which he lights his Reader like an ignis fatuus, which ufes to miflead Men into Sloughs and Ditches; for when he has mired him in the Cbaos, and told him, that the Pbilofophers Stone is Water, or a Powder, he leaves him in the Dark. With this Chaos he makes more Work, than the Fellow that interprets to the

[^25]
AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 227

And upon this Paffage gives the following Note-"The Au" thor of Magia Adamics endeavours to prove the Learning of the " antient Magi to be dcrived from that Knowledge, which God "c himfelf taught Adam in Paradife before the Fall.

> With this Chaos be makes mere Work, than the Fellowe that interprets to the Joew if it.] This correfponds with what the Title of Magia Adanica promifes of a Difcovery of the true Celum Terra, or Ma-

$$
Q^{2}
$$

228 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

fhow of it, and with no lefs Aftonifhment to the ignorant. Such of his learned Difcoveries, that fignify any Thing, though it be vulgar and common, he calls experimental trutbs, and thofe that mean nothing Myferies, which with him is but another Word for Nonfenfe, though it be fupported, like Heraldry, with Eagles, Dragons, and Lions; but as the Poet obferves
-Canibus pigris, fcabieque vetuffa Nomen erit Tigris, Leo, Pardus, Jiquid adbuc fit 2uod fremit in Terris violentiusfo the Senie of thefe terrible Terms is equally contemptible; for a Maggot is of a higher Form in Nature than any Production of Metals. His War with the Schoolmen is not amifs, but he perfecutes it unmercifully, without giving Quarter; though being a Writer of Fortune he might confider his own Intereft, gicians beavenly Chos und firt Niatter of all Things-It agrees. alfo with what Butler fays in Ralpbo's Character.

> The Chans too ke bad defrry'd, And feen quite tbrough, or elfe he ly'd: Not that of Pafe-Board wbich Men jbew For Groats at Fair of Barthol'mew. Hud. P. 1. C: r.

[^26]and remember that they keep him in conftant Employment : for whenfoever he has Occafion to digrefs, that is to write more than fix Lines, if the Schoolmen, or the Chaos, or the great Work did not fupply him, according as he is difpofed either to rail or cant, I know not what would become of him. To this Canting he is fo conftantly inclined, that he beltows no fmall Pains in devifing Nick-names for himfelf and his Patron, to whom he writes like one that whifpers aloud, and fays that in his Ear, that is meant for the hearing of others. The Judgment of this Gentleman is his Privilege, and his Epiftles to him are like counterfeit Paffes, which he makes for himfelf, and believes they will carry him through, though the Perfon be fo unknown, that nobody can guefs by his Account, whether he be his Tutor or 'his Pupil.
> —_Canibus pigris, fcabieque vetufta
> Nomen erit, &c.]

As Butler for Brevity's Sake has given this Paffage from Turvenal imperfect, which renders it obfcure and a little faulty in Point of Grammar, it may not be improper to tranfcribe from the Original.
> —Canibus pigris, fcabieque vetuffa Levibus, et ficca lambentibus ora Lucerne, Nomen erit Pardus, Tigris, Leo $; \sqrt{1}$ quid adbucieft, Qued fremat in Terris violen'ius- fur. Sat. 8. V. 34.

> Q 3

$23^{\circ}$ AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

He adores Cornelius Agrippa as an Oracle, yet believes he underfands more of his Writings than he did himfelf; for he will not take his own Teftimony concerning his three Books of occult Philofophy, which he confeffies to have written without Wit or Judgment. Yet it cannot be denied but he is very impartial to himfelf; for in forbidding his Difciples to read any modern Books, but only Sandivogius and Encbiridion phyfica refituta, he does Juftice on his own Works, and very ingenuoufly fhews us how they are beft to be underftood. This Pbyica refituta is his great Magifery, two Lines of which he ufes to project upon his bafer Metal, and make it multiply to twice as many Pages. Thefe are commonly fet forth jike a Shopkeeper's Stall, with fo much of his coarfer Wares, as will only ferve to fhew what he deals in-The beft you may fuppofe is laid up carefully; for he always tells you what he could tell you, whereby it appears the Purpofe of his Writing is but to let you know, that he knows, which if you can but attain to you are fufficiently learned, and may pafs for verè adeptus; though otherwife he will not allow any Man to be free of the Pbilofophers, that has not only ferved out his Time to a Furnace, but can cant and fpit Fire like a Jugler. He is fo full of the great Secret, that he cannot poffibly hold, but is fain, when he is treating of other Matters, to withdraw very abruptly, and vent himfelf, fed clam et cum fcrobe, like him that digged a Hole in the Ground to whifper in, for nobody muft expect to be the wifer for it; but though he bury his Talent, he never fails to write an Epitaph upon it, that fhall improve it more among the credulous, than if he had put it forth. Yet no Man muft fay fo, that will not either own, or contemn the Title of barbarous and ignorant; for with fuch Language he ufes to fortify the weaker Parts of his Works, like a Ditch, againft thofe, that" Librum magna ex Parte retractavi."

[^27]
AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 231

> But only Sandivogius E® Enchiridion phyfice refituta.] Michael Sandivogius was a tamous chymical Writer in the Beginning. of the laft Century, and the Enchiridion phy/fce reffitute, fuppofed to be wrote by one D'Efpagnet, was a Book in no lefs Efteem. with the Virtuofos of that Clafs.

$$
\text { Q } 4
$$

232 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

fhall venture to attempt them. He believes a Scholar can no more live in the Univerfity, than a Serpent in Ireland: but thofe weak and feeble Wits, that will not carry Point-Blank, muft be fain to aim above the Mark, or elfe they will fhoot too low. He hath taken much Pains to prove, that Magic is not conjuring; and that Sir Henry Cornelizus was no Conjurer, nor his Dog a Devil, but a mere natural Dog, though he confeffes, he could not chufe but have more in him than another Dog, having ferved fuch a Mafter, who in his Preface to Lully's Ars brevis profeffes in a few Weeks to have made ignorant old Men'and young Children, with a mere Trick, able to difpute

Abstract

That Sir Henry Cornelius was no Conjurer, nor bis Dog a $D_{\epsilon}$ vil.] That this muft be applied to the Author of Magia Aiamica appears from Butler's own Teftimony in a Note of his upon thefe two Lines in his Hudibras.

> Agrippa kett a Stygian Pug $I^{\prime} t b^{\prime}$ Garb and Habut of a Dog.

[^28][^29]
AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

in all Sorts of Learning with the moft profound Doctors in Europe.

He adores the Bretbren of the Rofy-Crofs as the only Owls of Athens that can fee in the Dark; and wonders at them, like one of the Rabble of Birds-There are a Kind of Pbilofophers Errant, that wander up and down upon Adventures, and have an enchanted Caftle, invifible to all but themfelves, to which they are bound by their Order to repair at certain Seafons. In this Tabernacle refts the Body of their Prophet or Founder, who dying, as they affirm, hid himfelf in a Kind of invifible Oven, where after an hundred Years he was
"p prafuppofita, non ullo indigens forinfeco juvamine, infallibiliter " cum omni fecuritate ac certitudine, errore omni femoto, de omni " re fcibili Veritatem ac Scientiam fine Difficultate et Labore invenire " nos faciat ——Ea infuper hujus Scientiæ eft Promptitudo et " Facilitas, ut etiam Pueri impuberes, hac Arte freti, in omnibus " ferme facultatibus docte differere poffint: multi etiam, qui in " extrema Senectute fe ad Literas contulere; hac arte paucis Men"' fibus in Viros doctifimos evafere."

He alores the Bretbren of the Rofy-Crofs, &cc.] The Characters which has fo far been perfonal, is now extended to a general one of the Roficrucians. To enter into a particular Explication of all that our Author fatirically obferves of their Tenets would be both tedious and unjuft to the Reader; and therefore I fhall only in general refer him to thofe Writers who have treated upon this Subject, and to the Light that Butler himfelf throws upon it in his Characters of Ralpho and Sidropbel, and more particularly in the Difpute he introduces betwixt Hudibras and Sidrofbel about judi-: cial Aftrology, &c.

234 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

difcovered by a Kind of Prophefying Door, not overbaked nor cold, but warm, and looking (like a Woodcock's Head ftuck in the Lid of a Pye) as if he were alive. With him they found a World of mort precious Secrets and Myfteries, with a deal of Treafure, and a Dictionary of all thofe Names, that Adam gave the Creatures; and thefe they have fince given one another: for they profefs to underftand the Language of Beafts and Birds, as they fay Solomon did, elfe he would never have faidThe Forels of the Air can difcover Treafon againft Princes. This Knowledge, they affirm, may be attained by Eating, in a planetary Moment, a Rafher made of the Liver of a Camelion, the only broiled Lexicon in the World. For they will undertake to teach any Kind of myfterious Learning in the World by Way of Diet ; and therefore have admirable Receipts, to make feveral Difhes for Talifman, Maric, and Cabal, in which Sciences a Man of an ingenious Sto_ mach may eat himfelf into more Knowledge at a Meal, than he could poffibly arrive at by feven Years Study.

They are better acquainted with the intelligible World, than they are with this; and

AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 235

 underfand more of Ideas, than they do of Things. This intelligible World is a Kind of Terra incognita, a Pfittacorun Regio, of which Men talk what they do not underftand. They would have us believe, that it is but the Counterpart of the elementary World; and that there is not fo much as an individual Beard upon the Face of the Earth, that has not another there perfectly of the fame Colour and Cut to match it. Next to this, as they tell us, lies the celeftial World, in which they are at Home-All the Dukes, Earls, and Barons in the Planets are their Godfons, if not their Baftards. Theie Lords fpiritual hold fo perfect a Conformance in all their Manners, Cuftoms, and Ufages with ours upon Earth, that a learned Antiquary would certainly conclude, they were at firft fome Colony tranfplanted hence. With thefe they are fo familiar, that they have a Particular of every one's Eftate, and can tell how many Tenants he has, that hold their Lands of him. Thefe Spirits they ufe to catch by the Nofes with Fumigations, as St. Dunfan did the Devil with a Pair of Tongs, and make them compound for their Liberty by difcovering Secrets. By this Means they have found out the Way to make planetary Moufetraps; in which Rats and Mice fhall take themfelves without the Expence of toafted Cheefe and Baton. They have fine Devices to make counterfeit Maggots of Lute-Strings, tranflate Agues into Dogs, or fright them away with Spiders; to cure the Tooth-ach or fore Eyes with Medicines laid to the Imagination; kill Rats and Warts with Rhimes; quote Moles on any Part of the Body by an Index in the Face; difcover lof Maidenheads ; pimp with Figures, Charms, and Characters; cut Nofes out of Buttocks with Taliacotius; blow the Philofophers Fire with Words of pure Wind, and draw the glorify'd Spirit of the Elixir not out of grofs Matter, but the pure incorporeal Hope and Faith of the Credulous, which is the beft and the moft rational Way of Multiplication; for a fmall Dofe fo prepared, and projected upon the dulleft Metal, converts it prefently into Gold ready coined. They have found out a Way to make invifible Hour-glaffes for gifted Brethren to preach by, who would give Offence to tender Confciences, if it fhould feem, as if the Spirit could enable them to underftand what to fay, but not how much, without the Help of a carnal Hour-glafs. They are now carrying on a thorough-Reformation in the celeftial World-
236 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

AN HERMETIC PHII.OSOPHER. 237

They have repaired the old Spheres, that were worn as thin as a Cob-web, and faftened the Stars in them with a Screw, by which means they may be taken off, and put on again at Pleafure. They have pulled down all the ancient Houfes of the Planets, and fet up Tents in their Places, as being more convenient in regard of their Eafinefs to be removed upon all Occafions. They have lately fallen on $D u$ Bartas's Defign to new-chriften all the Conftellations, and give them Scripture Names, a Work no doubt of fingular Piety, and like in Time to convert the Aftrologers, when they fhall derive the Principles and Rudiments of their Science from divine Authority, which now they are fainto borrow of the old heathen Poets. This in Procefs of Time may enable them (as well as other Trades) to preach for themfelves, and fave the Charge of hiring old Mungrel Rabines, that are three Quarters Ferws, to make their Art as lawful as they can, with mighty Arguments drawn from Etymologies and Anagrams. But their Intelligence in the upper World is nothing to what they have in the infernal ; 'for they hold exact Correfpondence with the Devils, and can give a perfect Account of their ecclefiaftical civil, and military Difcipline. By their Advice the Fiends lately attempted a Reformation of their Government, that is, to bring all Things into Confufion, which among them is the greatef Order. They have placed Miroos, Æacus, and Rbadamant on the Bench again fince they received a Writ of Eafe, and have given the Pettifogging Devils, that were thrown over the Bar for their Honefty, leave to practife again, having firft taken an Engagement to be true and faithful to the Government. They have entertained the Furies again, that were turned out of Service by the later Poets, and given Cbaron a new Coat and Badge. Indeed for their Militia, being out of the Way of Philofophers, they are not fo exactly verfed in it, and therefore are forced to raife old Poetical Spirits only for Shew, and to make up their Number (like a Captain, that makes a falfe Number) in which Cerberus paffes and receives Pay for three. All this they perform by Virtue and Dint of Numbers, which they will have to run through the three Worlds like a Ladder of Ropes, holding the fame Proportion in them all, and the univerfal Privilege of the great Secret, which they can prove to be the golden Bough, that ferved EEneas for a Pafs to go to Hell with. Thefe

$23^{8}$ AN HERMETIC PIILLOSOPHER.

AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 239

Numbers they believe to be the better Sort of Spirits, by the Largenefs of their Dominion, which extends from beyond the intelligible World, through all the inferior Worlds, to the Center, which is the uttermof bound of their Empire that Way. They had like to have been chofen Principles in the elementary World, in the Room of old doating Privation, but that Darkne/s carried it with the Brotherbood in an indirect Way, having caft a Mift before their learned Eyes. They have agreed upon a Truce and Ceffation of Hoftility between the Elements, and are like to conclude a Peace, by declaring the old Quarrel to arife from the $I_{n-}$ tenfion, and not from the Element, which is a clear Confutation of that old Maxim-ex nibilo nibil fit. They believe, that Spirits have a ftrange natural Allegiance to hard Words, though they mean nothing; by which it fhould feem, that a well-taught Jackdaw, or one of Fames Howel's Trees may be as able a Conjurer as Friar Bacon himfelf. Next to Words they are catched with Characters, which are nothing elfe but Marks, that Spirits make for their Names, becaufe they cannot write-Thefe

[^30]
240 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

the Bretbren have always in Blanks, to which they can write what they pleafe, and then arreft them upon it, and keep them fafe, until they put in Bail to anfwer whatfoever they Joall be demanded. By this means they have found out, who is the true Owner of the Beaft in the Apocalyps, which has long paffed for a Stray among the Learned; what is the true Product of 666, that has rung like Whittington's Bells in the Ears of Expofitors; how long it is to the Day of Judgment, and, which is more wonderful, whether it fhall be in Winter or Summer. They can tell the Age of Time without looking into his Mouth, like a Horfe's, as the Chronologers do, or fearching the ChurchBook: for they have certain hiftorical Spirits, that will give them as able an Account of the general Hiftory of the World, as Role himfelf. By the Help of thefe they can immediately tell, who was the firft Chriftian Cobler, without diving into Arabic Short-Hand, or travelling far into the Eaft (as fome have done) to fetch that, which they might have had at home in the Legend-A very learned Overfight.They have found out an admirable Way to decide all Controverfies, and refolve Doubts of the greateft Difficulty by Way of borary 2uefions; for as the learned Aftrologers, obferving the Impoffibility of knowing the exact Moment of any Man's Birth, do ufe very prudently to caft the Nativity of the Quefion (like him, that fwallowed the Doctor's Bill inftead of the Medicine) and find the Anfwer as certain and infallible, as if they had known the very Inftant, in which the Native, as they call him, crept into the World: fo in Queftions either fo fubtile and obfcure, that Truth plays leaft in Sight, and Words and Terms go for no more than a Jugler's Canting ; the only Way in the World is to confider the critical Minute of the Queftion, and from thence refolve it. This had been an excellent Courfe for the old Roundheaded Stoics to find out, whether Bonum wwas > Beat out tbeir Brains in Fight and Study,

[^31]
AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 24 r

> To prove that Virtue is a Body,
> That Bonum is an Animal
> Made good with fout folemic Brawe!

Vol. II.
R

242 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

Corpus, or Virtue an Animal, about which they had fo many fierce Encounters in their Stoa, that about one thoufand four hundred and forty loft their Lives upon the Place, and far many more their Beards, and Teeth, and No-fes-But this had never been, had the Bretbren lived in thofe Days, who can not only part all the mad Frays of Controverfy in Philofophy, but Religion alfo, and, like true canonical Conftables, make thofe fpiritual Swafh-Bucklers deliver up their Weapons, and keep the Peace. Nor is their Power and Authority lefs in compofing of civil Differences; for they have a Re_ ceipt to make two Armies, that are drawn up ready to fight, put up their Swords and face about. This is fo eafy, they fay, that it has been done by Women: but their Way is to raife a Storm, which they can do at any Time with the Liver of a Wolf, and make it thunder and lighten, as eafily as ftrike Fire in a TinderBox. This, they fay, has been experimented between Hanibal and the Romans; and certainly

> In which fome bundreds on the Place Were fain outright, and many a Face Retrench'd of Nofe, and Eyes, and Beard, To maintain what their Secz averr'd.

And by Way of Explication Butler fubjoins this Note - "In

AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 243

it is more probable than that Courfe, which fome modern Philofophers have taken to do it by Way of Argument, which is fo preppofterous, that they believe, they can prevent or compofe all civil Wars by proving, that Mankind was born to nothing elfe; and will undertake to perfuade Men to Subjection and Obedience by making it appear, that Nature brought them forth all equal: that pretend to fecure the Titles of Princes by proving, that whofoever can get their Power from them has a Right to it; and perfuade them and their Subjects to obferve imaginary Contracts by arguing, that they are invalid as foon as made-But had thefe Men converfed with the Bretbren, they would never have brought Contradictions fo barefaced together, but have dreft them up with fume pretty Difguife, which they have always ready for fuch Occafions, that, though they had been never fo fubtile and fenfelefs, fhould have made them pafs at leaft for Myfteries. For though they very much contemn

[^32]R 2

244 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

any Knowledge, that is either derived from Senfe or reducible to it ; and account Demonftration too grofs and low an Aim for the fublime Speculations of the Intellect: Though they believe their own Senfes bafe and unworthy of their Notice (like that delicate Roman, who being put in his Litter by his Servants, afked, whether he fat or no) yet they never apply themfelves to any Thing abftrufe or fubtile, but with much Caution; and commonly refolve all Queftions of that Nature by Num-bers-Monades, Triades, and Decades, are with them a Kind of philofophical Fulbams, with which, like cunning Gamefters, they can throw what they pleafe, and be fure to win; for no Body can difprove them. And truly they are much to be commended, if for nothing elfe, yet for their ingenious Brevity : for they never entertain their Readers with tedious Circumftances, to the great Expence of their Time, but difpatch immediately, and make them underftand as much of thefe Affairs in a few Minutes, as they can do in an Age; which is more than can be faid of thofe, that ufe to tie Argument to Argument (as Monkies ufe to hang by one another's Tails in India) until they have made a Pair of learned Tarryers, which neither they, nor any Body elfe knows how to ando. But the Bretbren, if this will not do, have yet more curious Ways; for they have invented Optics, in which they will put Atoms and Ideas, and give the Eye as perfect an Account of their niceft Subtleties, as all the Philofophers in the World can with all their Difputations. In thefe you may fee the Bone Luz, and Defcartes's Die in the Brain with every Spot in it, as exactly as the Eyes of a Flea in a magnifying Glafs. They have made Spectacles to read Gacob Boebmen and Ben-Ifrael with, which, like thofe Glaffes that revert the Object, will turn the wrong End of their Sentences upwards, and make them look like Senfe. They have built a philofophical Hofpital for the Relief of thofe, that are blind, deaf, and dumb, by eftablifhing a Community of the Senfes, whereby any one may fupply the Place of another in his Abfence, and do his Bufinef ${ }_{s}$ for him as well as that which is out of the Way. This is an Art to teach Men to fee with their Ears, and hear with their Eyes and Nofes, and it has been found true by ExpeR 3

AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 245

246 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

rience and Demonftration, if we may believe the Hiftory of the Spaniard, that could fe Words, and fwallow Mufic by holding the Peg of a Fiddle between his Teeth ; or him that could fing his Part backward at firft Sight, which thofe that were near him might hear with their Nofes; or Dubartas's Painter, that could draw the Report of a Gun, as it is very faithfully rendered by Mr. Silvefter thus-

There in a Wood bebind a Box-Tree Srinking He drawes a Foweler with bis left Eye winking; Down falls the Cock, up from the touch-P an flies A ruddy Flame, that in a Moment dies; Off goes the Gun, and through the Foreft rings The tbundring Bullet born on fiery Wings.

No doubt a very ftrange Landfcape, and not unlike that, which Antbropofoppus has made of the invijble Mountain of the Pbilofophers; but nothing comparable to thofe Curiofities of Knowledge, which they have comprized in fingle Words, not inferior to the nine-Pins and a Bowl in a Cherry-Stone. They will pick Myfteries out of Syllables and Letters, as Juglers do Money out of their Nofes-This they learned of the Forefathers of Anagrams, the Rabbins. Befide this they have admirable Methods to difpofe and lay up Learning in, like thofe odd Contrivances in Cabinets, where nobody can tell how to find it but themfelves. Lully's Ars Brevis is one of thefe, wherein Magnitudo, Bonitas, and 2 uomodo are feveral concealed Drawers, in which they, that have any Learning, may lay it up fafe, and (if there be any Truth in his Commentator) they that have none too, which is not altogether fo ftrange In thefe it will fprout and grow of it felf, as Onions do in the Spring above Ground, and multiply no Man can imagine how, that does not very well underftand the equivocal Generation of Maggots.

[^33]
AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER. 247

They can grave the Signets of the Planets in precious Stones with their own Influences, as Diamonds are cut with their own Duft-looking at the Perfon who fpoke, and alfo to give proper and diftinct Anfwers; from whence Sir Kenelme takes occation to fay that be could hear by bis Eyes, and lee Words. : See Digby of Body.

R 4

248 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER.

Thefe being made in a right Minute have an admirable magnetic Virtue inftilled, to draw Learning, Wit, Valour, Wealth, Honour, and Women after the Owner, juft as the Loadftone does Iron. Thefe were ufed much by the Knigbts-errant, which made them more valiant than Giants, and cunning than Conjurers; they were always furnifhed with Ladies and Damfels; and though we find little Mention made of their Wealth, yet they always lived at a high Rate, when the Value of a Knight's Eftate in thofe Times was but a fmall Matter.

They have an admirable Way to diftinguifh the Influences of the Stars; for among fo many Myriads of good and bad, that are confufed and mixt together, they will prefently feparate thofe of virtuous Ufe from the Evil, like Boccalini's Drum, that would beat up ail the Weeds in a Garden, and leave the Herbs ftanding-Thefe they keep in Glaffes, like the Powder made of the Sun-Beams, till they have Occafion to ure them. They are commonly the better Half of the great Magitery; and ferve them to innumerable Purpofes in all their Profeffions of Philofophy, Magic, Divinity, Phyfic, Aftrology, Alchimy, Bawdery, Witchcraft, &c. for, befide a rare Property they have to reftore finful old Age to Virtue, Youth, and Underftanding, they are very fovereign to clear the Eyes of the Mind, and make a blear-ey'd Intellect fee like a Cat in the Dark, though it be ftark blind in the Light.

[^34]
AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER』 249

Thefe Influences, they would make us be_ lieve, are a Kind of little invifible Midwives, which the Stars employ at the Nativities of Men, to fwathe and bind up their Spirits, (juft as Midwives do their Bodies) which being then moft tender and flexible, they can mold into what Form they pleafe: for mixing with the Air their firft breath, they do not only infect the Soul and Body, and their Faculties, but the Tempers, Difpofition, Opinions, Actions (and their Events) of Men with a certain fatal Contagion; which, like a flow-working Poifon lying fill for many Years, fhall afterwards, like Difeafes and Sores, break out in the feveral Actions and Emergencies of their Lives. And yet it fhould feem, thefe Influences are but a Kind of Mock-definies, whofe Bufinefs it is to tamper with all Men, but compel none-This the Learned call inclining not neceffitating. They have a fmall precarious Empire, wholly at the Will of the Subject ; they can raife no Men but only Volunteers, for their Power does not extend to prefs any. Their Jurifdiction is only to invite Men to the Ģallows, or the Pillory in a civil Way, but force none fo much as to a Whipping, unlefs, like Catbolic Penitents, they have a mind to it, and will lay it on themfelves. They are very like, if rot the fame, to the Temptations of the Devil They can perfuade a Man to break his Neck, or drown himfelf, prefent him with a Rope and a Dagger, and defire him to make Choice of which he pleafes; but if they do not take him juft in the Humour, they may as well go bang themfelves. As little Good as Hurt can they do any Man againft his Will-They cannot make a private Man a Prince, unlefs he have a very ftrong Defire to be fo; nor make any Man happy in any Condition whatfoever, unlefs his own Liking concur. They could never put Fools in Authority, as they ufe to do, if they did not take Delight in it ; nor make them great Philofophers and profound Scholars, unlefs they pleafed themfelves with Study. As for the Wife, the Learned tell us, they have nothing to do with them; and if they make any Attempt upon them; it is to no Purpofe: for when they inciine a Man to be a Knave, and prevail upon him, he muft be a Fool (for they have no Power over the Wife) and fo all their Labour is loft.

250 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER:

They ufe to make folemn Vows to Almighty God, never to difcover the great Secret to any Perfon living (as Lully does) and yet prefently will undertake to teach it ; but conjure every Scholar to keep it to himfelf, like Treafon that dies if it take Air. Then they forbid them to converfe with any, that have not Faith in the Art, that they may hear as little againf it as they have to fay for it; an excellent Prefervative to keep an implicit Faith from taking cold - This is the high-Way of all Impoftors, who can never do more than another believes. But after fo many Precepts and Rules delivered with the greateft Confidence and Prefumption of Certainty, they will tell you, that this Art is not to be attained but by divine Revelation, and only to.

252 AN HERMETIC PHILOSOPHER:

be expected by holy and fanctified Perfons, that have left behind them all the Concernments of this World; whereby it feems, this Shadow of Art follows thofe only that fyy it, and gies from thofe that follow it.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}253\end{array}\right]$

A N

A L D $\quad$ E $\quad$ R M A

HA S taken his Degree in Cheating, and the higheft of his Faculty ; or paid for refufing his Mandamus. He is a Peer of the City, and a Member of their upper Houfe, who, as foon as he arrives at fo many thoufand Pounds, is bound by the Charter to ferve the Public with fo much Underftanding, what flift foever he make to raife it, and wear a Chain about his Neck like a Raindeer, or in Default to commute, and make Satisfaction in ready Money, the beft Reafon of the Place; for which he has the Name only, like a titular Prince, and is an Alderman extraordinary. But if his Wife can prevail with him to ftand, he becomes one of the City-fupporters, and, like the Unicorn in the King's Arms, wears a Chain about his Neck very right-worfhipfully. He wears Scarlet, as the Whore of Balylon does, not for her honelty, but the Rank and Quality fhe is of among the Wicked. When he fits as a Judge in his Court he is abfolute, and ufes arbitrary Power; for he is not bound to underftand what he does, nor render an Account why he gives Judgment on one Side rather than another; but his Will is fufficient to ftand for his Reafon, to all Intents and Purpofes. He does no public Bufinefs without eating and drinking, and never meets about Matters of Importance, but the Cramming his Infide is the moft weighty Part of the Work of the Day. He difpatches no public Affair until he has thoroughly dined upon it, and is fully fatisfied with Quince-Pye and Cuftard: for Men are wifer, the Italians fay, after their Bellies are full, than when they are fafing, and he is very cautious to omit no Occafion of improving his Parts that Way. He is fo careful of the Intereft of his Belly, and manages it fo induftrioufly, that in a little Space it grows great and takes Place of all the reft of his Members, and becomes fo powerful, that they will never be in a Condition to rebel againft it any more. He is cloathed in Scarlet the Livery of his Sins, like the rich Glutton, to put him in Mind of what Means he came to his Wealth and Preferment by. He makes a Trade of his Eating, and, like a Cock, fcrapes when he feeds; for the Public pays for all and more, which he and his Brethren fhare among themfeives; for they never make a dry Reckoning. When he comes to be Lord-Mayor he does not keep a great Houfe, but a very great Houfe-warming for a whole Year; for though he invites all the Companies in the City he does not treat them, but they club to entertain him, and pay the Reckoning beforehand. His Fur-gown makes him look a great deal bigger than he is, like the Feathers of an Owl, and when he pulls it off, he looks as if he were fallen away, or like a Rabbet, had his Skin pulled off.

254 A N ALDERMAN.

A N ALDERMAN.

$[256$ ]

A  D I $\quad \mathrm{S} \quad \mathrm{P} \quad \mathrm{U}$ T A N T

IS a Holder of Arguments, and Wagers too, when he cannot make them good. He takes naturally to Controverfy, like Fifhes in India that are faid to have Worms in their Heads, and fwim always againft the Stream. The greateft Maftery of his Art confifts in turning and winding the State of the Queftion, by which means he can eafily defeat whatfoever has been faid by his Adverfary, though excellently to the Purpofe, like a Bowler, that knocks away the Jack, when he fees another Man's Bowl lye nearer to it than his own. Another of his Faculties is with a Multitude of Words to render what he fays fo difficult to be recollected, that his Adverfary may not eafily know what he means, and confequently not underftand what to anfwer, to which he fecretly referves an Advantage to reply by interpreting

A DISPUTANT.

what he faid before otherwife than he at firft intended it, according as he finds it ferve his Purpofe to evade whatfoever fhall be objected. Next to this, to pretend not to underftand, or mifinterprets what his Antagonift fays, though plain enough, only to divert him from the Purpofe, and to take Occafion from his Expofition of what he faid to ftart new Cavils on the Bye, and run quite away from the Queftion: but when he finds himfelf preft Home and beaten from all his Guards, to amufe the Foe with fome fenfelefs Diftinction, like a falfified Blow, that never hits where 'tis aimed, but while it is minded makes Way for fome other Trick that may pafs. But that which renders him invincible is Abundance of Confidence and Words, which are his offenfive and defenfive Arms; for a brazen Face is a natural Helmet or Beaver, and he that has Store of Words needs not furrender for Want of Ammunition-No Matter for Reafon and Senfe, that go for no more in Difputations than the Juftice of a Caufe does in War, which is underftood but by few, and commonly regarded by none. For the Cuftom of Difputants is not fo much to deftroy one another's Reafon, as to cavil at the Manner of expreffing it, right or wrong; for they believe-Dolus an Virtus, &cc. ought to be allowed in Controverfy as War, and he that gets the Victory on any Terms whatfoever deferves it, and gets it honourably. He and his Opponent are like two falfe Lute-ftrings, that will never ftand in Tune to one another; or like two Tennis-players, whofe greatef Skill confifts in avoiding one another's Strokes.

Vol. II $_{\text {! }}$. S

258 A D I S P UTANT.

[ :259 ]

A

S  O  T

HAS found out a Way to renew, not only his Youth, but his Childhood, by being ftewed, like old $\not$ 厄fon, in Liquor ; much better than the Virtuofo's Way of making old Dogs young again : for he is a Child again at fecond hand, never the worfe for the Wearing, but as purely frefh, fimple, and weak, as he was at firft. He has ftupify'd his Senfes by living in a moift Climate according to the Poet-Baotum in crafo jurares aëre natum. He meafures his Time by Glaffes of Wine, as the Ancients did by Water-Glaffes; and as Hermes Trifmegifus is faid to have kept the firft Accompt of Hours by the piffing of a Beaft dedicated to Serapis, he revives that Cuftom in his own Practice, and obferves it punctually in paffing his Time. He is like a Statue placed in a moift Air ; all the Lineaments of Humanity are mouldered away, and there is nothing left of him but a rude Lump of the Shape of a Man, and no one

$$
S_{2}
$$

260 A S O T.
part entire. He has drowned himfelf in a But of Wine, as the Duke of Clarence was ferved by his Brother. He has wafhed down his Soul and pift it out; and lives now only by the Spirit of Wine or Brandy, or by an Extract drawn off his Stomach. He has fwallowed his Humanity, and drunk himfelf into a Beaft, as if he had pledged Madanz Circe, and done her Right. He is drowned in a Glafs like a Fly, beyond the Cure of Crums of Bread, or the Sun Beams. He is like a Spring-Tide ; when he is drunk to his high-Water-Mark he fwells and looks big, runs againft the Stream, and overflows every Thing that ftands in his Way; but when the Drink within him is at an Ebb, he flrinks within his Banks, and falls fo low and fhallow, that Cattie may pafs over him. He governs all his Actions by the Drink within him, as a Quaker. does by the Light within him; has a different Humour for every Nick his Drink rifes to, like the Degrees of the Weatherglafs, and proceeds from Ribaldry and Bawdery to Politics, Reli-: gion, and Quarreling, until it is at the Top, and then it is the Dog-Days with him; from whence he falls down again, until his Liquor is at the Bottom, and then he lyes quiet, and is frozen up.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}261\end{array}\right]$

A N

A $\quad \mathrm{T} \quad \mathrm{H} \quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{S} \quad \mathrm{T}$

IS a bold Difputant, that takes upon him to prove the hardeft Negative in the whole World, and from the Impoffibility of his Attempt may be juftly concluded not to underftand it: for he that does not underftand fo much as the Difficulty of his Undertaking, can know nothing elfe of it; and he, that will venture to comprehend that, which is not within his Reach, does not know fo far as his own Latitude, much lefs the Extent of that which lies beyond it. He denies that to be, which he finds by undeniable Inference to $\mathrm{b}_{\mathrm{e}}{ }^{\text {e }}$ in all Things; and, becaufe it is every where, would have it to be no where; as if that old Gingle were logically true in all Things, becaufe it is fo in nothing. If a blind Man fhould affirm, there is no fuch Thing as Light, and an Owl no fuch Thing as Darknefs, it would be hard to fay, which is the verier Owl of the two; and yet both would fpeak true, according to their own Apprehenfions and Experience, but falfe, becaufe it is of Things beyond the Reach of their Capacities. He draws a Map of Nature by his own Fancy, and bounds her how he pleafes, without Regard to the Pofition of the Heavens, by which only her Latitude is to be underftood, and without which all his Speculations are vain, idle, and confufed. Nothing but Ignorance can produce a Confidence bold enough to determine of the firft Caufe; for all the inferior Works of Nature are Objects more fit for our Wonder, tban Curiofity; and Jbe conceals the Trutb of Tbings, that lye under our View, from us, to dijcourage us from attempting tbofe, that are more remote. He commits as great an Error in making Nature (which is nothing but the Order and Method, by which all Caufes and Effects in the World are governed) to be the firft Caufe, as if he fhould fuppofe the Laws, by which a Prince governs, to be the Prince himfelf.

262 A N A T HEIS T.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}263\end{array}\right]$

A

$J \quad \mathrm{~J} \quad \mathrm{~L} \quad \mathrm{E} \quad$ R

I$S$ an artificial Magician, that with his Fingers cafts a Mift before the Eyes of the Rabble, and makes his Balls walk invifible which Way he pleafes. He does his Feats behind a Table, like a Prefbyterian in a Conventicle, but with much more Dexterity and Cleanlinefs, and therefore all Sorts of People are better pleafed with him. Moft Profeffions and Myfteries derive the Practice of all their Faculties from him, but ufe them with lefs Ingenuity and Candour; for the more he deceives thofe he has to do with; the better he deals with them, while thofe that imitate. him in a lawful Calling are far more difhoneft; for the more they impofe the more they abufe. All his Cheats are primitive, and therefore more innocent and of greater Purity than thofe that are

$$
$ 4
$$

264 A J U G L E R.
by Tradition from Hand to Hand derived to them : for he conveys Money out of one Man's Pocket into another's with much more Sincerity and Ingenuity than thofe, that do it in a legal Way, and for a lefs confiderable, though more confcientious, Reward. He will fetch Money out of his own Throat with a great P-l deal more of Delight and Satisfaction to thofe that pay him for it, than any Haranguer whatfoever, and make it chuck in his Throat better than a Lawyer, that has talked himifelf hoarfe, and fwallowed fo many Fees, that he is almoft choaked. He will fpit Fire, and blow Smoke out of his Mouth, with lefs Harm and Inconvenience to the Government, than a feditious Holder-forth; and yet all thefe difown and fcorn him, even as Men, that are grown great and rich, defpife the Meannefs of their Originals. He calls upon Prefo begone, and the Babylonian's Tooth, to amufe and divert the Rab_ ble from looking too narrowly into his Tricks; while a zealous Hypocrite, that calls Heaven and Earth to witnefs his, turns up the Eye, and fhakes the Head at his Idolatry and Profanation. He goes the Circuit to all Country Fairs, where he meets with good ftrolling Practice, and comes up to Bartholomero Fair as his Michaelmas Term; after which he removes to fome great Thorough-fare, where he hangs out himfelf in Effigie, like a Dutch Malefactor, that all thofe, that pafs by, may for their Money have a Trial of his Skill. He endeavours to plant himfelf, as near as he can, to fome PuppetPlay, Monfter, or Mountebank, as the moft convenient Situation, and, when Trading grows fcant, they join all their Forces together, and make up one grand Shew, and admit the CutPurfe and Ballad-Singer to trade under them, as Orange-Women do at a Playhoufe.

A J U G L E R. 265

[ 266 ]

A

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathrm{S} & \mathrm{C} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{P} & \mathrm{T} & \mathrm{I} & \mathrm{C}\end{array}$

IS a Critic, that deals in Wholefale; he never cenfures but in grofs, as being the moft thriving and eafy Trade of Wit: for the Difcovery of particular Errors in Knowledge requires deeper Infight, has more of difficult Subtlety, and lefs of Glory; as it is eafier by much to cry down a Science than underftand it, and more brave to appear above it, than fkilful in it. He has a natural Inclination and Ambition to Knowledge; but being unfortunate in a Temper of Wit not capable of it, derives his Glory from the Remedy of his Defects (as Men do their Bravery from their Nakednefs) and undervaluing thats which he cannot attain to, would make his Neceffity appear a Virtue, and his Ignorance the Choice of his Judgment. Much of this proceeds from his Envy, which is fo impatient of feeing any Man exceed him in that, which he would gladly pretend to, that with Cefar he had rather deftroy the Commonwealth of Letters, than endure another to be greater than himfelf in it. If it be his Misfortune to be engaged in an Argument, his conftant Method is Catechifm; for he will be fure to afk Queftions only, and put others to anfwer, a Game at which the dulleft Idiot may play with the wifeft in the World, and be too hard for him; and when with his Pedigree of Queftions, that beget one another, he has driven you as far as the Wit of Man can reach, becaufe you can go no further, he will conclude you have not moved at all. As if you fhould tell him of the Siege of Troy, and do not begin (as Horace's Poetafter did) with the hatching of Cafor and Pollux, he will not believe you can fay any Thing of Hector and Ajax. He is a worfe Tyrant than Caligula wifhed himfelf; for in denying Reafon, Senfe, and Demonftration he cuts off all the beft Heads of Mankind at a Blow.

A $\quad$ S $\quad$ C $\quad$ E $\quad$ P T T I C. $\quad 26{ }^{\prime} 7$

[ 268 ]

A

P R O J E C T O R

IS by Interpretation a Man of Forecaft. He is an Artift of Plots, Defigns, and Expedients to find out Money, as others hide it, where nobody would look for it. He is a great Rectifier of the Abufes of all Trades and Myfteries, yet has but one Remedy for all Difeafes, that is, by getting a Patent to fhare with them, by Virtue of which they become authorifed, and confequently ceafe to be Cheats. He is a great Promoter of the public Good, and makes it his Care and Study to contrive Expedients, that the Nation may not be ill ferved with falfe Rags, arbitrary Puppet-Plays, and infufficient Monfters, of all which he endeavours to get the Superintendency. He will undertake to render treafonable Pedlars, that carry Intelligence between Rebels and Fanatics, true Subjects and well-affected to the Government for half a Crown a Quarter, which he takes for giving them Licence to do fo fecurely and uncontrouled. He gets as much by thofe Projects that mifcarry, as by thofe that hold (as Lawyers are paid as well for undoing as preferving of Men) for when he has drawn in Adventurers to purchafe Shares of the Profit, the fooner it is ftopped, the better it proves for him; for, his own Bufinefs being done, he is the fooner rid of theirs. He is very expert at gaging the Underftandings of thofe he deals with, and has his Engines always ready with mere Air to blow all their Money out of their Pockets into his own, as Vintners do Wine out of one Veffel into another. He is very amorous of his Country, and prefers the public Good before his own Advantage, until he has joined them both together in fome Monopoly, and then he thinks he has done his Part, and may be allowed to look after his own Affairs in the fecond Place. The chiefeft and moft ufeful Part of his Talent confirts in Quacking and Lying, which he calls anfwering of Objections, and convincing the Ignorant: Without this he can do nothing;

A PROJE CTOR. 269

270 A P R O J E C T O R.
for as it is the common Practice of moft Knaveries, fo it is the fureft and beft fitted to the vulgar Capacities of the World; and though it render him more ridiculous to fome few, it always prevails upon the greater Part.

[ 271 ]

A

COMPLEMENTER

IS one that endeavours to make himfelf appear a very fine Man, in perfuading another, that $H e$ is fo; and by offering thofe Civilities, which he does not intend to part with, believes he adds to his own Reputation, and obliges another for nothing. He is very free in making Prefents of his Services, becaufe he is certain, he cannot poffibly receive in return lefs than they are worth. He differs very much from all other Critics in Punctilios of Honour ; for he efteems himfelf very uncivilly dealt with, if his Vows and Proteftations pafs for any Thing, but mere Lies and Vanities. When he gives his Word, he believes it is no longer his, and, therefore, holds it very unreafonable to give it, and keep it too. He divides his Services among fo many, that there comes but little, or nothing to any one Man's

272 A COMPLEMENTER.

Share; and, therefore, they are very willing to let him take it back again. He makes over himfelf in truft to every Man, but fill it is to bis own Ufes, to fecure his Title againft all other Claims, and cheat his Creditors. He is very generous of his Promifes, but ftill it is without lawful Confideration, and fo they go for nothing. He extols a Man to his Face, like thofe that write in Praife of an Author, to fhow his own Wit, not his, whom they undertake to commend. He has certain fet Forms and Routines of Speech, which he can fay over, while he thinks on any Thing elfe, as a Catbolic does his Prayers; and, therefore, never means what he fays. His Words flow eafily from him, but fo fhallow, that they will bear no Weight at all. All his Offers of Endearment are but like Terms of Courfe, that carry their own Anfwers along with them; and, therefore, pafs for nothing between thofe that underfand them, and deceive thofe only, that believe in them, He profeffes molt Kindnefs commonly to thofe, he leaft cares for, like an Hoft, that bids a Man welcome, when he is going away. He had rather be every Man's menial Servant, than any one Man's Friend; for Servants gain by their Mafters, and Men often lofe by their Friends.

[ $273^{\circ}$ 〕

A

CHURCHWARDEN

IS a public Officer, intrufted to rob the Church by Virtue of his Place, as long as he is in it: He has a very great Care to eat and drink well upon all public Occafions, that concern the Parifh : for a good Confcience being a perpetual Feaft, he believes, the better he feeds; the more Confcience he ufes in the Difcharge of his Truft; and as ling as there is no Dry-money-cheat ufed, all others are allowed; according to the Tradition and Practice of the Church in the pureft Times. When he lays a Tax upon the Parifh he commonly raifes it a fourth Part above the Accompt, to fupply the Default of Houfes that may be burnt, or ftand empty; or Men that may break and run away; and if none of thefe happen, his Fortune is the greater, and his Hazard never the lefs; and therefore he divides the Overplus between himfelf and his Colleagues, who were engaged to pay the whole, if all the Parifh had run away, or hanged themfelves. He overreckons the Parifh in his Accompts, as the Taverns do him, and keeps the odd Money himfelf, inftead of giving it to the Drawers. He eats up the Bell-Ropes like the Afs in the Emblem, and converts the broken Glafs-Windows into whole Beer-Glaffes of Sack; and before his Year is out, if he be but as good a Fellow as the drinking Bifhop was, pledges a whole Pulpit-full. If the Church happen to fall to decay in his Time, it proves a Deodand to him; for he is Lord of the Manor, and does not only make what he pleafes of it, but has his Name recorded on the Walls among Texts of Scripture and leathern Buckets, with the Year of his Office, that the Memory of the Unjuft, as well as the Juft, may laft as long as fo tranfitory a Thing may. He interprets his Oath, as Catbolics do the Scripture, not according to the Senfe and Meaning of the Words, but the Tradition and Practice of his Predeceffors; who have always been obferved. to fwear what others pleafe, and do what they pleafe themfelves.

> Vol. II.

274 CHURCHWARDEN.

[ 275 ]

A  R OMANCE WRITER

PULLS down old Hiftories to build them up finer again, after a new Model of his own defigning. He takes away all the Lights of Truth in Hiftory to make it the fitter Tutorefs of Life; for Truth herfelf has little or nothing to do in the Affairs of the World, although all Matters of the greateft Weight and Moment are pretended and done in her Name; like a weak Princefs, that has only the Title, and Fal/bood all the Power. He obferves one very fit Decorum in dating his Hiftories in the Days of old, and putting all his own Inventions upon ancient Times; for when the World was younger, it might, perhaps, love, and fight, and do generous Things at the Rate he defcribes them; but fince it is grown old, all thefe heroic Feats are laid by and utterly given over, nor ever like to come in Fafhion

276 R OMANCE WRITER:

again; and therefore all his Images of thofe Virtues fignify no more than the Statues upon dead Men's Tombs, that will never make them live again. He is like one of Homer's Gods, that fets Men together by the Ears, and fetches them off again how he pleafes; brings Armies into the Field like Ganello's leaden Soldiers; leads up both Sides himfelf, and gives the Victory to which he pleafes, according as he finds it fit the Defign of his Story; makes Love and Lovers too, brings them acquainted, and appoints Meetings when and where he pleafes, and at the fame Time betrays them in the Height of all their Felicity to miferable Captivity, or fome other horrid Calamity; for which he makes them rail at the Gods, and curfe their own innocent Stars, when he only has done them all the Injury-Makes Men Villains, compells them to act all barbarous Inhumanities by his own Directions, and after inflicts the cruelleft Punifhments upon them for it. He makes all his Knights fight in Fortifications, and ftorm one another's Armoury before they can come to encounter Body for Body; and always matches them fo equally one with another, that it is a whole Page before they can guefs which is likely to have the better ; and he that has it is fo mangled, that it had been better for them both to have parted fair at firft ; but when they encounter with thofe, that are no Knights, though ever fo well armed and mounted, ten to one goes for nothingAs for the Ladies, they are every one the moft beautiful in the whole World, and that's the Reafon why no one of them, nor all together with all their Charms have Power to tempt away any Knight from another. He differs from a juft Hiftorian as a Joyner does from a Carpenter, the one does Things plainly and fubftantially for Ufe, and the other carves and polifhes merely for Show and Ornament.

[^35]
ROMANCE WRITER. 277

$$
\left[\begin{array}{ll}
278
\end{array}\right]
$$

A

$\begin{array}{llll}\mathrm{C} & \mathrm{H} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{A}\end{array}$

IS a Freeman of all Trades, and all Trades of his. Fraud and Treachery, are his Calling, though his Profefion be the ftricteft Integrity and Truth. He fpins Nets, like a Spider, out of his own Entrails, to entrap the Simple and Unwary that light in his Way, whom he devours and feeds upon. All the greater Sort of Cheats, being allowed by Authority, have loft their Names (as Fudges, when they are called to the Bench, are no more filed Lawers) and left the Title to the meaner only, and the unallowed. The common Ignorance of Man_ kind is his Province, which he orders to the beft Advantage. He is but a tame Highwayman, that does the fame Things by Stratagem and Defign, which the other does by Force, makes Men deliver their Underftandings firft, and after their Purfes. Oaths and Lies are his

A Clllll

'Tools that he works with, and he gets his Living by the Drudgery of his Confcience. He endeavours to cheat the Devil by mortgaging his Soul fo many Times over and over to him, forgetting that he has Damnations, as Prielts have Abfolutions, of all Prices. He is a Kind of a juft Judgment, fert into this World to punifh the Confidence and Curiofity of Ignorance, that out of a natural Inclination to Error will tempt its own Punifhment, and help to abufe itfelf. He can put on as many Shapes, as the Devil that fet him on Work, is one that fifhes in muddy Underfandings, and will tickle a Trout in his own Element, till he has him in his Clutches, and after in his Difh, or the Market. He runs down none but thofe, which he is certain are fera Natura, mere natural Animals, that belong to him that can catch them. He can do no Feats without the co-operating Affiftance of the Chowfe, whofe Credulity commonly meets the Impoftor half Way, otherwife nothing is done ; for all the Craft is not in the Catching (as the Proverb fays) but the better half at leaft in being catched. He is one that, like a Bond witbout Fraud, Covin, and furtber Delay, is void and of none T 4

280 A C H E A T.
Effect, other wijedoes fand and remain in full Power; Force, and Virtue. He trufts the Credulous with what Hopes they pleafe at a very eafy Rate, upon their own Security, until he has drawn them far enough in, and then makes them pay for all at once. The firft Thing he gets from him is a good Opinion, and afterwards any Thing he pleafes; for after he has drawn him from his Guards, he deals with him like a Surgeon, and tyes his Arm before he lets him Blood.

[ 28 i ]

A  L $\quad$ I $\quad$ B $\quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{L} \quad \mathrm{L} \quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{R}$

IS a certain Claffic Author, that hąndles his Subject Matter very ruggedly, and endeavours with his own evil Words to corrupt another Man's good Manners. All his Works treat but of two Things, his own Malice, and another Man's Faults; both which he def. cribes in very proper and pertinent Language. He is not much concerned whether what he writes be true or falfe, that's nothing to his Purpofe, which aims only at filtby and bitter; and therefore his Language is, like Pictures of the Devil, the fouler the better. He robs a Man of his good Name, not for any good it will do him (for he dares not own it) but merely, as a Jackdaw fteals Money, for his Pleafure. His Malice has the fame Succefs with other Men's Charity, to be rewarded in private ; for all he gets is but his own private Satisfaction, and the Teftimony of an evil Conicience; for which, if it be difcovered, he fuffers the worft Kind of Martyrdom, and is paid with condign Punifhment, fo that at the beft he has but his Labour for his Pains. He deals with a Man as the Spani/b Inquifition does with Heretics, cloaths him in a Coat painted with hellifh Shapes of Fiends, and fo fhews him to the Rabble, to render him the more odious. He expofes his Wit like a Baftard, for the next Comer to take up and put out to Nurfe, which it feldom fails of, fo ready is every Man to contribute to the Infamy of another. He is like the Devil, that fows Tares in the Dark, and while a Man fleeps plants Weeds among his corn. When he ventures to fall foul on the Government or any great Perfons, if he has not a feccial Care to keep himfelf, like a Conjurer, fafe in his Circle, he raifes a Spirit that falls foul on himfelf, and carries him to Limbo; where his Neck is clapped up in the Hole, out of which it is never releafed, until he has paid his Ears down on the Nail for Fees. He is in a worfe Condition than a School-boy;

282 A L I B E L• L E R.

$$
\text { A LIBE L L E R. } \quad 28_{3}
$$ for when he is difcovered, he is whipped for his Exercife, whether it be well or ill done; fo that he takes a wrong Courfe to fhew his Wit, when his beft Way to do fo is to conceal it; otherwife he fhews his Folly inftead of his Wit, and pays dear for the Miftake.

[ 284 ]

A ## TEDIOUSMMAN

TA L K S to no End, as well as to no Purpofe; for he would never come at it willingly. His Difcourfe is like the RoadMiles in the North,, the filthier and dirtier the longer; and he delights to dwell the longer upon them to make good the old Proverb that fays-they are good for the Dweller, but ill for the Traveller. He fets a Tale upon the Rack, and ftretches until it becomes lame and out of Joint. Hippocrates fays Art is long ; but he is fo for Want of Art. He has a Vein of Dullnefs, that runs through all he fays or does; for nothing can be tedious, that is not dull and infipid. Digreffions and Repetitions, like Bag, and Baggage, retard his March, and put him to perpetual Halts. He makes his Approaches to a Bufinefs by oblique Lines, as if he meant to befiege it, and fetches a wide Compafs about to keep others from difcovering what his Defign is. He is like one that travels in a dirty deep Road, that moves flowly; and, when he is at a Stop, goes back again, and lofes more Time in picking of his Way, than in going it. How troublefome and uneafy foever he is to others, he pleafes himfelf fo well, that he does not at all perceive it; for though bome be bomely, it is more delightful than finer Things abroad; and he, that is ufed to a Thing and knows no better, believes that other Men, to whom it appears otherwife, have the fame Senfe of it that he has; as melancholy Perfons, that fancy themfelves to be Glafs, believe that all others think them fo too; and therefore that, which is tedious to others, is not fo to him, otherwife he would avoid it: for it does not fo often proceed from a natural Defect, as Affectation, and Defire to give others that Pleafure which they find themfelves, though it always falls out quite contrary. He that converfes with him is like one that travels with a Companion, that rides a lame Jade; he muft either endure to go his Pace, or ftay for him; for though he underftands long before what he would be at better than he does himfelf, he muft have Patience and ftay for him, until with much ado to little Purpofe, he at length comes to him; for he believes himfelf injured, if he fhould bate a Jot of his own Diverfion.

A TEDIOUS MAN 285

$$
\left[\begin{array}{ll}
287
\end{array}\right]
$$

A

$\begin{array}{llllll} \\ T & A & Y & L & O & R\end{array}$

CAME in with the Curfe; and is younger Brother unto Thorns, and Thiftles, and Death; for if Adam had not fallen, he had never fat crofs-leg'd. Sin and he are Partners; for as Sin firft brought him into Employment, fo he by cheating and contributing to Pride and Vanity works to Sin, and the old Trade is ftill kept up between both. Our Savizur wore his Coat without Seam, rather than he would have any Thing to do with him; and Elias, when he went to Heaven, left his Mantle behind, becaufe it had been polluted by his Fingers. The feros in all great Calamities were wont to rent their Garments, only to teftify, that they defy'd him and all his Works. All Men love and admire Cloaths, but fcorn and defpife him that made them, as Princes approve of Treafon, but hate Traitors. He fits crofs-leged to fhew that he is originally a 288 A T A Y L O R.

Turk, and calls himfelf Merchant-Taylor uponi no other Account, but only as he defcended from Mabomet, who was a Merchant's Prentice himfelf in his Youth. And his conftant Cuftom of making the Calves of his Legs a Stool to fit upon, has rendered him fo ftiff in the Hams, that he walks as if he was newly circumcifed, to diftinguifh himfelf from a Cbrifian. He lives much more by his Faith than good Works; for he gains more by trufting and believing in one that pays him at long Running, than fix that he works for, upon an even Accompt, for ready Money. He never cuts his Coat according to his Cloth; but always the more he is allowed the lefs he puts in a Garment ; and he believes he has Reafon for it ; for he is fain to take double Pains in contriving how to difpofe both what he fteals, and what he ufes, to the beft Advantage, which cofts him twice as much Labour as that which he gets nothing by. He never cuts a Man's Cloaths but he cuts his Purfe into the Bargain; and when he makes a Pocket takes Handfel of it, and picks it firt himfelf. He calls Stealing damning, by a Figure in Rhetoric called the Effect for the Efficient, and the Place where he lodges all his Thieveries Hell, to put him in mind of his latter End; and what he fteals by Retail the Broker takes off his Hands by Wholefale. He keeps his Wife in Taffety to fave Charges ; for when her Petticoats are worn out, they ferve him to line Vefts with, as well as if they were new, and when he is unfurnifhed of thefe, old Satten and Taffety Men fupply him for Ends of Gold and Silver. He gets more by the $\mathrm{T}_{1}$ imming and Garniture of of Cloaths than all the reft; for he can fwallow Ribbands like a Jugler, and put whole Pieces more in his Bill than ever he made ufe of, and ftretch Lace, as a Shoe-maker does Leather with his Teeth, when he fets it on. The Mercers are in Fee with him to revive old rotten Stuffs by giving them new fantaftic Names; and he brings them into the Mode by fwearing they are new come up ; in Confideration of which he is allowed to buy cheap and fell dear; for he is loth to undervalue his Confcience, and put it off at a mean Rate, as long as he fees his Neighbours can make more of theirs-He frorns that.

A T A Y L O R. $\quad 289$

Vol. II.

[ 290 ]

A

FACTIOUS MEMBER

IS fent out laden with the Wifdom and Politicks of the Place he ferves for, and has his own Freight and Cuftom free. He is trufted like a Factor to trade for a Society, but endeavours to turn all the public to his own private Advantages. He has no Inftructions but his Pleafure, and therefore ftrives to have his Privileges as large. He is very wife in his politic Capacity as having a full Share in the Houfe, and an implicit Right to every Man's Reafon, though he has none of his own, which makes him appear fo fimple out of it. He believes all Reafon of State confifts in Faction, as all Wifdom in Haranguing, of which he is fo fond, that he had rather the Nation fhould perifh than continue ignorant of his great Abilities that Way; though he that obferves his Geftures, Words, and Delivery, will find them fo perfectly agreeable to the Rules of the Houfe, that he cannot but conclude he learnt his Oratory the very fame Way that Jackdaws and Parrots practife by. For he coughs, and fpits, and blows his Nofe with that difcreet and prudent Caution, that you would think he had buried his Talent in a Handkerchief, and were now pulling it out to difpofe of it to a better Advantage. He ftands and prefumes fo much upon the Privileges of the Houfe, as if every Member were a Tribune of the People, and had as abfolute Power as they had in Rome, according to the lately eftablifhed fundamental Cuftom and Practice of their quarter'd Predeceffors of unhappy Memory. He endeavours to fhew his Wifdom in nothing more than in appearing very much unfatisfy'd with the prefent Manage of State-Affairs, although he knows nothing of the Reafons; fo much the better; for the Thing is the more difficult, and argues his Judgment and Infight the greater; for any Man can judge that underffands the, Reafons of what he does, but very few know how to judge mechanically without underftanding why or wherefore. It is fufficient to affure him, that the public Money has been diverted from the proper Ufes it was raifed for, becaufe he has had no Share of it himfelf; and the Government ill-managed, becaufe he has no hand in it, which, truly, is a very great Grievance to the People, that underftand, by himfelf and his Party, that are their Reprefentatives, and ought to underftand for them, how able he is for it. He fathers all his own Paffions and Concerns, like Baftards, on the People, becaufe being entrufted by them without Articles or Conditions, they are bound to acknowledge what foever he does as their own Act and Deed.

U 2

[ 293 ]

A

P R E TE N D E R

IS eafily acquainted with all Knowledges; but never intimate with any; he remembers he has feen them fomewhere before, but cannot poffibly call to mind where. He will call an Art by its Name, and claim Acquaintance with it at firft Sight. He knew it perfectly, as the Platonics fay, in the other World, but has had the Unhappinefs to difcontinue his Acquaintance èver fince his Occafions called him into this. He claps on all the Sail he can poffibly make, though his Veffel be empty and apt to overfet. He is of a true philofophical Temper contented with a little, defires no more Knowledge than will fatisfy Nature, and cares not what his Wants are, fo he can but keep them from the Eyes of the World. His Parts are unlimited; for as no Man knows his Abilities, fo he does his Endeavour, that as few fhould his Defects. He wears himfelf in Oppofition to the Mode, for his Lining is much coarfer than his Outfide; and as others line their Serge with Silk, he lines his Silk with Serge. All his Care is employed to appear, not to be; for things that are not, and Things that appear not, are not only the fame in Law, but in all other Affairs of the World. It fhould feem that the moft impudent Face is the beft; for he that does the fhamefulleft Thing moft unconcerned is faid to fet a good Face upon it: For the Truth is, the Face is but the Outfide of the Mind, but all the Craft is to know how 'tis lined. Howfome'er he fancies himfelf as able as any Man, but not being in a Capacity to try the Experiment, the Hint-Keeper of Gre/bam College is the only competent Judge to decide the Controverfy. He may, for any Thing he knows, have as good a Title to his Pretences as another Man; for Judgment being not paft in the Cafe (which fhall never be by his Means) his Title ftill ftands fair. All he can poffibly attain to is but to be another Thing than Nature meant him, though a much worfe. He makes that good that Pliny fays of Children qui celerius fari cepere, tardius ingredi incipiunt.

294 A PRETENDER.

A PRETENDER.

The apter he is to fmatter, the flower he is in making any Advance in his Pretences. He trufts Words before he is thoroughly acquainted with them, and they commonly fhew him a Trick before he is aware ; and he fhews at the fame Time his Ignorance to the Learned, and his Learning to the Ignorant.

[ 296 ]

A  NE W S-M O N GER

I$S$ a Retailer of Rumour, that takes up upon Truft, and fells as cheap as̀ he buys. He deals in a perifhable Commodity, that will not keep: for if it be not frefh it lies upon his Hands, and will yield nothing. True or falfe is all one to him; for Novelty being the Grace of both, a Truth grows ftale as foon as a Lye; and as a flight Suit will laft as well as a better while the Fafhion holds, a Lye ferves as well as Truth till new ones come up. He is little concerned whether it be good or bad, for that does not make it more or lefs News; and, if there be any Difference, he loves the bad beft, becaufe it is faid to come fooneft ; for he would willingly bear his Share in any public Calamity, to have the Pleafure of hearing and telling it. He is deeply read in Diurnals, and can give as good an Account of Rorwland Pepin, if need be,

A NEWS-M O N GER. 297

 as another Man. He tells News, as Men do Money, with his Fingers; for he affures them it comes from very good Hands. The whole Bufinefs of his Life is like that of a Spaniel; to fetch and carry News, and when he does it well he is clapt on the Back, and fed for it; for he does not take to it altogether like a Gentlemian for his Pleafure, but when he lights on a confiderable Parcel of News, he knows where to put it off for a Dinner, and quarter him_ felf upon it, until he has eaten it out; and by this Means he drives a Trade, by retrieving the firft News to truck it for the firft Meat in Seafon; and like the old Roman Luxury ranfacks all Seas and Lands to pleafe his Palate; for he imports his Narratives from all Parts within the Geography of a Diurnal, and eats as well upon the Rufs and Polander, as the Englifb and Dutch. By this means his Belly is provided for, and nothing lyes upon his Hands but his Back, which takes other Courfes to maintain itfelf by weft and ftray Silver Spoons, ftragling Hoods and Scarfs, pimping, and Setts at L'Ombre.
[ 298 ]

A N

E M B A S S A D OR

IS accountable to Honour in his private Capacity, but not at all in his public; for as he reprefents his Prince, that has the difpofing of Honour, he is above it, and cannot be difpofed by it. The greateft Part of his Qualification confifts in the Bravery of his Followers, and he carries his Abilities on his Servant's Backs. He is obliged to be witty by his Place, and bound to make fmart Repartees, what Shift foever he makes to come by them. He reprefents his Prince's Perfon, when he comes near to the Perfon of the Prince that gives him Audience, but not before, as appears by the profound Reverence he obferves, and the Legs he makes. His Inftructions are his Part, which he learns by Art; and there is nothing left to him but the Action and Delivery. He carries Letters of Credence with him, to enable him better to manage that great Arcanum Imperii,

AN EMBASSADOR.

or politic Art of Government, Diffembling and Lying, which he is entrufted withal, and engaged in Honour to enforce, as far as folemn Vows and Proteftations, and if need be, pawning his Salvation to the Devil, can enable him. He brings Materials with him from Home, to ferve for all politic Occafions that can fall out, and is bound only to make Speeches and Legs to them ; and, the flighter they are, to afford the more Gravity and folemn Formality for Allowance: For he is intrufted with the Wifdom of the Nation which he comes from, and ought to ufe it to the beft Advantage, and preferve it fo fafe, that no Man living may know where to find it out. He is very tender confcienced in his politic Capacity, will not endure that any Man fhould excel him in going or fitting ; and will rather give his Soul, than fo much Place as it would take up on the Point of a Needle. When he puts on the Perfon of his Prince, he makes all other Reafons of State march behind, like a Retinue to attend and wait upon it. He travels like a Lapland Witch, and leaves his own Perfon behind him in a Trance, till he returns Home, and then takes it up again, and comes to himfelf. He goes a Wooing with Letters of Commendation from his Mafter in his own Behalf; makes paffionate Love to fome foreign Intereft, and when he meets with an equal Return of Affection, and has won the tender Heart of the State, he puts all his politic Capacities into one Leg, and efpoufes his Queen with it, as if he fat in the Stocks. He has more Tricks to avoid rencounters with other Embaffadors and Difputes of Precedence, than a Coward has to meet his Enemy in the Field; and when he is engaged by Accident, has as many Expedients to fave his Honour harmlefs, as the learned Critics of the Sword have with curious and fubtle Contemplation found out.

300 AN EMBASSADOR.

[ 301 ]

A

PLAY-W R I T ER

OF our Times is like a Fanatic, that has no Wit in ordinary eafy Things, and yet attempts the hardeft Tufk of Brains in the whole World, only becaufe, whether his Play or Work pleafe or difpleafe, he is certain to come off better than he deferves, and find fome of his own Latitude to applaud him, which he could never expect any other Way; and is as fure to lofe no Reputation, becaufe he has none to venture.

Like gaming Rooks, that never fick
To play for hundreds upon Tick,
'Caufe, if they chance to lofe at Play,
Th'ave not one halfpenny to pay ;
And, if they win a hundred Pound,
Gain, if for Sixpence they compound,

302 A P L A Y-W R ITER.

Nothing encourages him more in his Undertaking than his Ignorance, for he has not Wit enough to underftand fo much as the Difficulty of what he attempts; therefore he runs on boldly like a foolhardy Wit, and Fortune, that favours Fools and the Bold, fometimes takes Notice of him for his double Capacity, and receives him into her good Graces. He has one Motive more, and that is the concurrent ignorant Judgment of the prefent Age, in which his fottifh Fopperies pafs with Applaufe, like Oliver Cromwel's Oratory among Fanatics of his own canting Inclination. He finds it eafier to write in Rhinse than Profe; for the World being overcharged with Romances, he finds his Plots, Paffions, and Repaitees ready made to his Hand ; and if he can but turn them into Rhime, the Thievery is difguifed, and they pafs for his: own Wit and Invention without Queftion; like a ftolen Cloke made into a Coat, or dyed into another Colour. Befides this he makes no Confcience of ftealing any Thing that lights in his Way, and borrows the Advice of fo many to correct, enlarge, and amend what he has illfavouredly patcht together, that it becomes like a Thing drawn by Council, and none of his own Performance, or the Son of a Whore that has no one certain Father. He has very great Reafon to prefer Verfe before Profe in his Compofitions; for Rhime is like Lace, that ferves excellently well to hide the Piecing and Coarfnefs of a bad Stuff, contributes mightily to the Bulk, and makes the lefs ferve by the many Impertinencies it commonly requires to make Way for it ; for very few are endowed with Abilities to bring it in on its own Accompt. This he finds to be good Hufbandry, and a Kind of neceffary Thrift; for they that have but a little ought to make as much of it as they can. His Prologue, which is commonly none of his own, is always better than his Play, like a Piece of Cloth that's fine in the Beginning and coarfe afterwards, though it has but one Topic, and that's the fame that is ufed by Malefactors, when they are to be tried, to except againft as many of the Jury as they can.

A PLA Y-W R I TER. 303

[ 304 ]

A ## MOUNTEBANK

IS an epidemic Phyfician, a Doctor-Errant, that keeps himfelf up by being, like a Top, in Motion; for if he fhould fettle, he would fall to nothing immediately. He is a Pedlar of Medicines, a petty Chapman of Cures, and Tinker empirical to the Body of Man. He ftroles about to Markets and Fairs ; where he mounts on the Top of his Shop, that is his Bank, and publifhes his Medicines as univerfal as himfelf; for every Thing is for all Difeafes, as himfelf is of all Places, that is to fay, of none. His Bufinefs is to fhew Tricks and Impudence: as for the Cure of Difeafes it concerns thofe that have them, not him, farther than to get their Money. His Pudding is his Setter, that lodges the Rabble for him, and then flips him, who opens with a deep Mouth, and has an ill Day, if he does not run down fome. He baits his Patient's Body with his Medicines, as a Rat-catcher does a Room, and either poifons the Difeafe, or him. As foon as he has got all the Money, and fpent all the Credit the Rabble could fpare him, he then removes to frefh Quarters, where he is lefs known, and better trufted. If but one in twenty of his Medicines hit by Chance, when Nature works the Cure, it faves the Credit of all the reft, that either do no Good or Hurt ; for whofoever recovers in his Hands, he does the Work under God; but if he die, God does it under bim; his Time was come, and there's an End. A Velvet Jerkin is his prime Qualification, by which he is diftinguifhed from his Pudding, as He is with his Cap from him. This is the Ufher of his School, that draws the Rabble together, and then He draws their Teeth. He adminifters Phyfic with a Farce, and gives his Patients a Preparative of Dancing on the Rope, to ftir the Humours, and prepare them for Evacuation. His Fool ferves for his Foil, and fets him off, as well as his Bragging and Lying. The firft Thing he vents is his own Praife, and then his Medicines wrapt up in feveral Papers and Lies. He mounts his Bank as a Vaulter does hiṣ wooden Horfe, and then fhews Tricks for his Patients, as Apes do for the King of Spain. He cafts the Nativity of Urinals, and tries Difeafes, like a Witch, by Water. He bails the Place with a Jigg, draws the Rabble together, and then throws his Hook among them. He pretends to univerfal Medicines, that is fuch, as, when all Men are fick together, will cure them all, but till then no one in particular.

Vol. II.
X

306 A MOUNTEBANK.

[ 307 ]

A ## MODERNCRITIC

IS a Corrector of the Prefs gratis; and as he does it for nothing, fo it is to no Purpofe. He fancies himfelf Clerk of Stationers-Hall, and nothing muft pais Current, that is not entered by him. He is very fevere in his fuppofed Office, and crys, Woe to ye Scribes, right or wrong. He fuppofes all Writers to be Malefactors without Clergy, that claim the Privilege of their Books, and will not allow it, where the Law of the Land and common Juftice does. He cenfures in grofs, and condemns all without examining Particulars--If-they will not confefs and accufe themfelves, he will rack them until they do. He is a Com-mittee-Man in the Commonwealth of Letters, and as great a Tyrant ; fo is not bound to proceed but by his own Rules, which he will not

$$
\text { X } 2
$$

308 A MODERN CRITIC.

endure to be difputed. He has been an Apocryphal Scribler himfelf; but his Writings wanting Authority he grew difcontent, and turned Apoftate, and thence becomes fo fevere to thofe of his own Profeffion. He never commends any Thing but in Oppofition to fomething elfe, that he would undervalue, and commonly fides with the weakeft, which is generous any where but in Judging. He is worfe than an Index expurgatorius; for he blots out all, and, when he cannot find a Fault, makes one. He demurrs to all Writers, and when he is over-ruled, will run into Contempt. He is always bringing Writs of Errour, like a Pettifogger, and reverfing of Fudgments, tho' the Cafe be never fo plain. He is a Mountebank, that is always quacking of the infirm and difeafed Parts of Books, to fhew his Skill; but has nothing at all to do with the Sound. He is a very ungentle Reader, for he reads Sentence on all Authors, that have the Unhappinefs to come before him; and therefore Pedants, that ftand in Fear of him, always appeal from him beforehand, by the Name of Momus and Zoilus, complain forely of his extrajudicial Proceedings, and proteft againft him as corrupt, and his Judgment roid and of none Effect; and put themfelves into the Protection of fome powerful Patron, who, like a Knight-Errant, is to encounter with the Magician, and free them from his Enchantments.

A MODERN CRITIC. 309

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}10\end{array}\right]$

A

W I T T A L

耳 S a Perfon of great Complaifance, and very civil to all that have Occafion to make Jfe of his Wife. He married a Wife as a common Proxy for the Service of all thofe, that are willing to come in for their Shares-He ingroffed her firft by Wholefale, and fince puts her of by Retail_He profeffes a Form of Matrimony, but utterly denies the Power thereof. They that tell Talcs are very unjuft ; for having not put in their Claims before Marriage, they are bound for ever after to hold their Tongues. The Reafon why Citizens are commonly Wittals is, becaufe Men that drive a Trade and are Dealers in the World, feldom provide any Thing for their own Ufes, which they will not very willingly put off again for confiderable Profit. He believes it to be but a vulgar Error, and no fuch Difparagement as the World commonly imagines, to be a Cuck-

A W I T T A L. 3II

old; for Man being the Epitomy and Reprefentation of all Creatures, cannot be faid to be perfect, while he wants that Badge and Character, which fo many feveral Species wear both for their Defence and Ornament. He takes the only wife and fure Courfe that his Wife fhould do him no Injury; for having his own free Confent it is not in her Power that Way to do him any Wrong at all. His Wife ịs, like Eve in Paradife, married to all Mankind, and yet is unfatisfied that there are no more Worlds, as Alexander the Great was. She is a Perfon of public Capacity, and rather than not ferve her Comntry would fuffer an Army to marcin over her Belly, as Sir Rice ap Thomas did. Her' Hufband and fhe give and take equal Liberty, which preferves a perfect Peace and good Underfanding between both; while thofe, that are concerned in one another's Love and Honour, are never quiet, but always catterwalling. He differs from a jealous Man, as a valiant Man does from a Coward, that trembles at a Danger, which the other fcorns and defpifes. He is of a true philofophical Temper, and fuffers what he knows not how to avoid with a more than Stoical Refolution-He is one of

$$
\text { X } 4
$$

$3 \mathrm{I}_{2} \mathrm{~A}$ W I T T A L.

thofe the Poet fpeaks of.
-2ui ferre incommoda Vita,
Nec jactare jugum, vita didicere Magitra.
He is as much pleafed to fee many Men approve his Choice of his Wife; and has as great a Kindnefs for them, as Opiniafters have for all thofe whom they find to agree with themfelves in Judgment, and approve the Abilities of their Underffandings.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}13\end{array}\right]$

A

$\begin{array}{lllllll}B & U & S & Y & M & A & N\end{array}$

IS one, that feems to labour in every Man's Calling, but his own; and like Robin-GoodFellow does any Man's Drudgery, that will let him. He is like an Ape, that loves to do whatfoever he fees others do; and is always as bufy as a Child at Play. He is a great Undertaker, and commonly as great an Under-Performer. His Face is like a Lawyer's Buckram Bag, that has always Bufinefs in it ; and as he trots about, his Head travels as faft as his Feet. He covets his Neighbour's Bufinefs, and his own is to meddle, not do. He is very lavifh of his Advice, and gives it freely, becaufe it is worth nothing, and he knows not what to do with it himfelf. He is a common-Barreter for his Pleafure, that takes no Money, but pettifogs gratis. He is very inquifitive after every Man's Occafions, and charges himfelf with them like a public Notary. He is a great Overfeer of ## $314 \quad A \quad B \quad U \quad S \quad Y \quad M A A N$.

State-Affairs; and can judge as well of them before he underitands the Reafons, as afterwards. He is excellent at preventing Inconveniencies, and finding out Remedies, when 'tis too late; for like Prophefies, they are never heard of till it is to no Purpofe. He is a great Reformer, always contriving of Expedients, and will prefs them with as much Earneftnefs, as if himfelf and every Man he meets had Power to impofe them on the Nation. He is always giving Aim to State Afiairs, and believes by frrewing of his Body he can make them fhoot which Way he pleafes. He enquires into every Man's Hifory, and makes his own Commentaries upon it, as he pleafes to fancy it. He wonderfully affeets to feem full of Employments, and borrows Men's Bufinefs only to put on and appear in; and then returns it back again, only a little worfe. He frequents all public Places, and like a Pillar in the oid Excionge is hung with all Men's Buiners both public and private; and his own is only to expofe them. He dreads nothing fo much as to be thought at Leifure, though he is never otherways, for though he be always doing, he never does any Thing.

$[315$ ]

A

LITIGIOUS MAN

OES to Law, as Men do to Bawdy-耳 Houfes, to fpend his Money, and fatisfy his Concupifcence of Wrangling. He is a conftant Cuftomer to the old reverend Gentlewoman Lawe, and believes her to be very honeft, though fhe picks his Pockets, and puts a thoufand Tricks and Gulleries upon him. He has a ftrange Kindnefs for an Action of the Cafe, but a mof palfionate Loyalty for the King's Writ. A well drawn Bill and Anfwer will draw him all the World over, and a Breviate as far as the Line. He enters the Lifts at Wefliminfer, like an old Tilter, runs his Courfe in Law, and breaks an Oath or two infead of a Lance; and if he can but unhorfe the Defendant, and get the Sentence of the Judges cn his Side, he marches off in Triumph. He prefers a Cry of Lawyers at the Bar before any Pack of the beft mouthed Dogs in all the North. He has commonly once a Term a Tryal of Skill with fome other Profeffor of the noble Science of Contention at the feveral Weapons of Bill and Anfwer, Forgery, Perjury, Subornation, Cbamparty, Affidavit, Common Barretry, Maintenance, &c. and, though he come off with the worft, he does not greatly care, fo he can but have another Bout for it. He fights with Bags of Money, as they did heretofore with Sand-Bags, and he that has the heavieft has the Advantage, and knocks down the other right or wrong; and he fuffers the Penalties of the Law for having no more Money to fhow in the Cafe. He is a Client by his Order, and Votary of the long Robe; and though he were fure the Devil invented it to hide his cloven Feet, he has the greater Reverence for it; for as evil Manners produce good Laws, the worfe the Inventor was, the better the Thing may be. He keeps as many Knights of the Poft to fwear for him, as the Kirg does poor Knights at Windfor to pray for him. When he is Defendant and like to be worfted in a Suit, he puts in a Crofs

316 A LITIGIOUS MAN.

A LITIGIOUS MAN. ${ }^{317}$ Bill, and becomes Plaintiff; for the Plainant is eldeft Hand, and has not only that Advantage, but is underftood to be the better Friend to the Court, and is confidered for it accordingly.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}318\end{array}\right]$

A

P $\quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{D} \quad \mathrm{A} \quad \mathrm{N} \quad \mathrm{T}$

VS a dwarf Scholar, that never outgrows the Mode and Fafhion of the School, where he fhould have been taught. He wears his little Learning, unmade-up, puts it on, before it was half finifhed, without preffing or fmoothing. Hie ftudies and ufes Words with the greatef Refpect poffible, merely for their own Sakes, like an honeft Man, without any Re_ gard of Intereft, as they are ufeful and ferviceable to Things, and among thofe he is kindeft to Strangers (like a civil Gentleman) that are far from their own Country and moft unknown. He collects old Sayings and Ends of Verfes, as Antiquaries do old Coins, and is as glad to produce them upon all Occafions. He has Sentences ready lying by him' for all Purpofes, though to no one, and talks of Authors as familiarly as his Fellow-Collegiates. He will challenge Acquaintance with thofe, he never faw before, and pretend to intimate Knowledge of thofe, he has only heard of. He is well ftored with Terms of Art, but does not know how to ufe them, like a Country-Fellow, that carries his G'oves in his IIands, not his Hands in his Gloves. He handles Arts and Sciences like thofe, that can play a little upon an Inftrument, but do not know, whether it be in Tune or not. He converfes by the Book; and does not talk, but quote. If he can but fcrew in fomething, that an ancient Writer faid, he believes it to be much better than if he had fomething of himfelf to the Purpofe. His Brain is not able to concoct what it takes in, and therefore brings things up as they were fwallowed, that is, crude and undigefted, in whole Sentences, not affimilated Senfe, which he rather affects; for his Want of Judgment, like Want of Health, renders his Appetite prepofterous. He pumps for affected and farfet Expreffions, and they always prove as far from the Purpofe. He admires Canting above Senfe. He is worfe than one, that is utterly ignorant, as a Cock that fees a little, fights worfe than one, that is ftark-blind. He fpeaks in a different Dialect from other Men, and much affects forced Expreffions, forgetting that bard Words, as well as evilones, corrupt good Manners. He can do nothing, like a Conjurer, out of the Circle of his Arts, nor in it without canting and . . . . If he profeffes Phyfic, he gives his Patients found hard Words for their Money, as cheap as he can afford ; for they coft him Money and Study too, before he came by them, and he has Reafon to make as much of them as he can.

A P E D A N T.

320 A P E D A N T.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}321\end{array}\right]$

A

$\begin{array}{llllll}H & U & N & T & E & R\end{array}$

IS an auxiliary Hound, that affifts one Nation of Beafts to fubdue and over-run another. He makes mortal War with the Fox for committing Acts of Hoftility againft his Poultry. He is very folicitous to have his Dogs well defcended of worfhipful Families, and underftands their Pedigree as learnedly as if he were a Herald; and is as careful to match them according to their Rank and Qualities, as High-Germans are of their own Progenies, He is both Cook and Phyfician to his Hounds, underftands the Conflitutions of their Bodies, and what to adminitter in any Infirmity or Difeafe, acute or chronic, that can befal them. Nor is he lefs ikilful in Phyfiognomy, and from the Afpects of their Faces, Shape of their Snouts, falling of their Ears and Lips, and Make of their Barrels will give a fhrewd Guefs Vol. II. Y

322 A H U N T E R.

at their Inclinations, Parts, and Abilities, and what Parents they are lineally defcended from; and by the Tones of their Voices and Statures of their Perfons eafily difcover, what Country they are Natives of. He believes no Mufic in the World is comparable to a Chorus of their Voices, and that when they are well matched they will hunt their Parts as true at firft Scent, as the beft Singers of Catches, that ever opened in a Tavern, that they underftand the Scale as well as the beft Scholar, that ever learned to. compofe by the Mathematics; and that when he winds his Horn to them, 'tis the very fame Thing with a Cornet in a Quire; that they will run down the Hare with a Fuge, and a double D-fol-re-Dog hunt a thorough-bafe to them all the while; that when they are at a lofs they do but reft, and then they know by turns who are to continue a Dialogue between two or three of them, of which he is commonly one himfelf. He takes very great Pains in his Way, but calls it Game and Sport, becaufe it is to no Purpofe; and he is willing to make as much of it as he can; and not be thought to beftow fo much Labour and Pains, about nothing. Let the Hare take which Way fhe will, fhe feldom fails to lead him at long-runining to the Alehoufe, where he meets with an Aftergame of Delight, in making up a Narrative, how every Dog behaved himfelf; which is never done without long Difpute, every Man inclining to favour his Friend as far as he can; and if there be any Thing remarkable, to his Thinking, in it, he preferves it to pleafe himfelf; and, as he believes, all People elfe with, during his natural Life, and after leaves it to his Heirs Male entailed upon the Family, with his Bugle-Horn and Seal-Ring.

A H U N T E R. $\quad 323^{3}$

$\left[\begin{array}{lll}324\end{array}\right]$

A

$\begin{array}{llllllll}H & U & M & O & R & I & S & T\end{array}$

I$S$ a peculiar Fantaftic, that has a wonderful natural Affection to fome particular Kind of Folly, to which he applies himfelf, and in Time becomes eminent. 'Tis commonly fome out-lying Whimfie of Bedlam, that being tame and unhurtful is fuffered to go at Liberty. The more ferious he is, the more ridiculous he becomes, and at the fame Time pleafes himfelf in Earneft, and others in Jeft. He knows no mean; for that is inconfiftent with all Humour, which is never found but in fome Extreme or other. Whatfoever he takes to, he is very full of, and believes every Man elfe to be fo too; as if his own Tafte were the fame in every Man's Palate. If he be a Virtuofo, he applies himfelf with fo much Earneftnefs to what he undertakes, that he puts his Reafon out of Joint, and ftrains his Judgment: And there is hardly any Thing in the World fo flight or ferious, that fome one or other has not fquandered away his Brains, and Time, and Fortune upon, to no other Purpofe, but to be ridiculous. He is exempted from a dark Room and a Doctor, becaufe there is no Danger in his Frenzy; otherwife he has as good a Title to frefh Straw as another. Humour is but a Crookednefs of the Mind, a difproportioned Swelling of the Brain, that draws the Nourifhment from the other Parts, to fuff an ugly and deformed Crup-Shoulder. If it have the Luck to meet with many of its own Temper, inftead of being ridiculous, it becomes a Church, and from Jeft grows to Earneft.

A HUMORIST.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}326\end{array}\right]$

> A > OFA

SETS the Pfalm, and all his Party fing after him. He is like a Figure in Arithmetic, the more Ciphers he ftands before, the more his Value amounts to. He is a great Haranguer, talks himfelf into Authority, and, like a Parrot, climbs with his Beak. He appears brave in the Head of his Party, but braver in his own; for Vain-Glory leads him, as he does them, and both many Times out of the King's Highway, over Hedges and Ditches, to find out Bye-ways and fhorter Cuts, which generally prove the furtheft about, but never the neareft Home again. He is fo paffionate a Lover of the Liberty of the People, that his

A LEADER OF A FACTION. 327

Fondnefs turns to Jealoufy - He interprets every Trifle in the worft Senfe to the Prejudice of her Honefty, and is fo full of Caprices and Scruples, that, if he had his Will, he would have her fhut up, and never fuffered to go abroad again, if not made away, for her Incontinence. All his Politics are fpeculative, and for the moft part impracticable, full of curious Niceties, that tend only to prevent future imaginary Inconveniencies with greater real and prefent. He is very fuperftitious of having the Formalities and Punctilios of Law held facred, that, while they are performing, thofe, that would deftroy the very Being of it, may have Time to do their Bufinefs, ot efcape. He bends all his Forces againft thofe that are above him, and like a freeborn Englifb Maftiff, plays always at the Head. He gathers his Party as Fanatics do a Church, and admits all his Admirers how weak and flight foever ; for he believes it is Argument of Wifdom enough in them to admire, or, as he has it, to underftand him. When he has led his Faction into any Inconvenience, they all run into his Mouth, as young Snakes do into the old ones, and he defends them with his Oratory as well as he 328 A LEADER OF A FACTION. is able; for all his Confidence depends upon his. Tongue more than his Brain or Heart, and if that fail the others furrender immediately; for though David fays it is a two-edged Sword, a wooden Dagger is a better Weapon to fight with. His Judgment is like a nice Ballance, that will turn with the twentieth Part of a Grain, but a little ufing renders it falfe, and it is not fo good for ufe as one, that will not ftis without a greater Weight.

$$
\text { Y } 4
$$

[ 329 ]

A

DEBAUCHED MAN

SAVES the Devil a Labour, and leads himfelf into Temptation, being loath to lofe his good Favour in giving him any Trou_ ble, where he can do the Bufinefs himfelf without his Affiftance, which he very prudently referves for Matters of greater Concernment. He governs himfelf in an arbitrary Way, and is abfolute, without being confined to any Thing but his own Will and Pleafure, which he makes his Law. His Life is all Recreation, and his Diverfions nothing but turning from one Vice, that he is weary of, to entertain himfelf with another that is frefh. He lives above the State of his Body as well as his Fortune, and runs out of his Health and Money, as if he had made a Match and betted on the Race, or bid the Devil take the Hindmoft. He is an amphibious Animal, that lives in two Elements wet and dry ; and never comes out of the firft, but, like a Sea-Calf, to fleep on the Shore. His Language is very fuitable to his Converfation, and he talks as loofely as he lives. Ribaldry and Profanation are his Doctrine and Ufe; and what he profefies pubiicly he practifes very carefully in his Life and Converfation, not like thofe Clergymen, that to fave the Souls of other Men condemn themfelves out of their own Mouths. His whole Life is nothing but a perpetual Lordfhip of Mifrule, and a conftant Ramble Day and Night as long as it lafts, which is not according to the Courfe of Nature, but its own Courle; for he cuts off the latter End of it, like a pruned Vine, that it may bear the more Wine, although it be the fhorter. As for that which is left, he is as lavifh of it as he is of every Thing elfe; for he fleeps all Day, and fits up all Night, that he may not fee how it paffes, until, like one that travels in a Litter and fleeps, he is at his Journey's End before he aware ; for he is fpirited away by his Viceses, and clapped under Hatches, where he never knows whither he is going, until he is at the End of his Voyage.

A DEBAUCHED MAN.

[ 331 ]

T H E

SEDITIOUS MAN

TS a civil Mutineer, and as all Mutinies for the moft Part are for Pay, if it were not for that he would never trouble himfelf with it. His Bufinefs is to kindle and blow up Difcontents againft the Government, that, when they are inflamed, he may have the fairer Opportunity to rob and plunder, while thofe, that are concerned, are employed in quenching it. He endeavours to raife Tumults, and, if he can, civil War, a Remedy which no Man, that means well to his Country, can endure to think on, though the Difeafe were never fo defperate. He is a State-Moúntebank, whofe Bufinefs is to perfuade the People that they are not. well in Health, that he may get their Money to make them worfe.' If he be a Preacher, he has the Advantage of all others of his Tribe; for he has a Way to vent Sedition by Wholefale ; and as the fouleft Purpofes have

332 THE SEDITIOUS MAN.

moft need of the faireft Pretences; fo when Sedition is mafked under the Veil of Piety, Religion, Confcience, and holy Duty, it propagates wonderfully among the Rabble, and he vents more in an Hour from the Pulpit, than others by News and Politics can do in a Week. Next him Writers and Libellers are moft pernicious; for though the Contagion they difperfe fpreads flower and with lefs Force than preaching, yet it lafts longer, and in Time extends to more, and with lefs Danger to the Author, who is not eafily difcovered, if he ufe any Care to conceal himfelf. And therefore as we fee ftinging Flies vex and provoke Cattle mof immediately before Storms: fo Multitudes of thofe Kinds of Vermin do always appear to ftir up the People, before the Beginning of all troublefome Times; and nobody knows who they are, or from whence they came, but only that they were printed the prefent Year, that they may not lofe the Advantage of being known to be new. Some do it only out of Humour and Envy, or defire to fee thofe that are above them pulled down, and others raifed in their Places; as if they held it a Kind of Freedom to change their Governours, though they continue in the fame Condition themferves ftill, only they are a little better pleafed with it, in obferving the Dangers Greatnefs is expofed to. He delights in nothing fo much as civil Commotions, and like a Porpoife always plays before a Storm. Paper and Tinder are both made of the fame material Rags; but he converts them both into the fame again, and makes his Paper Tinder.

[ 334 ]

A N

AFFECTEDMAN

CYARRIES himfelf like his Difh (as the Proverb fays) very uprightly, without fpilling one Drop of his Humour. He is an Orator and Rhetorician, that delights in Flowers and Ornaments of his own devifing to pleafe himfelf, and others that laugh at him. He is of a leaden dull Temper, that ftands ftiff, as it is bent, to all crooked Lines, but never to the Right. When he thinks to appear moft graceful, he adorns himfelf moft ill favouredly, like an Indian that wears Jewels in his Lips and Noftrils. His Words and Geftures are all as ftiff as Buckram, and he talks as if his Lips were turned up as well as his Beard. All his Motions are regular as if he went by Clockwork, and he goes very true to the Nick as he is fet. He has certain favourite Words and Expreffions, which he makes very much of, as he has Reafon to do, for they ferve him upon all Occafions, and are never out of the Way when he has ufe of them, as they have Leifure enough to do; for nobody elfe has any Occafion for them but himfelf. All his Affectations are forced and ftolen from others, and though they become fome particular Perfons where they grow naturally, as a Flower does on its Stalk, he thinks they will do fo by him, when they are pulled and dead. He puts Words and Language out of its ordinary Pace, and breaks it to his own Fancy, which makes it go fo uneafy in a Shuffle, which it has not been ufed to. He delivers himfelf in a forced Way like one that fings with a feigned Voice beyond his natural Compafs. He loves the Sound of Words better than the Senfe, and will rather venture to incur Nonfenfe than leave out a Word, that he has a Kindnefs for. If he be a Statefman, the flighter and meaner his Employments are, the bigger he looks, as an Ounce of Tin fwells and looks bigger than an Ounce of Gold; and his Affectations of Gravity are the moft defperate of all, as the Aphorifm fays-Madnefs of Study and Confideration are harder to be cured than thofe of lighter and more fantaftic Humour.

AN AFFECTED MAN. 335

[ 336 ]

A

MEDICINE-T AKER

HAS a fickly Mind, and believes the Infirmity is in his Body; like one, that draws the wrong Tooth, and fancies his Pain in the wrong Place. The lefs he underftands the Reafon of Phyfic, the ftronger Faith he has in it, as it commonly fares in all other Affairs of the World. His Difeafe is only in his Judgment, which makes him believe a Doctor can fetch it out of his Stomach, or his Belly; and fright thofe Worms out of his Euts, that are bred in his Brain. He believes a Doctor is a Kind of Conjurer, that can do ftrange Things, and he is as willing to have him think fo; for by that means he does not only get his Money, but finds himfelf in fome Poffibility, by com_ plying with that Fancy, to do him good for it, which he could never expect to do any other Way; for like thofe that have been cured by drinking their own Water, his own Imagination is a better Medicine than any the Doctor knows how to prefcribe, even as the WeaponSalve cures a Wound by being applied to that which made it. He is no fooner well, but any Story or Lye of a new famous Doctor, or ftrange Cure puts him into a Relaple, and he falls fick of a Medicine inftead of a Difeafe, and catches Phyfic, like him that fell into a Loofenefs at the Sight of a Purge. He never knows when he is well, nor fick, but is always tampering with his Health till he has fpoiled it, like a foolifh Mufician, that breaks his Strings with ftriving to put them in Tune; for Nature, which is Pbyjc, underftands better how to do her own Work than thofe that take it from her at fecond hand. Hippocrates fays-Ars longa, Vita brevis, and it is the trueft of all his Aphorifms,> For be that's giv'n mucb to the long Art, Does not prolong bis Life, but cut it foort.

A MEDICINE-TAKER. 337

Vol. II.

Z

[ $33^{8}$ ]

T H E

$\begin{array}{lllllll}R & U & D & E & M & A & N\end{array}$ $\bar{S}$ an Ofro-Goth, or northern Hun, that wherefcever he comes, invades and all the World does overrun, without Diftinction of Age, Sex, or Quality. He has no Regard to any Thing but his own Humour, and that he expects fhould pafs every where without afking Leave, or being afked wherefore, as if he had a Safe-conduct for his Rudenefs. He rolls up himfelf, like a Hedgehog, in his Prickles, and is as untractable to all that come near him. He is an ill-defigned Piece, built after the ruftic Order; and all his Parts look too big for their Height. He is fo ill contrived, that that which fhould be the Top in all regular Structures, i. e. Confidence, is his Foundation. He has neither Doctrine nor Difcipline in him, like a fanatic Church, but

THERUDE MAN. 339

is guided by the very fame Spirit, that dipped the Herd of Swine in the Sea. He was not bred but reared, not brought up to Hand, but fuffered to run wild, and take after his Kind, as other People of the Pafture do. He takes that Freedom in all Places, as if he were not at Liberty, but had broken loofe, and expected to be tied up again. He does not eat but feed, and when he drinks goes to Water. The old Romans beat the barbarous Part of the World into Civility ; but if he had lived in thofe Times he had been invincible to all Attempts of that Nature, and harder to be iubdued and governed than a Province. He eats his Bread, according to the Curfe, with the Sweat of his Brows, and takes as much Pains at a Meal as if he earn'd it ; puffs and blows like a Horfe that eats Provender, and crams his Throat like a fcrewed Gun with a Bullet bigger than the Bore. His Tongue runs perpetually over every Thing that comes in its. Way, without Regard of what, where, or to whom ; and nothing but a greater Rudenefs than his own can ftand before it; and he ufes it to as flovenby Purpofes as a Dog does, that licks his Sores $34^{\circ}$ THE R U DE M A N. and the Dirt off his Feet. He is the beft Inftance of the Truth of Pytbagoras's Doctrine, for his Soul paft through all Sorts of brute Beafts before it came to him, and ftill retains fomething of the Nature of every one.

[ 34 I ]

THE

$$
\mathrm{M} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{~S} \cdot \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{R}
$$

IS like the Sea, that is faid to be richer than the Land, but is not able to make any Ufe of it at all, and only keeps it from thofe that know how to enjoy it if they had it. The Devil underftood his Bufinefs very well, when he made Choice of Fudas's Avarice to betray Cbrift; for no other Vice would have undertaken it; and it is to be feared, that his Vicars now on Earth, by the Tendernefs they have to the Bag, do not ufe him much better than his Steward did then. He gathers Wealth to no Purpofe but to fatisfy his Avarice, that has no End; and afflicts himfelf to poffers that, which he is of all Men the moft incapable of ever obtaining. His Treafure is in his Hands in the fame Condition as if it were buried under Ground, and $342 \quad$ T H E M I S E R.
watched by an evil Spirit. His Defires are like the bottomiefs Fit which he is defined to; for the one is as foon filled as the other. He fhuts up his Money in clofe Cuftody; and that, which has Power to open all Locks, is not able to fet itfelf at Liberty. If he ever lets it out, it is upon good Bail and Mainprize, to render itfelf Prifoner again, whenfoever it fhall be fummoned. He loves Wealth as an Eunuch dues Women, whom he has no Poffibility of enjoying, or one that is bewitched with an Impotency, or taken with the FallingSicknefs. His greedy Appetite to Riches is but a Kind of Dog-Hunger, that never digefts what it devours; but fill the greedier and more eager it crams itfelf becomes more meager. He finds that Ink and Parchment preferves Money better than an iron Cheft and Parfrmony, like the Memories of Men that lye dead and buried when they are committed to Brafs and Marble, but revive and flouring when they are trufted to authentic Writings, and encreafe by being ufed. If he had lived among the Geres in the Wildernefs, he would have been one of their chief Reformers, and have worhipped any Thing that is caft in Gold, though a fillier Creature than a Calf. St. Fobn in the Revelations defcribes the new Jerufalem to be built all of Gold and Silver and precious Stones; for the Saints commonly take fo much Delight in thofe Creatures, that nothing elfe could prevail with them ever to come thither : and as thofe Times are called the golden Age, in which there was no Gold at all in ufe; fo Men are reputed godly and rich, that make no Ufe at all of their Religion or Wealth. All that he has gotten together with perpetual Pains and Induftry is not Wealth, but a Collection, which he intends to keep by him more for his own Diverfion than any other Ufe; and he that made Ducks and Drakes with his Money enjoyed it every Way as much. He makes no Confcience of any Thing but parting with his Money, which is no better than a Separation of Soul and Body to him, and he believes it to be as bad as felf-Murther if he fhould do it willfully; for the Price of the Weapon, with which a Man is killed, is always efteemed a very confiderable Circumftance, and next to not baving the Fear of God before bis Eyes. He loves the Bowels of the Earth broiled on the Coals above any other Cookery in the World. He is a Slave condemned to the Mines. He $344^{\circ} \mathrm{T}$ H E M I S E R. laughs at the golden Mean as ridiculons, and believes there is no fuch Thing in the World; for how can there be a Mean of that, of which no Man ever had enough ? He loves the World fo well, that he would willingly lofe himfelf to fave any Thing by it. His Riches are like a Dunghil, that renders the Ground unprofitable that it lies upon, and is good for nothing, un. til it be fpread and fcattered abroad.

$\begin{array}{lllllllll}T & H & E & M & I & S & E & R & 343\end{array}$

$$
\mathrm{Z}_{4}
$$

[ 345 ]

A

R A B B L E

IS a Congregation, or Affembly of the StatesGeneral fent from their feveral and refpective Shops, Stalls, and Garrets. They are full of Controverfy, and every one of a feveral Judgment concerning the Bufinefs under prefent Confideration, whether it be Mountebank, Show, Hanging, or Ballad-Singer. They meet, like Democritus's Atoms in vacuo, and by a fortuitous Jufling together produce the greateft and moft favage Beaft in the whole World: For, tho' the Members of it may have fomething of human Nature, while they are afunder, when they are put together, they have none at all; as a Multitude of feveral Sounds make one great Noifé unlike all the reft, in which no one Particular is diftinguifhed. They are a great Dunghill, where all

346 A R A B B L E.

Sorts of dirty and nafty Humours meet, ftink, and ferment ; for all the Parts are in a perpetual Tumult. 'Tis no wonder, they make ftrange Churches, for they take naturally to any Impofture, and have a great Antipathy to Truth and Order, as being contrary to their original Confufion. They are a Herd of Swine poffert with a dry Devil, that run after Hanging, inftead of Drowning. Once a Month they go on Pilgrimage to the Gallows, to vifit the Sepulchres of their Anceftors, as the Turks do once a Week. When they come there they fing Pfalms, quarrel, and return full of Satisfaction and Narrative. When they break loofe they are like a public Ruin, in which the higheft Parts lye undermoft, and make the nobleft Fabrics heaps of Rubbifh. They are like the Sea, that's firred into a Tumult with every Blaft of Wind, that blows upon it, till it become a watry Appenine, and heap Mountain Billows upon one another, as once the Giants did in the War with Heaven, A Crowd is their proper Element, in which they make their Way with their Shoulders, as Pigs creep through Hedges. Nothing in the World delights them fo much as the Ruin of great

A R A B B L E. 347
Perfons, or any Calamity, in which they have no Share, though they get nothing by it. They love nothing but themfelves in the Likenefs of one another, and, like Sheep, run all that Way, the firft goes, efpecially if it be againft their Governors, whom they have a natural Difaffection to.

[ $34^{8}$ ]

A

S H O P K E E P E R

IIVES by the Labour of his own Tongue and other Men's Hands; and gains more by his flat downright Lying, than the Artificer does by all his Induftry, Pains and Ingenuity: for his Tongue is a Kind of Taylor's Goole or hot Prefs, with which he fets the laft Glofs upon his coarfe decayed Wares. His chief Qualification confirts in a confident Outfacing of Truth, and perfuading his Cuftoners to believe him rather than their own Senfes, which they have little Reafon to do; for he, that will ufe falfe Lights, falfe Weights, and falfe Meafures, will never ftick at falfe Words: and as the more he ftretches his Stuffs in the Meafure the fcantier it always proves; fo the more he commends it the worfe it afterwards appears upon Trial. The greateft Hazard he runs is Trufting, which yet he knows how to infure; for as when he takes a Thief

A S H OPK E EPER. 349

he makes him pay for all and more than he has loft by other Thieves: fo when he truts, it is at fuch a Rate, that he that pays him pays for all thofe that do not. He walks in his Shop with a Yard always in his Hand inftead of a Staff, that it may wear fhorter and fave his Confcience harmlefs, if he fhould have Occafion to fwear it was never cut fince he had itHis Cuftom of Lying, and the Profit he receives by it produces a Kind of natural Inclination in him to all Sorts of Impoftors, and therefore he is as eafily cheated out of his Way, as he cheats others in it, takes naturally to all Fanatic Whimfies in Religion, and is as eafily mifled by a feditious Teacher, as a Child is by a Famaica Spirit; as for Truth he gains nothing by it, and therefore will have nothing to do with it. He never troubles his Head with Speculations but only in Divinity and Politics, in which his Ignorance is fo prevailing, that he believes himfelf a great deal abler than his Governors. He fets a ralue on his Commodities, not according to their true Worth, but the Ignorance of the Buyers; and always fells cheapeft to thofe whom he finds to underftand moft of his Trade ; but he that leaves it to him is fure to be cheated; for he that lives by Lying $35^{\circ}$ A S H OP K E EPER. will never be fcrupulous in taking Money for his Reputation. He calls his profeffion a My/tery, which being rightly interpreted by his Practice fignifies only this - That as all Turks are Tradefmen, even fo all Tradefmen are Turks. His falfe Lights are a Kind of Deceptio vifus, with which he cafts a Mift, like a Conjurer, before the Eyes of his Cuftomers, that they may take no Notice of the Imperfections and Infirmities of his fpotted and ftained Stuffs, until it is too late. The more Truft Men repofe in him, the more he is fure to cheat them, as Taylors all ways make the Cloaths of thofe fcantieft, who allow them the largelt Meafure-Thofe of the fame Trade commonly fet up together in a Street, as Rooks build together in a Tuft of Trees. Country Gentlemen always defign the leaft hopeful of their Children to Trades, and out of that Stock the City is fupplied with that fottifh Ignorance, which we fee it perpetually abound with.

A  Q U A K E R

耳 S a Scoundrel Saint, of an Order without L Founder, Vow, or Rule; for he will not fwear, nor be tyed to any Thing, but his own Humour. He is the Link-Boy of the Sectaries, and talks much of his Light, but puts it under a Bufhel, for nobody can fee it but himfelf. His Religion is but the cold Fit of an Ague, and his Zeal of a contrary Temper to that of all others, yet produces the fame Effects; as cold Iron in Greenland, they fay, burns as well as hot; which makes hin delight, like a Salamander, to live in the Fire of Perfecution. He works out his Salvation, not with Fear, but Confidence and Trembling. His Profeflion is but a Kind of Winter-Religion; and the Original of it as uncertain as the hatching of Woodcocks, for no Man can tell from whence it came. He Vapours much of the Light within him, but no fuch Thing appears, unlefs he means as he is light-headed. He believes he takes up the Crofs in being crofs to all Mankind. He delights in Perfecution, as fome old extravagant Fornicators find a Lechery in being whipt; and has no Ambition but to go to Heaven in what he calls a fiery Chariot, that is, a Woodmonger's Faggot Cart. You may perceive he has a Crack in his Skuil by the flat Twang of his Nofe, and the great Care he takes to keep his Hat on, left his fickly Brains, if he have any, fhould take Cold at it. He believes his Doctrine to be heavenly, becaufe it agrees perfectly with the Motus Trepidationis. All his Hopes are in the Turks overrunning of Chriftendom, becaufe he has heard they count Fools and Madmen Saints, and doubts not to pafs mufter with them for great Abilities that Way. This makes him believe he can convert the Turk, tho' he could do no good on the Pope, or the Prefoyterian. Nothing comes fo near his quaking Liturgy, as the Papiftical Poffeffions of the Devil, with which it conforms in Difcipline exact. His Church, or rather Chapel, is built upon a flat Sand, without fuperior or inferior in it, and not upon a Rock, which is never found without great Inequalities. Next Demoniacs he moff refembles the Reprobate, who are faid to be condemned to Weeping and Gnafhing of Teeth. There was a Botcher of their Church, that renounced his Trade and turned Preacher, becaufe he held it fuperftitious to fit crofs-legged. His Devotion is but a Kind of Epiritual Palfy, that proceeds from a Diftemper in the Brain, where the Nerves are rooted. They abhor the Church of England, but conform exactly with thofe primitive Fathers of their Church, that heretofore gave Anfwers at the Devil's Oracles, in which they obferved the very fame Ceremony of quaking and and gaping now practifed by our modern En_ thufiafts at their Exorcifms, rather thân Exercifes of Devotion. He fucks in the Air like a Pair of Bellows, and blows his inward Light with it, till he dung Fire, as Cattle do in Lincolyfire. The general Ignorance of their whole Party make it appear, that whatfoever their Zeal may be, it is not according to Knzoledge.
$35^{2}$ A Q U A K E R.

A Q U A K E R. 353

$$
\text { VoL. } \mathrm{I} . \quad \mathrm{A} \text { a }
$$

[ 354 ]

Abstract

A

\section*{S W E A R E R}

I$S$ one, that fells the Devil the beft Pennyworth that he meets with any where; and like the Indicns, that part with Gold for GlafsBeads, he damns his Soul for the flighteft Trifles imaginable. He betroths himfelf oftnerto the Devil in one Day, than Mecanas did in a Week to his Wife, that he was married a thoufand times to. His Difcourfe is inlaid with Oaths, as the Gallows is with Nails, to fortify it againft the Affaults of thofe, whofe Friends have made it their Death-bed. He takes a prepofterous Courfe to be believed, and perfuade you to credit what he fays, by faying that, which at the beft he does not mean; for all the Excufe he has for his voluntary damning of himfelf is, that he means nothing by it. He is as much miftaken in what he does intend really; for that which he takes for the Ornament of his Language renders it the moft odious and abominable. His Cuftom of Swearing takes away the Senfe of his Saying. His Oaths are but a diffolute Formality of Speech, and the worft Kind of Affectation. He is a KinightBaronet of the Poft, or Gentleman Blafphemer, that fwears for his Pleafure only, a Lay-afidavit Man, in Voto only, and not in Orders. He learned to fwear, as Magpies do to fpeak, by hearing others, He talks nothing but Bell, Book, and Candle, and delivers himfelf over to Satan oftner than a Prefoyterian Claffis would do. He plays with the Devil for fport only, and ftakes his Soul to nothing. He overcharges his Oaths till they break, and hurt himfelf only. He difcharges them as faft as a Gun, that will fhoot nine times with one loading. He is the Devil's Votary, and fails not to commend himfelf into his Tuition upon all Occafions. He outfwears an Exorcift, and outlies the Legend. His Oaths are of a wider Bore and louder Report than thofe of an ordinary Perjurer, but yet they do not half the Execution. Sometimes he refolves to leave it,

A S W E A R E R. $355^{\circ}$

$$
\text { A a } 2
$$

356 A S W E A R E R. but not too fuddenly, left it fhould prove unwholefome, and injurious to his Health, but by Degrees as he took it up. Swearing fhould appear to be the greateft of Sins; for tho' the Scripture fays, God Jees no Sin in bis Cbildren, it does not fay he hears none.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}357\end{array}\right]$

THE

L U X U R I O U S

PLACES all Enjoyment in fpending, as a covetous Man does in getting, and both are treated at a Witch's Feaft, where nothing feeds but only the Imagination: and like two Madmen, that believe themfelves to be the fame Prince, laugh at one another. He values his Pleafures as they do honour, by the Difficulty and Dearnefs of the Purchafe, not the Worth of the Thing; and the more he pays the better he believes he ought to be pleafed, as Women are fondeft of thofe Children, which they have groaned moft for. His Tongue is like a great Practifer's in Law ; for as the one will not ftir, fo the other will not tafte without a great Fee. He never reckons what a Thing cofts by what it is worth, but what it is worth by what it cofts. All his Senfes are like corrupt Judges, that will underftand nothing, until they are

$$
\text { A. } 3
$$

$35^{3}$ THELUXURIOUS.

thoroughly informed and fatisfied with a convincing Bribe. He relifhes no Meat but by the Rate ; and a high Price is like Sauce to it, that gives it a high Tafte, and renders it favoury to his Palate. He believes there is nothing dear, nor ought to be fo, that does not coff much, and that the deareft bought is always the cheapeft. He taftes all Wines by the Smallnefs of the Bottles, and the Greatnefs of the Price; and when he is over-reckoned takes it as an extraordinary Value fet upon him, as Dutclomen always reckon by the Dignity of the Perfon, not the Charge of the Entertainment he reccives, put his Quality and Titles into the Bill of Fare, and make him pay for feeding upon his own Honour and Right-Worfhip, which he brought along with him. He debauches his Gluttony with an unnatural Appetite to Things never intended for Food, like prepofterous Venery, or the unnatural Mixtures of Beafts of feveral Kinds. He is as curious of his Pleafures as an Antiquary of his Raritiles, and cares for none but fuch as are very choice and difficult to be gotten, difdains any Thing that is common, unlefs it be his Women, which he efteems a common Good, and therefore the more communicative the better.

THE LUXURIOUS.

All his Vices are like, Children that have been nicely bred, a great Charge to him, and it cofts him dear to maintain them like themfelves, according to their Birth and Breeding; but he, like a tender Parent, had rather fiffer Want himfelf than they fhould: for he confiders, a Man's Vices are his own Flefh and Blood, and though they are but By-blows he is bound to provide for them, out of natural Affection, as well as if they were lawfully begotten.

[350 ]

A N

UNGRATEFULMAN

Slike Duft in the Highway, that flies in the Wace of thofe that raife it. He that is ungrateful is all Things that are amifs- He is like the Deril, that feeks the Deffruction of thofe moft of all, that do him the beft Service; or an unhealthful Sinner, that receives Pleafure, and returns nothing but Pox and Difeafes. He receives Obligations from all that he can, but they prefently become void and of none Effect; for good Offices fare with him like Death, from which there is no Return. His Ill-rature is like an ill Stomach, that turns its Nourishment into bad Humours. He hould be a Man of very great Civilities; for he receives all that he can, but never parts with any. He is like a barren Soil, plant what you will on him, it will never grow; nor any Thing but Thorns and Thifles, that came in with the

AN UNGRATEFUL MAN $36{ }^{6}$

Curfe. His Mother died in Childbed of him; for he is defcended of the Generation of Vipers, in which the Dam always eats off the Sire's Head, and the young ones their Way through ber Belly. He is like a Horfe in a Pafture, that eats up the Grafs, and dungs it in Requital. He puts the Benefits he receives from others and his own Faults together in that End of the Sack, which he carries behind his Back. His ill-Nature, like a contagious Dife'eafe, infects others that are of themfelves good, who obferving his Ingratitude become lefs inclined to do good, than otherwife they would be: And as the fweeteft Wine, if ill preferved, becömes the foureft Vinegar; fo the greatef Endearments with him turn to the bittereft Injuries. He has an admirable Art of Forgeffulnefs, and no fooner receives a Kindnefs, but he owns it by Prefcription, and claims from Time out of Mind. All his Acknowledgments appear before his Ends are ferved, but never after, and, like Occafion, grow very thick before, but bare behind. He is like a River, that runs away from the Spring that feeds it, and undermines the Banks that fupport it; or like Vice and Sin, that deftroy thofe that are moft addicted to it ; or the Hangman, that breaks the Necks of thofe whom he gets his Living by, and whips thofe that find him Employment, and brands his Mafters that fet him on Work. He pleads the AEt of $\mathrm{O}_{-}$ blivion for all the good Deeds that are done him, and pardons himfelf for the evil Returns he makes. He never looks backward (like a right Statefman) and Things that are paft are all one with him, as if they had never been: And as Witches, they fay, hurt thofe only from whom they can get fomething and have a Hank upon; he no fooner receives a Benefit, but he converts it to the Injury of that Perfon, who conferred it on him-It fares with Perfons as with Families, that think better of themfelves, the further they are off their firft Raifers.

$j_{j} 62$ AN UNGRATEFUL MAN.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}663\end{array}\right]$

A  $\begin{array}{lllll}\mathrm{K} & \mathrm{N} & \mathrm{I} & \mathrm{G} & \mathrm{H}\end{array}$  OF THE  $\begin{array}{llll}\mathrm{P} & \mathrm{O} & \mathrm{S} & \mathrm{T}\end{array}$

IS a Retailer of Oaths, a Depofition-Monger, an Evidence-Maker that lives by the Labour of his Confcience. He takes Money to kifs the Gofpel, as Fudas did Cbrift, when he betrayed him. As a grood Confcience is a continual Feaf; fo an ill one is with him his daily Food. He plys at a Court of Juftice, as Porters do at a Market; and his Bufinefs is to bear Witnefs, as they do Burthens, for any Man that will pay them for it. He will fwear his Ears through an Inch-Board, and wears them merely by Favour of the Court; for being Amicus curia, they are willing to let him keep the Pillory out of Poffeffion, though he has forfeited his Right never fo often : For when he is once outed of his Ears, he is paft his Labour, and can do the Commonwealth of Practifers no more Service. He is a falfe Weight in the Ballance of Juftice; and as a Lawyer's Tongue is the Tongue of the Ballance, that inclines either Way, according as the Weight of the Bribe inclines it, fo does his. He lays one Hand on the Book, and the other is in the Plaintiff's or Defendant's Pocket. He feeds upon his Confcience, as a Monkey eats his Tail. He kiffes the Book to fhow he renounces, and takes his leave of it-Many a parting Kifs has he given the Gofpel. He pollutes it with his Lips oftner than a Hypocrite. He is a fworn Officer of every Court, and a great Practifer ; is admitted within the Bar, and makes good what the reft of the Council fay. The Attorney and Sollicitor fee and inftruct him in the Cafe; and he ventures as far for his Client, as any Man, to be laid by the Ears: He fpeaks more to the Point than any other, yet gives falfe Ground to his Brethren of the Jury, that they feldom come near the Jack. His Oaths are fo brittle, that not one in twenty of them will hold the Taking, but fly as foon as they are out. He is worfe than an ill Confcience; for that bears true Witnefs, but his is always falfe; and though his own Confcience be faid to be a thoufand Witneffes, he will out-fwear and outface them all. He believes it no Sin to bear fale Witnefs for his Neighbour, that pays him for it, becaufe it is not forbidden, but only to bear falfe Witnefs againft hiṣ Neighbour.

364 A KNIGHT OF THE POST.

A KNIGHT OF THE POST.

[ 366 ]

A N

UNDESERVING FAVOURITE

IS a Piece of bafe Metal with the King's Stamp upon it, a Fog raifed by the Sun, to obfcure his own Brightnefs. He came to Preferment by unworthy Offices, like one that rifes with his Bum forwards, which the Rabble hold to be fortunate. He got up to Preferment on the wrong Side, and fits as untoward in it. He is raifed rather above himfelf than others; or as bafe Metals are by the Teft of Lead, while Gold and Silver continue ftill unmoved. He is raifed and fwells, like a Fimple, to be an Eye-fore, and deform the Place he hods. He is born like a Cloud on the Air of the Prince's

By feveral Strokes in this Charafter the Reader muft be led to think it perfonal; and as it was wrote, as I have before obferved, about the Year 1667, at which time Lord Sbafffoury, who in 1661, had been made a Lord, was, as Antony Wood informs us, advanced to be one of the Commiffioners of the Treafury, and looked upon as a Perfon in great Favour with the King and Court, it will be naturally applied to him. It is the more probable, as Butler has in his Burning of the Rump, Hud P.3. C. 2. declared bis Sentiments of this Gentleman with no lefs Severity, in that Character of the

AN UNDESERVING FAVOURITE. ${ }_{3} 67$

Favour, and keeps his Light from the reft of his People. He rifes, like the light End of a Ballance, for Want of Weight ; or as Duft and Feathers do for being light. He gets into the Prince's Favour by wounding it. He is a true Perfon of Honour; for he does but act it at the beft, a Lord made only to juftify all the Lords of Maypoles, Morrice-Dances, and Mifrule, a Thing that does not live, but lye in State, before he's dead, fuch as the Heralds dight at Funerals. His Prince gives him Honour out of his own Stock, and Efrate out of his Revenue, and leffens himfelf in both.

> He is like Fern, that vile unufeful Weed, That Jprings equivocally, reitbout Seed.

He was not made for Honour, nor it for him, which makes it fit fo unfavouredly upon him. The Forepart of himfelf, and the hinder Part of his Coach publifh his Diftinction ; as French Lords, that have baute Fuffice, that is, may independent Statefman which begins,
> ' $M$ ong thefe there was a Politician,
> With more Heads than a Beaft in Vifon, &c.

[^36]
368 AN UNDESERVING FAVOURITE.

hang and draw, diftinguifh their Qualities by the Pillars of their Gallowfes. He got his Honour eafily, by Chance, without the hard laborious Way of Merit, which makes him fo. prodigally lavih of it. He brings down the Price of Honour, as the Value of any Thing falls in mean Hands. He looks upon all Men in the State of Knighthood and plain Gentility as moft deplorable ; and wonders how he could endure himfelf, when he was but of that Rank. The greateft Part of his Honour confifts in his well-founding Title, which he therefore makes Choice of, tho' he has none to the Place, but only a Patent to go by the Name of it. This appears at the End of his Coach in the Shape of a Coronet, which his Footmen fet their Bums againft, to the great Difparagement of the wooden Reprefentative. The People take him for a general Grievance, a Kind of public Preffure, or Innovation, and would willingly give a Subfidy to be redreffed of him. He is a ftrict Obferver of Men's Addreffes to him, and takes a mathematical Account, whether they ftoop and bow in juft Proportion to the Weight of his Greatnefs, and allow full Meafure to their Legs and Cringes accordingly. He never ufes Courthip, but in his own Dcfence, that others may ufe the fame to him, and, like a true Chriftian, does as he would be done unto. He is intimate with no Man but his Pimp and his Surgeon, with whom he keeps no State, but communicates all the States - of his Body. He is raifed like the Market, or a Tax, to the Grievance and Curfe of the People. He that knew the Inventory of him would wonder what flight Ingredients go to the making up of a great Perfon; howfoever he is turned up Trump, and fo commands better Cards than himfelf, while the Game lafts. He has much of Honour according to the original Senfe of it, which among the Ancients (Gellius fays) fignified ,Injury. His Profperity was greater than his Brain could bear, and he is drunk with it; and if he fhould take a Nap as long as Epimenides or the feven Sleepers, he would never be fober[^38]> Vol. II. B b

[^37]
-AN UNDESERVING FAVOURITE. 369

370 AN UNDESERVING FAVOURITE.

again. He took his Degree, and went forth Lord by mandamus, without performing Exercifes of Merit. His Honour's but an Immunity from Worth, and his Nobility a Difpenfation for doing Things ignoble. He expects that Men's Hats fhould fly off before him like a Storm, and not prefume to ftand in the Way of his Profpect, which is always over their Heads. All the Advantage he has is but to go before, or fit before, in which his nether Parts take place of his upper, that continue fill, in Comparifon, but Commoners. He is like an open Summer-Houfe, that has no Furniture but bare Seats. All he has to fhow for his Honour is his Patent, which will not be in Seafon until the third or fourth Generation, if it lafts fo long. His very Creation fuppofes him nothing before; and as Taylors rofe by the Fall of Adam, and came in, like Thorns and Thiftes, with the Curfe, fo did he by the Frailty of his Mafter. His very Face is his Gentleman-Ufher, that walks before him in State, and cries, give Way. He is as ftiff, as if he had been dipt in petrifying Water, and turned into his own Statue. He is always taking the Name of his

AN UNDESERVING FAVOURITE. $37 \boldsymbol{1}$

Honour in vain, and will rather damn it like a Knighthood of the Poft, than want Occafion to pawn it for every idle Trifle, perhaps for more than it is worth, or any Man will give to redeem it ; and in this he deals uprightly, tho. perhaps in nothing elfe.

[372]

A  C $\quad \mathrm{U} \quad \mathrm{C} \quad \mathrm{K} \quad \mathrm{O} \quad \mathrm{L} \quad \mathrm{D}$

IS his Wife"s Baftard Iffue, begotten upon her Body by her Gallant. He is like a Packfaddle, and his Wife carries him to carry fomebody elfe upon. He is a Creature, that Adam never gave Name to, for there was none of his Kind in Paradife. He is no natural Production, but made by his Wife's Mechanics-A Stock, that another grafts upon, and leaves him to maintain the Fruit. His own Branches his Horns are as myftical as the Whore of Ba bylon's Palfreys, not to be feen but in a Vifion, and his Wife rides him as that great Lady does her Gelding. There are two Orders of them, the Wittol, that's a Volunteer, and the Cuckold, thats impreft. They talk of Affes in India, that have Horns on their Rumps; and for certain his grow out of his Wives Haunches. He is but an Undertaker in his

A Clllllll

Spoufe, and his Partners go Shares with him. Her Faults are written in his Forehead, and he wears her Phylactery. His Horns, like thofe in a Country Gentleman's Hall, ferve his Wife to hang Cloaths upon, with which the covers all her Faults, which he is fain to father, as well as her Children. He is a Man of great Hofpitality; for he does not only keep open Houfe, but open Wife for all Comers. He went about to enclofe the Common, but his Neighbours threw it up again. He is but one Ingredient of a Hufband, and there goes as many to the making of him up, as there do Taylors to a Man. If he be notorious he is like a Belweather, and has a Larum tied to his Horns, which every body knows him by. If he be a Wittol or contented Cuckold, he is like a Gentleman, that wears a Horn for his Plea_ fure; but he, that makes it his Calling, is a Sowgelder, that blows a Horn to get Money: But if he be jealous, his Head is troubled with a forked Diftinction difcrimine facta Bicorni, like Pytbagoras his Letter, and he knows not which to take to, his Wife's Virtue, or Vice; and, whatfoever fhe proves, he remains a fecculative Cuckold, well ftudied in the Theory of Horns, Bb 3

374 A C U C K O L D.

 but in vain, for Naturam expellat furca licet; ufgue recurret. He fears his Park lies too convenient for Deer-ftealers, and his Thoughts walk the Round perpetually with a dark Lanthorn to furprize them, but neither meets with them, nor Satisfaction. The Poets fay, the Gate of Sleep is made of Horn, and certainly his is fo; for he dreams of nothing elfe fleeping or waking. Thus he apprehends himfelf, upon Sufpicion, for a Cuckold, is caft by his own Confeffion ; and, as he that believed he had pift a Moufe, becaufe he found one drowned in his Chamber-Pot, he interprets every Thing in favour of his Horns, until he becomes really a Cuckold in his Heart.
[ 375 ]

A

MALICIOUS MAN

HAS a ftrange natural Inclination to all ill Intents and Purpofes. He bears nothing fo refolutely as Ill-will, which he takes naturally to, as fome do to Gaming, and will rather hate for nothing than fit out. He believes the Devil is not fo bad as he fhould be, and therefore endeavours to make him worfe by drawing him into his own Party offenfive and defenfive; and if he would but be ruled by him does not doubt but to make him underftand his Bufinefs much better than he does. He lays nothing to Heart but Malice, which is fo far from doing him hurt, that it is the only Cordial that preferves him. Let him ufe a Man never fo civilly to his Face, he is fure to hate him behind his Back. He has no Memory for any good that is done him; but Evil, whether it be done him or not, never leaves him, as B b 4

$37^{\circ}$ A MALICIOUS MAN.

Things of the fame Kind always keep together: Love and Hatred, though contrary Paffions, meet in him as a third, and unite; for he loves nothing but to hate, and hates nothing but to love. All the Truths in the World are not able to produce fo much Hatred, as he is able to fapply. He is a common Enemy to the World; for being born to the Hatred of it, Nature that provides for every Thing fhe brings forth, has furnifhed him with a Competence fuitable to his Occafions; for all Men together cannot hate him fo much, as he does them one by one. He lofes no Occafion of Offence, but very thriftily lays it up, and endeavours to improve it to the beft Advantage. He makes Iffues in his Skin, to vent his ill Humours, and is fenfible of no Pleafure fo much as the Itching of his Sores. He hates Death for niothing fo much, as becaufe he fears it will take him away, before he has paid all the Ill-will he owes, and deprive him of all thofe precious Feuds, he has been fcraping together all his Life-time. He is troubled to think what a Difparagement it will be to him to die before thofe, that will be glad to hear he is gone ; and defires very charitably, they might come to an Agreement like, good, Friends, and go HandinHand out of the

A MALICIOUS MAN. 377

World together. He loves his Neighbour as well as he does himfelf, and is willing to endure any Mifery, fo they may but take Part with him, and undergo any Mifchief rather than they fhould want it. He is ready to fpend his Blood, and lay down his Life for theirs, that would not do half fo much for him; and rather than fail would give the Devil fuck, and his Soul into the Bargain, if he would but make him his Plenipotentiary, to determine all Differences between himfelf and others. He contracts Enmities, as others do Friendfhips, out of Likeneffes, Sympathies, and Inftincts; and when he lights upon one of his own Temper, as Contraries produce the fame Effects, they perform all the Offices of Friendfhip, have the fame Thoughts, Affections, and Defires of one another's Deftruction, and pleafe themfelves as heartily, and perhaps as fecurely, in hating one another, as others do in loving. He feeks out Enemies to avoid falling out with himfelf; for his Temper is like that of a flourifhing Kingdom, if it have not a foreign Enemy it will fall into a civil War, and turn its Arms upon it felf, and fo does but hate in his own Defence. His Malice is all Sorts of Gain to him ; for as Men take Pleafure in purfuing, entrapping, and deftroying all Sorts of Beafts and Fowl, and call it Sports, fo would he do Men, and if he had equal Power would never be at a Lofs, nor give over his Game without his Prey, and in this he does nothing but Juftice; for as Men take Delight to deftroy Beafts, he being a Beaft does but do as he is done by in endeavouring to deftroy Men. The Philofopher faid-Man to Man is a God and a Wolf; but he being incapable of the firft does his Endeavour to make as much of the laft as he can, and fhews himfelf as excellent in his Kind, as it is in his Power to do.

$37^{8}$ A MALICIOUS MAN.

[379]

A.

| S | Q | U | I | R | E |
| :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- | :--- |
|  |  |  | OF |  |  |
| D | A | M | E | S |  |

DEALS with his Miftrefs as the Devil does with a Witch, is content to 'be her Servant for a Time, that the may be his Slave for ever. He is Efquire to a Knight-Errant, Donzel to the Damzels, and Gentleman Ufher daily waiter on the Ladies, that rubs out his Time in making Legs and Love to them. He is a Gamefter, that throws at all Ladies that are fet him, but is always out, and never wins but when he throws at the Candleftick, that is for nothing; a general Lover, that addreffes unto all but never gains any, as Univerfals produce nothing. He never appears fo gallant a Man as when he is in the Head of a Body of Ladies, ## 380 A SQUIRE OF DAMES.

and leads them up with admirable Skill and Conduct. He is an Eunuch-Bafbaw, that has Charge of the Women, and governs all their public Affairs, becaufe he is not able to do them any confiderable private Services. One of his prime Qualifications is to convey their Perfons in and out of Coaches, as tenderly as a Cook fets his Cuftards in an Oven and draws them out again, without the leaft Difcompofure or Offence to their inward or outward Woman, that is, their Perfons and Dreffes. The greateft Care he ufes in his Converfation with Ladies is, to order his Peruque methodically, and keep off his Hat with equal Refpect both to $i t$, and their Ladyfhips, that neither may have Caufe to take any juft Offence, but continue him in their good Graces. When he fquires a Lady, he takes her by the Handle of her Perfon the Elbow, and fteers it with all poffible Caution, left his own Foot fhould, upon a Tack, for want of due Circumfpection, unhappily fall foul on the long Train fhe carries at her Stern. This makes him walk upon his Toes, and tread as lightly as if he were leading her a Dance. He never tries any Experiment folitary with her, but always in Confort, and then he acts the Woman's Part, and fhe the Man's, talks

A SQUIRE OF DAMES. 38 i

loud and laughs, while he fits demurely filent, and fimpers or bows, and cries anon Madam, excellently good! &c. &cc. He is a Kind of Hermaphrodite; for his Body is of one Sex, and his Mind of another, which makes him take no Delight in the Converfation or Actions of Men, becaufe they do fo by his, but apply himfelf to Women, to whom the Sympathy and Likenefs of his own Temper and Wit naturally inclines him, where he finds an agreeable Reception for want of a better ; for they, like our Indian Planters, value their Wealth by the Number of their Slaves. All his Bufinefs in the Morning is to drefs himfelf, and in the Afternoon to fhew his Workmanhhip to the Ladies; who after ferious Confideration approve or difallow of his Judgment and Abilities accordingly, and he as freely delivers his Opinion of theirs. The Glafs is the only Au_ thor he fudies, by which his Actions and Geftures are all put on like his Cloaths, and by that he practifes how to deliver what he has prepared to fay to the Dames, after he has laid a Train to bring it in.

[ $3^{82}$ ]

A

IS like a Tooth-drawer, that maintains his own Teeth in conftant eating by pulling out thofe of other Men. He is an ill moral Philofopher, of villainous Principles, and as bad Practice. His Tenets are to hold what he can get, right or wrong. His Tongue and his Heart are always at Variance, and fall out, like Rogues, in the Street, to pick fomebody's Pocket. 'They never agree but, like Herod and Pilate, to do Mifchief. His Confcience never ftands in his Light, when the Devil holds a Candle to him; for he has ftretched it fo thin, that it is tranfparent. He is an Engineer of Treachery, Fraud, ánd Perfidioufnefs, and knows how to manage Matters of great Weight with very little Force; by the Advantage of his trepanning Screws. He is very ikilful in all the Mechanics of Cheat, the mathematical Magic of Impofture ; and will outdo the Expectation of the moft Credulous, to their own Admiration and Undoing. He is an excellent Founder, and will melt down a leaden Fool, and caft him into what Form he pleafes. He is like a Pike in a Pond, that lives by Rapine, and will fometimes venture on one of his own Kind, and devour a Knave as big as himfelfHe will fwallow a Fool a great deal bigger than himfelf; and if he can but get his Head within his Jaws, will carry the reft of him hanging out at his Mouth, until by Degrees he has digefted him all. He has a hundred Tricks, to flip his Neck out of the Pillory, without leaving his Ears behind. As for the Gallows, he never ventures to fhow his Tricks upon the high-Rope, for fear of breaking his Neck. He feldom commits any Villany, but in a legal Way, and makes the Law bear him out in that, for which it hangs others. He always robs under the Vizard of Law, and picks Pockets with Tricks in Equity. By his Means the Law makes more Knaves than it hangs, and, like the Inns-of-Court protects Offenders againft itfelf. He gets within the Law, and difarms it. His hardeft Labour is to wriggle himfelf into Truft, which if he can but compafs, his Bufinefs is done; for Fraud and $3^{84} \quad$ A $\quad \mathbb{N} \quad$ A $\quad$ E.
Treachery follow as eafily, as a Thread does a Needle. He grows rich by the Ruin of his Neighbours, like Grafs in the Streets in a great Sicknefs. He fhelters himfelf under the Covert of the Law, like a Thief in a Hemp-Plot, and makes that fecure him, which was intended for his Deftruction.

[385]

A N

A N A B A P T I S T

$I^{s}$S a Water-Saint, that, like a Crocodile, fees clearly in the Water, but dully on Land. He does not only live in two Elements, like a Goofe, but two Worlds at once, this, and one of the next. He is contrary to a Fifher of Men; for, inftead of pulling them out of the Water, he dips them in it. He keeps Souls in Minority, and will not admit them to inherit the Kingdom of Heaven, till they come to Age, fit to be trufted with their own Belief. He defies Magiftracy and Miniftry as the Horns of Anticbrift; but would fain get them both into his own Hands. His Babes of Grace are all Pagan, and he breeds them up as they do young Trees in a Nurfery, lets them grow up, and then tranfplants them into the new Soil of his own Church. He lets them run wild, as they do young Colts on a Common, until Vol. II.

C c

386 A N A N A B A P T I S T. th'are old enough to be taken up and backed, and then he breaks and paces them with his own Cburch-walkings. He is a Landerer of Souls, and tries them, as Men do Witches, by Water. He dips them all under Water, but their Hands, which he holds them up bythofe do ftill continue Pagan; and that's the Reafon, why they make no Confcience of their Works, when they can get Power in their Hands, but act the moft barbarous Inhumanities in the World. His dipping makes him more obftinate and ftiff in his Opinions, like a Piece of hot Iron, that grows hard by being quenched in cold Water. He does not like the ufe of Water in his Baptifm, as it falls from Heaven in Drops, but as it runs out of the Bowels of the Earth, or ftands putrefying in a dirty Pond. He chufes the coldeft Time in the Year to be dipped in, to thew the Heat of his Zeal, and this renders him the more obftinate. Law and Government are great Grievances to him, and he believes Men may live very well without them, if they would be ruled by him; and then he would have nothing of Authority but his own Revelations. He is a Saint-Errant; for he calls his Religion Walking, which he oppofes to the Pope's Sitting as the more orthodox and infallible. His Church is a Kind of round Table without upper End, or lower End; for they obferve no Order, nor admit of Degrees. It is like the Serpent Amphifbana, that has a Head at either End of it: for fuch is their fpiritual Envy and Ambition, that they can endure no fuperior, but high and low are tied together, like long and fhort Sticks in a Faggot.

A N A NA B A P T I S T. 387

He defies the World in his own Defence, becaufe it flighted him firft, and is rather a Renegado to $i t$, than a Convert to the other. He renounced it, becaufe it was not for his Turn, and gave it over becaufe he knew not how to enjoy it. His Ambition, like a Weed, grows higheft on the loweft Grounds; and he fancies himfelf above the World by defpifing what he would, but could not afpire to. His Charity extends no further than his own Diocefe, and is nothing elfe but Self-Love, and natural Affection to his own Opinions in other Men. He cries down Learning, as he does the World, becaufe it is not within his Reach, and gives unjuft Judgment upon that, which he underftands nothing of. He leaves the Road of the

C c 2

388 A N A N A B APTIST.
Church, and croffes over Bye-ways, as Thieves do, when they have committed a Robbery. All the fpiritual Knowledge, he brags fo much of, is but his at the fecond Hand, and borrowed from Tranflations; and, if thofe err, his Spirit (tho' infallible as the Pope's) muft do fo too. The prodigious Height of Confidence, he has arrived to, is not poffible to be attained without an equally impregnable Ignorance. His Church is under the watry Government of the Moon, when fhe was in Aquarius. He places himfelf on a Pinnacle of the Temple, to fee if the Devil dare cap Texts with him. He had a Mind to difpofe of his Religion, how he pleafed, and fo Juffered a Recovery, to cut it off from his right Heirs, and fettle it to fuch Ufes, as he pleafed. He broaches falfe Doctrines out of his Tub. He fees Vifions when he is faft afleep, and dreams Dreams when he is broad awake. They ftick to one another, like Loaves of Bread in the Oven of Perfecution. He canonifes himfelf a Saint in his own Life-time, as Domitian made himfelf a God; and enters his Name in the Rubric of his Church by Virtue of a Picklock, which he has invented, and believes will ferve his Turn, as well as St. Peter's Keys. He finds out Sloughs and Ditches; that are aptert for launching of an Anabaptift; for he does not chriften, but launch his Veffel. He believes, becaufe Obedience is better than Sacrifice, the lefs of it will ferve. He ufes Scripture in the fame Manner as falfe Witneffes do, who never lay their Hands on it, but to give Teftimony againft the Truth.

A N A N A B A P T I S T. 389

[ 390 ]

A

V I N T N E R

HA NGS out his Bufh to Thew he has not good Wine; for that, the Proverb fays, needs it not. If Wine were as neceffary as Bread, he would ftand in the Pillory for felling falfe Meafure, as well as Bakers do for falfe Weight ; but fince it is at every Man's Choice to come to his Houfe or not, thofe that do, are guilty of half the Injuries he does them, and he believes the reft to be none at all, becaufe no Injury can be done to him, that is willing to take it. He had rather fell bad Wine, than good that ftands him in no more, for it makes Men fooner drunk, and then they are the eafier over-reckoned. By the Knaveries he acts above-board, which every Man fees, one may eafily take a Meafure of thofe he does unde ${ }_{1}$. Ground in his Cellar ; for he that will pick a Man's Pocket to his Face, will not ftick to ufe him worfe in private when he knows nothing of it. When he has poifoned his Wines he raifes his Price, and to make amends for that abates his Meafure, for he thinks it a greater $\operatorname{Sin}$ to commit Murder for fmall Gains, than a valuable Confideration. He does not only fpoil and deftroy his Wines, but an ancient reverend Proverb, with brewing and racking, that fays, In vino veritas, for there is no Truth in his, but all falle and fophifticated ; for he can counterfeit Wine as cumningly as Apelles did Grapes, and cheat Men with it, as be did Birds. He brings every Bottle of Wine he draws to the Bar, to confefs it to be a Cheat, and afterwards puts himfelf upon the Mercy of the Company. He is an Anticbrifian Cheat; for Chrift turned Water into Wine, and he turns Wine into Water. He fcores all his Reckonings upon two Tables made like thofe of the ten Commandments, that he may be put in Mind to break them as oft. as poffibly he can; efpecially that of ftealing and bearing falfe Witnefs againft his Neighbour, when he draws him bad Wine and fwears it is good, and that he can take more for the Pipe than the Wine will yield him by the Bottle, a Trick that a Fefuit taught him to cheat his$$ \text { C c } 4

A V I N T N E R. 39I

$$

392 A V I N T N E R. own Confcience with. When he is found to over-reckon notorioufly, he has one common Evafion for all, and that is, to fay it was a Miftake, by which he means, that he thought they had not been fober enough to difcover it ; for if it had paft, there had been no Error as all in the Cafe.

[ 393 ]

A N

H Y P O C R I T E

IS a Saint that goes by Clockwork, a Machine made by the Devil's Geometry, which he winds and nicks to go as he pleafes. He is the Devil's Finger-Watch, that never goes true, but too faft, or too flow, as he fets him. His Religion goes with Wires, and he ferves the Devil for an Idol to feduce the Simple to worfhip and believe in him. He puts down the true Saint with his Copper-Lace Devotion, as Ladies, that ufe Art, paint fairer than the Life. He is a great Bufter in Reformation, which is always moft proper to his Talent, efpecially if it be tumultuous; for Pockets are no where fo eafily and fafely picked as in juftling Crouds: And as Change and Alterations are moft agreeable to thofe, who are tied to nothing, he appears more zealous and violent for thie Cause; than fuch as are retarded by Con-

394 A N H Y P O C R I T E.

fcience or Confideration. His Religion is a Mummery, and his Gofpel-walkings nothing but dancing a Mafquerade. He never wears his own Perfon, but affumes a Shape, as his Mafter the Devil does, when he appears. He wears counterfeit Hands (as the Italian Pickpocket did) which are faftened to his Breaft, as if he held them up to Heaven, while his natural Fingers are in his Neighbour's Pocket. The whole Scope of all his Actions appears to be directed, like an Archer's Arrow, at Heaven, while the Clout he aims at fticks in the Earth. The Devil baits his Hook with him, when he fifhes in troubled Waters. He turns up his Eyes to Heaven like Bird's that have no upper Lid. He is a Weathercock upon the Steeple of the Church, that turns with every Wind, that blows from any Point of the Compafs. He fets his Words and Actions like a Printer's Letters, and he that will underftand him muft read him backwards. He is much more to be fufpected than one that is no Profeffior; as a Stone of any Colour is eafier counterfeited, than a Diamond that is of none. The Infide of him tends quite crofs to the Outfide, like a Spring that runs upward within the Earth, and down without. He is an

A N H Y P O C R I TE. 395

Operator for the Soul, and corrects other Men's Sins with greater of his own, as the Ferws were punifhed for their Idolatry by greater Idolaters than themfelves. He is a fpiritual Highwayman, that robs on the Road to Heaven-His Profeffions and his Actions agree like a fweet Voice and a ftinking Breath.

[ 396 ]

A N

O P I N I A T E R

S his own Confident, that maintains more Opinions than he is able to fupport. They are all Baftards commonly and unlawfully begotten ; but being his own, he had rather, out of natural Affection, take any Pains, or beg, than they fhould want a Subfiftence. The Eagernefs and Violence he ufes to defend them argues they are weak, for if they were true, they would not need it. How falfe foever they are to him he is true to them; and as all extraordinary Affections of Love or Friendfhip are ufually upon the meaneft Accounts, he is refolved never to forfake them, how ridiculous foever they render themfelves and him to the World. He is a Kind of a Knight-Errant, that is bound by his Order to defend the weak

A N O P I N I A T E R. 397

and diftreffed, and deliver enchanted Paradoxes, that are bewitched, and held by Mägicians and Conjurers in invifible Caftles. He affects to have his Opinions as unlike other Men's as he can, no Matter whether better or worfe, like thofe that wear fantaftic Cloaths of their own devifing. No Force of Argument can prevail upon him; for, like a Madman, the Strength of two Men in their Wits is not able to hold him down. His Obftinacy grows out of his Ignorance ; for Probability has fo many Ways, that whofoever underftands them will not be confident of any one. He holds his Opinions as Men do their Lands, and, though his Tenure be litigious, he will fpend all he has to maintain it. He does not fo much as know what Opinion means, which always fuppofing Uncertainty, is not capable of Confidence. The more implicit his Obftinacy is, the more ftubborn it renders him; for implicit Faith is always more pertinacious than that, which can give an Account of it felf; and as Cowards, that are well backed, will appear boldeft, he that believes as the Church believes is more violent, though he knows not what it is, than he that can give a Reafon for his $39^{8}$ A N O P I N I A T E R.
Faith-And as Men in the dark endeavour to tread firmer than when they are in the Light, the Darknefs of his Underftanding makes him careful to ftand faft wherefoever he happens, though it be out of his Way.

[ 399 ]

A

CHOLERICMAN

IS one that ftands for Madman, and has as many Voices as another-If he mifs he has very hard Dealing; for if he can but come to a fair polling of his Fits againlt his Intervals, he is fure to carry it. No doubt it would be a fingular Advantage to him; for as his prefent Condition ftands, he has more full Moons in a Week than a Lunatic has in a Year. His Paffion is like Tinder, foon fet on Fire, and as foon out again. The fmalleft Occafion imaginable puts him in his Fit, and then he has no Refpect of Perfons, ftrikes up the Heels of Stools and Chairs, tears Cards Limbmeal without Regard of Age, Sex, or Quality, and breaks the Bones of Dice, and makes them a dreadful Example to deter others from daring to take Part againft him. He is guilty but

400 A CHOLERIC MAN.

 of Mifprifion of Madnefs, and, if the worft come to the worft, can but forfeit Eftate, and fuffer perpetual Liberty to fay what he pleafes. 'Tis true he is but a Candidate of Bedlam, and is not yet admitted Fellow, but has the Licenfe of the College to practife, and in Time will not fail to come in according to his Seniority. He has his Grace for Madman, and has done his Exercifes, and nothing but his good Manners can put him by his Degree. He is, like a foul Chimney, eafily fet on Fire, and then he vapours and flafhes, as if he would burn the Houfe, but is prefently put out with a greater Huff, and the mere Noife of a Piftol reduces him to a quiet and peaceable Temper. His Temper is, like that of a Meteor, an imperfect Mixture, that fparkles and flafhes until it has fpent it felf. All his Parts are irafcible, and his Gall is too big for his Liver. His Spleen makes others laugh at him, and as foon as his Anger is over with others he begins to be angry with himfelf and forry. He is fick of a prepofterous Ague, and has his hot Fit always before his cold. The more violent his Paffion is the fooner it is out, like a running Knot, that ftrains hardeft, but is eafieft loofed. He is never very paffionate but for Trifles, and is always moft temperate where he has leaft Caufe, like a Nettle, that ftings worft when it is touched with foft and gentle Fingers, but when it is bruifed with rugged hardned Hands returns no Harm at all.
A CHOLERIC MAN. 401

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}402\end{array}\right]$

A

IS a Kind of Gotb and Vandal, that leaves his native Self to fettle in another, or a Planter that forfakes his Country, where he was born, to labour and dig in Virginia. His Heart is catched in a Net with a Pair of bright fhining Eyes, as Larks are with Pieces of a looking-Glafs. He makes heavy Complaints againft it for deferting of him, and defires to have another in Exchange for it, which is a very unreafonable Requeft; for if it betrayed its bofom Friend, what will it do to a Stranger, that fhould give it Truft and Entertainment? He binds himfelf, and cries out he is robbed of his Heart, and charges the Innocent with it, only to get a good Compofition, or another for it, againft all Confcience and Honefty. He talks much of his

A L O V E R. 403

Flame, and pretends to be burnt by his Miftrefs's Eyes, for which he requires Satisfaction from her, like one that fets his Houfe on Fire to get a Brief for charitable Contributions. He makes his Miffrefs all of Stars, and when fhe is unkind; rails at them, as if they did ill Offices between them, and being of her Kin fet her againft him. He falls in Love as Men fall fick when their Bodies are inclined to it, and imputes that to his Miftreffes Charms, which is really in his own Temper ; for when that is altered, the other vanifhes of it felf, and therefore one faid not amifs,
——The Lilly and the Rofe
Not in her Cheeks, but in thy Temper grows.
When his Defires are grown up, they fwarm, and fly out to feek a new Habitation, and wherefoever they light they fix like Bees, among which fome late Philofophers have obferved that it is a Female that leads all the reft. Love is but a Clap of the Mind, a Kind of running of the Fancy, that breaks out, if it be not ftopped in Time, into Botches of heroic Rime ; for all Lovers are Pocts for the Time being, and make their Ladies a Kind of mofaic Work of feveral coloured Stones joined together by a ftrong Fancy, but very ftiff and unnatural; and though they fteal Stars from Heaven, as Prometbeus did Fire, to animate them, all will not make them alive ${ }_{2}$ nor alives-liking.
D d

404 A L O V E R.

[ 405 ]

A

T R A N S L A TER

DYES an Author, like an old Stuff, into a new Colour, but can never give it the Beauty and Luftre of the firft Tincture; as Silks that are twice died lofe their Gloffes, and never receive a fair Colour. He is a fmall Factor, that imports Books of the Growth of one Language into another, but it feldom turns to Accompt ; for the Commodity is perifhable, and the finer it is the worfe it endures Tranfportation ; as the moft delicate of Indian Fruits are by no Art to be brought over. Neverthelefs he feldom fails of his Purpofe, which is to pleafe himfelf, and give the World notice that he underftands one Language more than it was aware of ; and that done he makes a faving Return. He is a Trucb-Man, that interprets between learned Writers and gentle Readers, and ufes both how he pleafes; for he commonly

$$
\mathrm{D}_{3}
$$

406 A TRANSLATE゙R.

miftakes the one, and mifinforms the other. If he does not perfectly underftand the full Meaning of his Author as well as he did himfelf, he is but a Copier, and therefore never comes near the Maftery of the Original; and his Labours are like Difhes of Meat twice dreft, that become infipid, and lofe the pleafant Tafte they had at firft. He differs from an Author as a Fidler does from a Mufician, that plays other Men's Compofitions, but is not able to make any of his own. All his Studies tend to the Ruin of the Interefts of Linguifts; for by making thofe Books common, that were underftood but by few in the Original, he endeavours to make the Rabble as wife as himfelf without taking Pains, and prevents others from ftudying Languages, to underftand that which they may know as well without them. The Ancients, who never writ any Thing but what they ftole and borrowed from others (and who was the firft Inventor nobody knows) never ufed this Way; but what they found for their Purpofes in other Authors they difguifed, fo that it paft for their own : but to take whole Books and render them, as our Tranflators do, they always forbore, out of more or lefs Ingenuity is a Queftion; for they fhewed inore

A TRANSLATER. 407

in making what they liked their own, and lefs in not acknowledging from whence they had it. And though the Roinans by the Laws of War laid claim to all Things, both facred and profane, of thofe Nations whom they conquered; yet they never extended that Privilege to their Wit; but made that their own by another Title of the fame Kind, and over-came their Wit with Wit,

[ 408 ]

A

R $\quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{B} \quad \mathrm{E} \quad \mathrm{L}$

IS a voluntary Bandit, a civil Renegado, that renounces his Obedience to his Prince, to raife himfelf upon the public Ruin. He is of great Antiquity, perhaps before the Creation, at leaft a Praadamite; for Lucifer was the firtt of his Family, and from him he derives himfelf in an indirect Line. He finds Fault with the Government, that he may get it the eafier into his own Hands, as Men ufe to undervalue what they have a Defire to purchafe. He is a Botcher of Politics, and a State-Tinker, that makes Flaws in the Government, only to mend them again. He goes for a public-fpirited Man, and his Pretences are for the public Good, that is, for the Good of his own public Spirit. He pretends to be a great Lover of his Country, as if it had given him Love-powder, but it is merely out of natural Affection to himfelf. He has a great Itch to be handling of Authority, though he cut his Fingers with it; and is refolved to raife himfelf, though it be but upon the Gallows. He is all for Peace and Truth, but not without Lying and Fighting. He plays a Game with the Hangman for the Cloaths on his Back, and when he throws out, he ftrips him to the Skin. He dies in hempen Sheets, and his Body is hanged, like his Anceftor Mahomet's, in the Air. He might have lived longer, if the Deftinies had not fpun his Thread of Life too ftrong. He is fure never to comé to an untimely End; for by the Courfe of Law his Glafs was out long before. He calls Rebelion and Treaion laying out of himfelf for the Public; but being found to be falfe unlawful Coin, he was feized upon, and cut in Pieces, and hanged for falfifying himfelf. His efpoufing of Quarrels proves as fatal to his Country, as the Parijan Wedding did to France. He is like a Bell, that was made of Purpofe to be hanged. He is a difeafed Part of the Body politic, to which all the bad Humours gather. He picks Straws out of the Government like a Madman, and ftartles at them when he has done. He endeavours to raife himfelf, like a'Boy's Kite, by being prollect againft the Wind. After all his Endeavours and Defigus he is at length promoted to the Gallows, whicli is performed with a Cavalcade fuitable to his Dignity; and after much Ceremony he is inftalled by the Hangman, with the general Applaufe of all Men; and dies finging like a Swan.

A. $\mathrm{R} E \quad \mathrm{~B}$ E L. 40)

$410 \quad A \quad \ddot{R}$ E $\quad$ B E

[4II]

Abstract

A

C I T $\mathrm{T}-\mathrm{W} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{T}$

DEALS in a foreign Commodity, that is not of the Growth of the Place, and which his Neighbours have fo little Judgment in, that he may put it off, how bad foever, at what Rate he pleaies. His Wit is like a Piece of Buckram made of old Stuff new gum'd, and fiffened with Formality and Affectation, and rubbed into a forced Glofs; and he fhews it to the beft Advantage, as far as Impudence and Lying, the Virtues of his Education, can cnable him. He can do nothing, if he has not fomebody of lefs Confidence to play it upon, as a Boy does his Ball againft a Wall, and as long as the dull Creature will endure it never lets, it fall: But when he ftrikes too hard his Wit is returned upon him again, and has its Quarters beaten up with Cuffs and Knocks over the Pate, which is commonly the Conclufion of his Horfe or rather Afs-play. His Jefts are fo flight and apt to break, that like a Tilter's Lance, his Antagonift fcarce feels them, and if he did not laugh at them himfelf, nobody would imagine by any Thing elfe what they were meant for; for he does it to make others laugh too, as thofe that gape fet all that fee them a gaping - But his Way is too rugged to provoke Laughter by any other Means ; for he, that tickles a Man to make him laugh, muft touch him gently and foftly, not rub him hard. His Wit has never been obferved to be of the right Breed, but always inclining to the Mungrel, whether his evil Education, the bad Cultoms of the Place, or a Kind of fecret Fate be the Caufe of it; for many others, that have had as great Difadvantages, have neverthelefs arrived at ftrange Perfections: But as his Behaviour, which he learns infenfibly from thofe he converfes with, does plainly diftinguifh him from Men of freer Educations; fo his Underftanding receives that Alloy from the Reafon and Judgment of thofe he has to do withal, that it can never become confiderable. For though many excellent Perfons have been born and lived in the City, there are very few fuch that have been bred there, though they come from all Parts and Families of the Nation; for Wit is not the Practice of the Place, and a London Student is like an Univerjity Merchant.

412 A C I T Y-W I T.

A C I T Y-W I T. 413

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}414\end{array}\right]$

A

superstitious man

IS more zealous in his falfe miftaken Piety than others are in the Truth; for he that is in an Error has further to go than one that is in the right Way, and therefore is concerned to beftir himfelf, and make the more Speed. The Practice of his Religion is, like the Schoolmen's Speculations, full of Niceties and Tricks, that take up his whole Time, and do him more Hurt than Good. His Devotions are Labours, not Exercijes, and he breaks the Sabbath in taking too much Pains to keep it. He makes a Confcience of fo many Trifles and Niceties, that he has not leifure to confider Things, that are ferious, and of reál Weight. His Religion is too full of Fears and Jealoufies to be true and faithful, and too folicitous and unquiet to continue in the Right, if it were fo. And as thofe, that are Bunglers and unkilful in any Art, take more Pains to do nothing, becaufe they are in a wrong Way, than thofe that are ready and expert, to do the excellentert Things ; fo the Errors and Miftakes of his Religion engage him in perpetual Troubles and Anxieties, without any Poffibility of Improvement, until he unlearn all, and begin again upon a new Account. He talks much of the Juftice and Merits of his Caufe, and yet gets fo many Advocates, that it is plain he does not believe himfelf; but having pleaded not Guilty he is concerned to defend himfelf as well as he can; while thofe that confefs, and put themfelves upon the Mercy of the Court have no more to do. His Religion is too full of Curiofities to be found and ufeful, and is fitter for a Hypocrite than a Saint ; for Curiofities are only for Show, and of no Ufe at all. His Confcience refides more in his Stomach than his Heart, and howfoever he keeps the Commandments, he never fails to keep a very pious Diet, and will rather farve than eat erroneoully, or tafte any Thing that is not perfectly orthodox and apoftolical; and if Living and Eating are infeparable he is in the Right; and lives becaufe he eats according to the truly ancient primitive Catholic Faith in the pureft Times.

A SUPERSTITIOUS MAN. 415

$[416]$

A

D  R  O  L  E

PLAYS his Part of Wit readily at firft Sight, and fometimes better than with Practice. He is excellent at Voluntary and PreIude; but has no Skill in Compofition. He will run Divifions upon any Ground very dextroufly; but now and then miftakes a Flat for a Sbarp. He has a great deal of Wit, but it is not at his own difpofing, nor can he command it when he pleafes, unlefs it be in the Humour. His Fancy is counterchanged between Jeft and Earneft; and the Earneft lies always in the $\mathcal{F e} /$, and the $\mathcal{F e f t}$ in the Earnef. He treats of all Matters and Perfons by Way of Exercitation, without Refpect of Things, Time, Place, or Occafion; and affumes the

A D R O $\quad$ L E. $\quad 417$
Liberty of a freeborn Englifbman, as if he were called to the long Robe with long Ears. He impofes a hard Tafk upon himfelf as well as thofe he converfes with, and more than either can bear without a convenient Stock of Con_ fidence. His whole Life is nothing but a Merry-Making, and his Bufinefs the fame with a Fidler's, to play to all Companies where he comes, and take what they pleafe to give him either of Applaufe, or Dillike; for he can do little without fome Applauders, who by fhewing him Ground make him outdo his own Expectation many Times, and theirs too; for they, that laugh on his Side and cry him up give Credit to his Confidence, and fometimes contribute more than half the Wit by 'making it better than he meant. He is impregnable to all Affaults but that of a greater Impudence, which being Stickfree puts him like a rough Fencer out of his Play, and after paffes upon him at Pleafure; for when he is once routed, he never rallies again. He takes a View of a Man as a fkilful Commander does of a Town he would befiege, to difcover the weakeft Places, where he may make his Approaches VoI. II. E e 4i8 A D R O L E. with the leaft Danger and moft Advantages; and when he finds himfelf miftaken draws off his Forces with admirable Caution and Confideration; for his Bufinefs being only Wit, he thinks there is very little of that fhown in expofing himfelf to any Inconve. nience.

A N

E M P I R I C

IS a Medicine-Monger, Probationer of Receipts, and Doctor Epidemic. He is perpetually putting his Medicines upon their Tryal, and very often finds them guilty of Manflaughter ; but ftill they have fome Trick or other to come off, and avoid burning by the Hand of the Hangman. He prints his Trials of Skill, and challenges Deatb at fo many feveral Weapons; and though he is fure to be foiled at every one, he cares not; for if he can but get Money he is fure to get off: For it is but pofting up Difeafes for Poltroons in all the public Places of the Town, and daring them to meet him again, and his Credit ftands as fair with the Rabble, as ever it did. He makes nothing of the Pox Ee 2

420 . A N E M P I R I C. and running of the Reins, but will undertake to cure them and tye one Hand behind him, with fo much Eafe and Freedom, that his Patients may furfeit and be drunk as oft as they pleafe, and follow their Bufinefs, that is, Whores and him, without any Inconvenience to their Health or Occafions, and recover with fo much Secrefy, that they fhall never know how it comes about. He profeffes no Cure no Money, as well he may; for if Nature does the Work he is paid for it, if not, he neither wins nor lofes; and like a cunning Rook lays his Bet fo artfully, that, let the Chance be what it will, he either wins or faves. He cheats the Rich for their Money, and the Poor for Charity, and if either fucceed, both are pleafed, and he paffes for a very juft and confcientious Man; for, as thofe that pay nothing ought at leaft to fpeak well of their Entertainment, their Teftimony makes Way for thofe, that are able to pay for both. He finds he has no Reputation among thofe that know him, and fears he is never like to have, and therefore pofts up his Bills, to fee if he can thrive better among thofe that know nothing of him, He keeps his

A N E M P I R I C. 42 I

 Pof continually, and will undertake to maintain it againft all the Plagues of 压ypt. He fets up his Trade upon a Pillar, or the Corner of a Street-Thefe are his Warehoufes, where all he has is to be feen, and a great deal more ; for he that looks further finds nothing at all.
$\left[\begin{array}{ll}422\end{array}\right]$

T H E

OBSTINATE MAN

DOES not hold Opinions, but they hold him; for when he is once poffeft with an Error, 'tis, like the Devil, not to be caft out but with great Difficulty. Whatfoever he lays hold on, like a drowning Man, he never lofes, though it do but help to fink him the fooner. His Ignorance is abrupt and inacceffible, impregnable both by Art and Nature, and will hold out to the laft, though it has nothing but Rubbifh to defend. It is as dark as Pitch, and fticks as faft to any Thing. it lays hold on. His Scull is fo thick, that it is proof againft any Reafon, and never cracks but on the wrong Side, juft oppofite to that againft which the Impreffion is made, which Surgeons fay does happen very frequent-

THE OBSTINATE MAN 423

ly. The flighter and more inconfiftent his Opinions are the fafter he holds them, otherwife they would fall afunder of themfelves: for Opinions that are faife ought to be held with more Strictnefs and Affurance than thofe that are true, otherwife they will be apt to betray their Owners before they are aware. If he takes to Religion, he has Faith enough to fave a hundred wifer Men than himfelf, if it were right; but it is too much to be good; and though he deny Supererogation, and utterly difclaim any Overplus of Merits, yet he allows fuperabundant Belief, and if the Violence of Faith will carry the Kingdom of Heaven, he ftands fair for it. He delights moft of all to differ in Things indifferent, no Matter how frivolous they are, they are weighty enough in Proportion to his weak Judgment, and he will rather fuffer Self-Martyrdom than part with the leaft Scruple of his Freehold; for it is impoffible to dye his dark Ignorance into a lighter Colour. He is refolved to underfand no"Man's Reafon but his own, becaufe he finds no Man can underftand his but himfelf. His Wits are like a Sack, which, the French Proverb

$$
\mathrm{Ee}_{4}
$$

424 THE OBSTINATE MAN.

fays, is tied fafter before it is full, than whea it is; and his Opinions are like Plants that grow upon Rocks, that ftick faft though they have no Rooting. His Underftanding is hardened like Pbaroab's Heart, and is Proof againft all Sorts of Fudgments whatfoever.

[425]

> | $\left.\begin{array}{lllll}\mathrm{A} \\ \mathrm{Z} & \mathrm{E} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{L} & \mathrm{O}\end{array}\right)$ |  |  |  |  |  |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |

IS a hot-headed Brother, that has his Underftanding blocked up on both Sides, like a Fore-Horfe's Eyes, that he fees only ftreight forwards, and never looks about him; which makes him run on according as he is driven with his own Caprich. He ftarts and ftops (as a Horfe does) at a Poft, only becaufe he does not know what it is; and thinks to run away from the Spur, while he carries it with him. He is very violent, as all Things that tend downward naturally are; for it is impoffible to improve or raife him above his own Level. He runs fwiftly before any Wind, like a Ship that has neither Freight nor Ballaft, and is as apt to overfet. When his Zeal takes Fire it cracks and flies about like a Squib, until the idle Stuff is fpent, and then it goes out of it felf. He is always troubled with fmall Scruples, which his Con-

426 A Z E A L O T.

fcience catches like the Itch, and the rubbing of thefe is both his Pleafure and his Pain: But for Things of greater Moment he is unconcerned; as Cattle in the Summer Time are more peftered with Flies, that vex their Sores, than Creatures more confiderable; and Duft and Motes are apter to ftick in blear Eyes than things of greater Weight. His Charity begins and ends at Home, for it never goes further, nor ftirs abroad. David was eaten up with the Zeal of God's Houfe; but his Zeal quite contrary eats up God's Houfe; and as the Words feem to intimate, that David fed and maintained the Priefts ; fo he makes the Priefts feed and maintain him-And hence his Zeal is never fo vehement, as when it concurs with his Intereft; for as he ftiles himfelf a Profeffor, it fares with him as with Men of other Profeffions, to live by his Calling, and get as much as he can by it. He is very fevere to other Men's Sins, that his own may pafs unfufpected, as thofe, that were engaged in the Confpiracy againft Nero, were moft cruel to their own Confederates, or as one fays, > Compounds for Sins be is inclin'd to By damning thofe be bas no Mind to.

[ 427 ]

THE

O V E R-D O E R

AL W A YS throws beyond the Jack, and is gone a Mile. He is no more able to contain himfelf than a Bowl is when he is commanded to rub with the greateft Power and Vehemence imaginable, and nothing lights in his Way. He is a Conjurer, that cannot keep within the Compafs of his Circle, though he were fure the Devil would fetch him away for the leaft Tranfgreffion. He always overftocks his Ground, and ftarves inftead of feeding, deftroys whatfoever he has an extraordinary Care for, and like an Ape hugs the Whelp he loves moft to Death. All his Defigns are greater than the Life, and he laughs to think how Nature has miftaken her Match, and given him fo much Odds, that he can eafily outrun her. He allows of no Merit but that which is fuperabundant. All his Actions are fuperfata-

428 THE OVER-D OER.

 tions, that either become Monfters or Twins, that is, too much, or the fame again: for he is but a Supernumerary, and does nothing but for Want of a better. He is a civil Catbolic, that holds nothing more feedfaftly than Supererogation in all that he undertakes; for he undertakes nothing but what he overdoes. He is infatiable in all his Actions, and, like a covetous Perfon, never knows when he has done enough, until he has fpoiled all by doing too much. He is his own Antagonift, and is never fatisfied until he has outdone himfelf, as well as that which he propofed; for he loves to be better than his Word (though it always falls out worfe) and deceive the World the wrong Way. He believes the Mean to be but a mean Thing, and therefore always runs into Extremities, as the more excellent, great, and tranfcendert. He delights to exceed in all his Attempts; for he finds that a Goofe, that has three Legs, is more remarkable than a hundred, that have but two apiece, and has a greater Number of Followers; and that all Monfters are more vifited and applied to than other Creatures that Nature has made perfect in their Kind. He believes he can never beflow too much Pains upon any Thing; for his
THE OVER-D O ER. 429

Induftry is his own, and cofts him nothing; and if it mifcarry, he lofes nothing, for he has as much as it was worth. He is like a foolifh Mufician, that fets his Inftrument fo high, that he breaks his Strings for Want of underftanding the right Pitch of it; or an Archer, that breaks his Bow with over-bending ; and all he does is forced, like one that fings above the Reach of his Voice.

[ 430 ]

A

JEALOUS MAN

S very unfettled in his Mind and full of Doubts, whether he hould take his Wife for better, or for worfe. He knows not what to make of himfelf, but fears his Wife does, and that the made him and his Heir at a Heat: His Horns grow inward, and are very uneafy and painful to his Brain. He breaks his Sleep in watching Opportunities to catch himfelf Cuckold in the Manner. He fancies himfelf regenerate in the Body of his Wife, and defires nothing more, than with Cardan and Gufman to know all the Particulars and Circumftances of his own Begetting. He beats his Brains perpetually to try the Hardnefs of his Head, and find out how the Callus improves from Time to Time. He breeds Horns, as Children do Teeth, with much Pain and Unquiet. nefs; and (as fome Hufbands are faid to be)

A JEALOUS MAN. 43 I

is fick at the Stomach and pukes when his Wife breeds. Her Pleafures become his Pains, and, by an odd Kind of Sympathy, the Bobs the receives below break out on his Forehead, like a Tobacco-Pipe, that being knocked at one End breaks at the other. He feeks after his Honour and Satisfaction with the fame Succefs as thofe do, that are robbed, who may, perhaps, find the Thief, but feldom or never get their Goods again. He throws Crofs and Pile to prove himfelf a Cuckold or not, and as the World is always apt to fide with the worft Senfe, let his Chance prove what it will, he plays at Crofs you loofe, and Pile I win. The Remedies he takes to cure his Jealoufy are worfe than the Difeafe; for if his Sufpicion be true it is paft Cure ; if falfe, he gives his Wife juft Caufe to make it true ; for it is not the Part of a virtuous Woman to fuffer her Hufband knowingly to continue in an Error.

$\left[\begin{array}{ll}432\end{array}\right]$

A N

I N S OLENTMAN

DOE S Mifchief, like a Perfon of Quality, merely for his Sport, and affronts a Man voluntarily of his own free Inclination, without any Merit of his, or Advantage of his own, or Expectation of Return, merely to pleafe himfelf. The meaner his Condition is, the more barbarous his Infolence appears; for Vices in the Rabble are like Weeds, that grow rankeft on a Dunghill. He has no Way to advance his own Pride, or Worth as he takes it, but by treading with Contempt and Scorn upon others. If he is in Authority, he does it not by the Virtue, but Vice of his Place; and the more odious his Carriage is the more he fuppofes it becomes him and his Authority. It is more notorious in bafe Perfons than others, and moft in Slaves, as Dogs, that ufe to be tied up, are fiercer when they are let loofe.

AN INSOLENT MAN. 433

He raifes himfelf as high as his Pride and Vainglory will bear him, that he may light the heavier upon thofe that are under him ; for he never meddles with others, unlefs he is fure of the Advantage, and knows how to come off. He treats Men more rudely than the Hangman, and wants his Civility to afk them Pardon for the ill Accommodation they are like to have from him. He ufes Men the beft Way that he underftands, and the worft that they do; for when he thinks to appear braveft they efteem him the verieft Wretch in the World. He is a fmall petty Tyrant, and in that is fo much the worfe; for the meaneft Tyrannies are always the moft infufferable, as the thinner the Air is, the more it pierces. He is a diffenting Brother to Humanity, and as zealoufly barbarous in civil Affairs, as others are made by their Churches. His Compofition is nothing but Pride and Choler, and he is hot in the fourth Degree, which is the next Door but one, on the left Hand as you go, to Poifon. The only Way to deal with him is to defpife him; for no wife Man will be mad, if he can help it, becaufe he is bitten by a mad-Dog.

$$
\text { VoL. II. } \quad F f
$$

THE

$\begin{array}{lllllll}\mathrm{R} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{S} & \mathrm{H} & \mathrm{M} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{N}\end{array}$

HAS a Fever in his Brain, and therefore is rightly faid to be hot-headed. His Reafon and his Actions run down Hill, born headlong by his unftaid Will. He has not Patience to confider, and, perhaps, it would not be the better for him if he had; for he is fo poffert with the firlt Apprehenfion of any Thing, that whatfoever comes after lofes the Race, and is prejudged. All his Actions, like Sins, lad him perpetually to Repentance, and from thence to the Place from whence they came, to make more 'Work for Repentance; for though he be corrected never fo often lie is never amended, nor will his Hafte give him time to call to mind where it made him ftumble before; for he is always

T, HERASH MAN. 435

upon full Speed, and the Quicknefs of his Motions takes away and dazzles the Eyes of his Underfanding. All his Defigns are like Difeafes, with which he is taken fuddenly before he is aware, and whatfoever he does is extempore, without Premeditation; for he believes a fudden Life to be the beft of all, as fome do a fudden Death. He purfies Things, as Men do an Enemy upon a Retreat, until he is drawn into an Ambufh for Want of Heed and Circumfpection. He falls upon Things as they lie in his Way, as if he fumbled at them, or his Foot flipped and caft him upon them; for he is commonly foiled and comes off with Bruifes. He en'gages in Bufinefs, as Men do in Duels, the fooner the better, that, if any Evil come of it, they may not be found to have flept upon it, or confulted with an effeminate Pillow in Point of Honour and Courage. He frikes when he is hot himfelf, not when the Iron is fo, which he defigns to work upon, His Tongue has no retentive Faculty, but is always running like a Fool's Drivel. He cannot keep it within Compafs, but it will be alFf 2 $43^{\circ}$ T H E R A S H M A N. ways upon the Ramble, and playing of Trick ${ }^{\text {s }}$ upon a Frolic, fancying of Paffes upon Religion, State, and the Perfons of thofe, that are in prefent Authority, no Matter how, to whom, or where; for his Difcretion is always out of the Way, when he has Occafion to make Ufe of it.

[ 437 ]

A

P

IS a Soliciter of Love, a Whore's Broker, Procurator of the moft ferene Commonwealth of Sinners, and Agent for the Flefh and the Devil. He is a Bawd's Legate a latereHis Function chiefly confifts in maintaining conftant Correfpondence and Intelligence, not only domeftic, that is, with all Houfes profeft, but alfo foreign, that is, with all Lay-Sifers, and fuch as are in voto only. He difguifes himfelf in as many Habits as a Romifb Prieft, from a Perfon of Honour to the Perfon of a Footman; but moft commonly (as thofe others do) in that of a Gentleman; for among fuch his Bufinefs chiefly lies. He is the Bawd's Loader, that brings Corn to her Mill: But he never thrives confiderably in his Vocation Ff 3

$43^{8} \quad$ A $\quad$ P I M $\quad$ P.

without the Affiftance of fome acceffary Profeffion, as Medicine, Aftrology, filenced Minittry, &c. which are wonderful Helps both for Difguife and Accefs. But if he want thefe Advantages, and be but a mere Pimp of Fortune, he endeavours to appear, as if he did it for his Pleafure, out of a generous Freedom to communicate his own Diverfions with a Friend, and talks much of one Gentleman for another: neverthelefs he fuffers many difhonourable Indignities from the Ladies he relates to, who very well knowing his Calling to be but minifterial and fubordinate to their own, fail not upon all Occafions to infult moft tyrannically over him. Between thefe and the Juftice he lives under an arbitrary Government, much fubject to Tribulation and Oppreffion, unlefs he happen to be in Commiffion himfelf (as it fometimes happens) and then he fuppreffes all others, and engroffes the whole Trade into his own Hands. Nothing renders him fo accomplifhed as curing of Claps; for then the one Operation affifting the other he is fure never to be out of Employment. His Profeffion is of great Antiquity and Renown, and has been honoured by Emperors and great Philofophers, that have been free of his Company: for Caligula kept a Bawdy-Houfe himfelf, and Otbo and Seneca were Pimps to Nero. He is a Squire by his Place; for, if Matrimony be honourable, Fornication is at leaft worfhipful. He is a perpetual Brideman, and by his Privilege may wear Garters in his Hat. He is a Settler of Jointures, and the Devil's Parfon, that joins Man and Woman together in the unholy State of Incontinence. His Life is a perpetual Wedding, and he is curft as often as a Matchmaker. He is a great Friend to Mountebanks; for where his Work ends the others commonly begins, and they gain more by him than the Plague, and he brings them in more Cuftom than their Bills. He is the Whores Jackal, that hunts out Treats for them all Day, and at Night has his Share in a Tavern-Supper, or a Treat at the Jetting Dog and Partridge, a a very fignificant Sign, like the Brokers Bird in Hand. He is the Syluan to the Dryades of Lewenner's Lane, and Hamadryades of little Sodom. He faftens his Plough to the Tail, as the Irijb do, and when one is rendered unferviceable he gets another. He is the ForeFf 4

440 A P I M P.

man of a Bawd's Shop. He is Remembrancer of Opportunity, and a Doorkeeper in the Houfe of the Devil. He is a Conjunction copulative, that joins different Cafes, Genders, and Perfons,
———A Pimp
Is but a Whore's Familiar, or her Imp.

[ 441 ]

T H E

AFFECTED or FORMAL

IS a Piece of Clockwork, that moves only as it is wound up and fet, and not like a voluntary Agent. He is a mathematical Body, nothing but punctum, linea $\mathcal{E}$ fuperficies, and perfectly abftract from Matter. He walks as ftifly and uprightly as a Dog that is taught to go on his hinder Legs, and carries his Hands as the other does his Fore-feet. He is very ceremonious and full of Refpect to himfelf, for no Man ufes thofe Formalities, that does not expect the fame from others. All his Actions and Words are fet down in fo exact a Method, that an indifferent Accomptant may caft him up to a Half-penny Farthing. He does every Thing by Rule, as if it were in a Courfe of Leffus's Diet, and did not eat, but take a Dofe of Meat and Drink, and not walk, but proceed, not go, but march. He draws up himfelf with admirable Conduct in a very regular and well-ordered Body, All his Büfinefs and Affairs are Junctures and Tranfactions; and when he fpeaks with a Man he gives him Audience. He does not carry, but marfhal himfelf; and no one Member of his Body politic takes Place of another without due Right of Precedence. He does all Things by Rules of Proportion, and never gives himfelf the Freedom to manage his Gloves or his Watch in an irregular and arbitrary Way; but is always ready to render an Account of his Demeanour to the moft ffrict and fevere Difquifition. He fets his Face as if it were caft in Plaifter, and never admits of any Commotion in his Countenance, nor fo much as the Innovation of a Smile without ferious and mature Deliberation; but preferves his Looks in a judicial Way, according as they have always been eftablifhed.

442 THE AFFECTED OR FORMAL.

[ 443 ]

A

F L A T T E R E R

IS a Dog, that fawns when he bites. He hangs Bells in a Man's Ears, as a Carman does by his Horfe, while he lays a heavy Load upon his Back. His Infinuations are like ftrong Wines, that pleafe a Man's'Palate till it has got within him, and then deprives him of his Reafon, and overthrows him. His Bufinefs is to render a Man a ftranger to himifelf, and get between him and Home, and then he carries him, whither he pleafes. He is a Spirit, that inveighs away a Man from himfelf, undertakes great Matters for him, and-after fells" him for a Slave. "He makes "Divifion, not only bêtween a Man and his Friends, but between a Man and himfelf, raifes a Faction within him, and after takes 444 A F L A T T ERER.

Part with the ftrongeft Side, and ruins both. He fteals him away from himfelf (as the Fairies are faid to do Children in the Cradle) and after changes him for a Fool. He whiftles to him, as a Carter does to his Horfe, while he whips out his Eyes, and makes him draw what he pleafes. He finds out his Humour and feeds it, till it will come to Hand; and then he leads him whither he pleafes. He tickles him, as they do Trouts, until he lays hold on him, and then devours and feeds upon him. He tickles his Ears with a Straw, and while he is pleafed with fcratching it, picks his Pocket, as the Cut-purfe ferved Bartl. Cokes. He embraces him and hugs him in his Arms, and lifts him above Ground, as Wreftlers do, to throw him down again, and fall upon him. He poifefles him with his own Praifes like an evil Spirit, that makes him fwell, and appear ftronger than he was, talk what he does not underftand, and do Things that he knows nothing of, when he comes to himfelf. He gives good Words, as Doctors are faid to give Phyfick, when they are paid for it, and Lawyer's Advice, when they are fee'd beforehand. He is a poifoned Perfume, that infects the Brain, and murthers thofe it pleafes. He undermines a Man, and blows him up with his own Praifes, to throw him down. He commends a Man out of Defign, that he may be prefented with him, and have him for his Pains, according to the Mode.

$$
\left[\begin{array}{ll}
446
\end{array}\right]
$$

A

$P \quad R \quad O \quad D \quad I \quad G \quad A \quad L$

IS a Pocket with a Hole in the Bottom. His Purfe has got a Dyfentery, and loft its Retentive Faculty. He delights, like a fat overgrown Man, to fee himfelf fall away, and grow lefs. He does not fpend his Money, but void it, and, like thofe that have the Stone, is in Pain till he is rid of it. He is very loofe and incontinent of his Coin, and lets it fly, like $\mathrm{Fu}^{-}$ piter, in a Shower. He is very hofpitable, and keeps open Pockets for all Comers. All hiş Silver turns to Mercuiy, and runs through him as if he had taken it for the miferere, or nluxed himfelf. The Hiftory of his Life begins with keeping of Whores, and ends with keeping of Hogs, and as he fed high at firft, fo he does at laft; for Acorns are very high

He dufts bis Eftate, $\varepsilon^{\circ} c_{c}$.] Dufting a Stand of Ale is a Set of jolly Topers agreeing to purchafe a Barrel of Ale, and each one being

4

A P R O D I G A L: 447

Food. He fwallows Land and Houfes like an Earthquake, eats à whole dining-Room at a Meal, and devours his Kitchen at a Breakfaft. He wears the Furniture of his Houfe on his Back, and a whole feathered-Bed in his Hat, drinks down his Plate, and eats his Difhes up. He is not cloathed, but hung. He'll fancy Dancers Cattle, and prefent his Lady with Meffuage and Tenement. He fets his Horfes at Inn and Inn, and throws himfelf out of his Coach at come the Cafter. He fhould be a good Hufband, for he has made more of his Eftate in one Year, than his Anceftors did in twenty. He dufs his Eftate, as they do a Stand of Ale in the North. His Money in his Pocket (like hunted Venifon) will not keep; if it be not fpent prefently it grows ftale, and is thrown away. . He poffeffes his Eftate as the Devil did the Herd of Swine, and is ranning it into the Sea as faft as he can. He has flot it with a 61. Zampatan, and it will prefently fall all to Duft. He has brought his Acres into a Confumption, and they are ftrangely fallen away, nothing but Skin and Bones left of a whole Manor. He [^39]448 A P R O D I G A L. will fhortly have all his Eftate in his Hands; for, like Bias, he may carry it about him. He lays up nothing but Debts and Difeafes, and at length himfelf in a Prifon. When he has fpent all upon his Pleafures, and has nothing left for Suftenance, he efpoufes an Hoftefs Dowager, and refolves to lick himfelf whole again out of Ale, and make it pay him back all the Charges it has put him to.

[ 449 ]

A  P E T TIFOGGER

I$S$ an under-Coat to the Long-robe, a Kind of a coarfe Jacket, or dirty daggled Skirt and Tail of the long-Robe. His Bufinefs is, like a Spaniel's, to hunt and fpring Contention for the long-winded Buzzards to fly at. He is a faft Friend to all Courts of Juftice, but a mortal Foe to Juffice herfelf; as fome Catholics have a great Reverence for the Cburch, but hate the Court of Rome. He is a Kind of LawHector, that lives by making Quarrels between Mar and Man, and profecuting or compounding them to his own Advantage. He is a conftant Frequenter of country Fairs and Markets, where he keeps the Clowns in Awe with his Tricks in Law, and they fear him like a Conjurer or a cunning Man. He is no Gentleman, but a Varlet of the Long-robe, a Purveyor of Suits and Differences, moft of which

$$
\text { Vol. II. } \quad \text { G g }
$$

450 A PETTIFOGGER:
he converts to his own Benefit, and the reft to the Ufe of thofe he belongs to. He is a Lawfeminary, that fows Tares amongft Friends to entangle them in Contention with one another, and fuck the Nourifhment from both. He is like a Ferret in a Coney-Borough, that drives the poor filly Animals into the Purfe-Net of the Law, to have their Skins ftripped off, and be preyed upon. He has a Cloud of Witneffes always in a Readinefs to obfcure Truth, and fwear Things into any Shape he has Occafion for, as Men fancy they fee Armies fighting in the Air. He propagates the Law as Jefuits do the Gofiel, and with much the fame Integrity and Uprightnefs: for his Bufinefs is to debauch and pervert the Law, and make it act quite contrary to its own Confcience and Underftanding, and like an Hypocrite fay one Thing and do another. When he is engaged on one Side he has his Choice of both, and can take either as he finds it ferve beft to his own Adrantage. His ableft Performances are to help a Caufe out at a Pinch for Want of Evidence; this he atchieves by Virtue of his Intimacy and Correfpondence with Knights of the Pof, common Bayl and Affidavit-Men. He is a tame Beart of Pecv, an Animal that lives

A PETTIFOGGER.

both by Land and Water; for when he walks afoot through the Dirt, he is paid for Boat and Coach-hire by his Clients, as if he never went without a Train to attend him. He inftructs the Council to inftruct him ; and very juftly gives them the one half of the Clients Fees for their Advice, and keeps the other himfelf for his own.

[ 452 ]

A  B A N K R U P T

IS made by breaking, as a Bird is hatched by breaking the Shell, for he gains more by giving over his Trade, than ever he did by dealing in it. He drives a Trade, as Oliver Cromzoel did a Coach, till it broke in Pieces. He is very tender and careful in preferving his Credit, and keeps it as methodically as a Race-nag is dieted, that in the End he may run away with it: for he obferves a punctual Curiofity in performing his Word, until he has improved his Credit as far as it can go; and then he has catched the Fih, and throws away the Net; as a Butcher, when he has fed his Beaft as fat as it can grow, cuts the Throat

A B A N KRUPT.

of it: When he has brought his Defign to Perfection, and difpofed of all his Materials, he lays his Train, like a Powder Traytor, and gets out of the Way, while he blows up all thofe that trufted him. After the Blow is given there is no Manner of Intelligence to be had of him for fome Months, until the Rage and Fury is fomewhat digefted, and all Hopes vanifhed of ever recovering any Thing of Body, or Goods, for Revenge, or Reflitution; and then Propofitions of Treaty and Accommodation appear, like the Sign of the Hand and Pen out of the Clouds, with Conditions more unreafonable than Thieves are wont to demand for Reftitution of ftolen Goods. He fhoots like a Fowler at a whole Flock of Geefe at once, and ftalks with his Horfe to come as near as poffibly he can without being perceived by any one, or giving the leaft Sufpicion of his Defign, until it is too late to prevent it; and then he flies from them, as they flould have done before from him. His Way is fo commonly ufed in the City, that he robs in a Road, like a Highwayman, and yet they will never arrive at Wit enough to avoid it ; for it is done upon Surprife; and as Thieves are commonly better mounted than thofe they rob, he very eafily makes his Efcape, and flies beyond Perfuit of Huon-cries, and there is no Poffibility of overtaking him.
Gg g

454 A B A N K R U P T.

[ 455 ]

THE

I N CONSTANT

HAS a vagabond Soul, without any fettled Place of Abode, like the wandering Ferw. His Head is unfixed, out of Order, and utterly unferviceable upon any Occafion. He is very apt to be taken with any Thing, but nothing can hold him; for he prefently breaks loofe, and gives it the Slip. His Head is troubled with a Palfy, which renders it perpetually wavering and incapable of Reft. His Head is like an hour-Glafs, that Part that is uppermoft always runs out until it is turned, and then runs out again. $\mathrm{Hi}_{\mathrm{s}}$ Opinions are too violent to laft ; for, like other Things of the fame Kind in Nature, they quickly fpend themfelves, and fall to no:

$$
\text { G g } 4
$$

$45^{6}$ THE INCONSTANT.

thing. All his Opinions are like Wefts and Strays, that are apt to ftraggle from their Owner, and belong to the Lord of the Manour, where they are taken up. His Soul has no retentive Faculty, but fuffers every Thing to run from him, as faft as he receives it. His whole Life is like a prepofterous Ague, in which he has his hot Fit always before his cold one, and is never in a conftant Temper. His Principles and Refolves are but a Kind of Moveables, which he will not endure to be faftened to any Freehold, but left loofe to be conveyed away at Pleafure, as Occafion fhall pleafe to difpofe of him. His Soul dwells, like a Tartar, in a Hoord, without any fettled Habitation, but is always removing and diflodging from Place to Place. He changes his Head oftner than a Deer, and when his Imaginations are ftiff and at their full Growth, he cafts them off to breed new ones, only to caft off again the next Seafon. All his Purpofes are built on Air, the Chamelions Diet, and have the fame Operation to make him change Colour with every Object he comes near. He pulls off his Judgment, as commonly as his Hat, to every one he meets with.

THE INCONSTANT. 457

His Word and his Deed are all one; for when he has given his Word he has done, and nevel goes further. His Judgment being unfound has the fame Operation upon him, that a Difeafe has upon a fick Man, that makes him find fome Eafe in turning from Side to Side, and fill the laft is the moft uneafy.

[ 458 ]

A

H O R S E-COURSER

TS one that has read Horfes, and underftands all the Virtues and Vices of the whole Species by being converfant with them, and how to make his beft Advantage of both. He makes his firft Applications to a Horfe, as fome Lovers do to a Miftrefs, with fpecial Regard to her Eyes and Legs, and paffes over other Parts with lefs fevere and curious Scrutiny. He underftands all Difeafes incident to the Body of a Horfe, and what to abate in the Price for every one, according as it is capable either of Cure, or Difguife. He has more Ways to hide Defects in Horfe-flefh, than Women have Decays in Faces, among which Oaths and Lies are the moft general; for when they are applied warm they ferve, like an univerfal Medicine, to cure all Infir-

A HORSE-COURSER.

mities alike; for he that affrms or denies any Thing confidently is fure to gain fome Belief, though from an equal Obftinacy; as two Stones of equal Hardnefs rubbed together will tear fomething from one another ; and falfe Wares will not be put off, but by falfe Means, as all Things are maintained and nourifhed by that which is agreeable to their own Nature. All his other Operations are nothing to that of Quacking, with which he will put off Difeafes as faft as a Mountebank does Cures. He underftands the Chronology of a Horfe's Mouth moft critically, and will find out the Year of his Nativity by it, as certainly as if he had been at the Mare's Labour that bore him. All his Arts will not ferve to counterfeit a Horfe's Paces; but he has a lere Trick, that ferves inftead of it, and that is, to cry down all thofe Paces which he wants, and magnify thote he has. When he is lame of one Foot he has a very fine Expedient, by pricking the other overagainft it, to make him go right again. He is a frrict Obferver of Saints Days, only for the Fairs that are kept on them, and knows which is the beft Patron for buying, and which for felling: For Religion having been always a Traffic, the Saints have in all Ages been efteemed the moft fit and proper to have the Charge of all Fairs, where all Sorts of Trades are moft ufed; and always where a Saint has a Fair he has a Church too, as St. Peter's in Wefminfer, St. Bartbolomew in Smithfiell, $\underbrace{\circ} \mathrm{c}$.

460 A HORSE-COURSER.

[ 461 ]

$$
G \quad \mathrm{~L} \cdot \mathrm{U} \quad \mathrm{~T} \quad \mathrm{~T} \quad \mathrm{O} \quad \mathrm{~N}
$$

EATS his Children, as the Poets fay $S a-$ turn did, and carries his Felicity and all his Concernments in his Paunch. If he had lived when all the Members of the Body rebelled againft the Stomach, there had been no Poffibility of Accommodation. His Entrails are like the Sarcopbagus, that devours dead Bodies in a fmall Space, or the Indian Zampatan, that confumes Flefh in a Moment. He is a great Difh made on Purpofe to carry Meat. He eats out his own Head and his Horfes too-He knows no Grace, but Grace before Meat, hor Mortification but in fafting. If the Body be the Tabernacle of the Soul, his lives in a Sutler's Hut. He celebrates $M a / f$, or rather $\mathrm{Me} e \mathrm{~s}$, to the Idol in his Belly, and, like a Papif, eats his Adoration. A third Courfe is the third Heaven to him, and he is ravifhed inta it. A Feaft is a good Confcience to him ; and he is troubled in Mind, when he miffes of it. His Teeth are very induftrious in their calling ; and his Chops like a Bridewell perpetually hatcheling. He depraves his Appetite with Haut-Goufts, as old Fornicators do their Lechery, into Fulfomnefs and Stinks. He licks himfelf into the Shape of a Bear, as thofe Beafts are faid to do their Whelps. He new forms himfelf in his own Belly, and becomes another Thing than God and Nature meant him. His Belly takes Place of the Reft of his Members, and walks before in State. He eats out that which eats all Things elfe, Time; and is very curious to have all Things in Seafon at his Meals, but his Hours, which are commonly at Midnight, and fo late, that he prays too late for his daily Bread, unlefs he mean his natural daily Bread. He is admirably learned in the Doctrines of Meats and Sauces, and deferves the Chair in Guris-Prudentia, that is in the Skill of Pottages. At length he eats his Life out of Houfe and Home, and becomes a Treat for Worms, feils his Cloaths to feed his Gluttony, and eats himfelf naked, as the firt of his Family, Adam, did.-

462 A GLUTTON.

[ 463 ]

A

$\begin{array}{llllll}\mathrm{R} & \mathrm{I} & \mathrm{B} & \mathrm{A} & \mathrm{L} & \mathrm{D}\end{array}$

IS the Devil's Hypocrite, that endeavours to make himfelf appear worfe than he is. His evil Words and bad Manners ftrive which fhall moft corrupt one another, and it is hard to fay which has the Advantage. He vents his Lechery at the Mouth, as fome Fifhes are faid to engender. He is an unclean Beaft that chews the Cud; for after he has fatisfied his Luft, he brings it up again into his Mouth to a fecond Enjoyment, and plays an Aftergame of Letchery with his Tongue much worfe than that which the Cunnilingi ufed among the -old Romans. He ftrips Nature ftark-naked, and clothes her in the moft fantaftic and ridiculous Fafhion a wild Imagination can invent. He is worfe and more nafty than a Dog; for in his broad Defcriptions of others obfcene Actions he does but lick up the Vomit of another Man's Surfeits. He tells Tales out of a vaulting School. A leud baudy Tale does more Hurt, and gives a worfe Example than the Thing of which it was told; for the Act extends but to few, and if it be concealed goes no further ; but the Report of it is unlimited, and may be conveyed to all Peoplé, and all Times to come. He expofes that with his Tongue, which Nature gave Women Modefty, and brute Beafts Tails to cover. He miftakes Ribaldry for Wit, though nothing is more unlike, and believes himfelf to be the finer Man the filthier he talks; as if he were above Civility, as Fanatics are above Ordinances, and held nothing more fhameful than to be afhamed of any Thing. He talks nothing but Aretine's Pictures, as plain as the Scotch Dialect, which is efteemed to be the moft copious and elegant of the Kind. He improves and hufbands his Sins to the beft Advantage, and makes one Vice find Employment for another; for what he acts loofely in private, he talks as loofely of in public, and finds as much Pleafure in the one as the other. He endeavours to make himfelf Satisfastion for the Pangs his Claps and Botches put him to with

464 A R I B A L D.

A $\quad$ R I B A L D. 465

vapouring and bragging how he came by them: He endeavours to purchafe himfelf a Reputation by pretending to that which the beft Men abominate, and the worft value not, like one that clips and wafhes falfe Coin, and ventures his Neck for that which will yield him nothing.

[ 466 ]

T H O U G H T S

$$
\text { U } \mathrm{P} O \mathrm{~N}
$$

VARIOUS SUBJECTS.

FAITH is fo far from being above Reafon, and Knowledge, that it is below Ignorance, which it depends upon: for no Man can believe and not be ignorant ; but he may be ignorant and not believe-Whenfoever Reafon and Demonftration appear, Faith and Ignorance vanifh together.

They that difpute Matters of Faith into nice Particulars and curious Circumftances, do as unwifely as a Geographer, that would undertake to draw a true Map of Terra Incognita, by mere Imagination. For though there is fuch a Pait of the Earth, and that not without Mountains and Vallies, and Plains, and

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 467

Rivers ; yet to attempt the Defcription of thefe, and affign their Situations and Tracts, without a View of the Place, is more than ridiculous.

He that thinks to pleafe God by forcing his Underftanding in Difquifitions of him beyond the Limits, which he has been pleafed to prefcribe, befide the Lofs of his Labour, does but endeavour to intrude where he is denied Accefs, and prepofteroufly attempts to ferve God by difobeying him.

It is a dangerous Thing to be too inquifitive, and to fearch too narrowly into a true Religion : for fifty thoufand Beth/hemites were deftroyed for looking into the Ark of the Covenant; and ten Times as many have been ruined for looking too curioufly into that Book, in which that Story is recorded.

They that believe God does not forefee Ac. cidents, becaufe nothing can be known that is not, and Accidents have no being until they are in Act, are very much miftaken : for Accident is but a Term invented to relieve Ignorance $\mathrm{H}_{\mathrm{h}} 2$ of Caufes, as Phyficians ufe to call the ftrange Operations of Plants and Minerals occult 2ualities; not that they are without their Caufes, but that their Caufes are unknown. And, indeed, there is not any Thing in Nature, or Event, that has not a Pedigree of Caufes, which, tho' obfcure to us, cannot be fo to God, who is the firft Caufe of all Things.

468 THOUGHTS UPON

Men inflict and fuffer Perfecution for Religion with equal Zeal, and tho' both pretend to Confcience, both oftentimes are equally miftaken.

Almoft all the Miracles in the Geroifb Hiftory, from their Deliverance from their firft Slavery by the Plagues of Egypt, to their fecond Captivity in Babylon, were performed by the Deftruction, Ruin, and Calamity of Man-kind-But all thofe, that our Saviour wrought to confirm his Doctrine, quite contrary, by raifing the Dead to Life, curing of defperate Difeafes, making the Blind fee, cafting out of Devils, and feeding of hungry Multitudes, &cc. but never doing Harm to any Thing; all fuitable to thofe excellent Leffons of Peace, Love, Charity, and Concord, to which the whole Purpofe of all that he did or faid perpetually tended-Whofoever, therefore, does endeavour to draw Rules or Examples for the Practice of Chriftianity from the extraordinary Proceedings of the Gerws, muft of Neceffity make a ftrange Confufion and adulterate Mixture of the Chriftian Religion, by depraving and alloying it with that, which is fo directly averfe and contrary to its own Nature. And as this unnatural Mixture of two different Religions was the firft Caufe of Diffenfion among the Apoftles themfelves, and afterwards determined and refolved againft by them all: fo there is no Doctrine of Rebellion, that was ever vented among Chriftians, that was not revived and raifed from this Kind of falle and forced Conftruction.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 469

The Enmities of religious People would never rife to fuch a Height, were it not for their Miftake, that God is better ferved with their Opinions than their Practices; Opinions being very inconfiderable further than they have Influence upon Actions.

$$
\mathrm{Hh}_{3}
$$

All Reformations of Religion feldom extend further than the mere Opinions of Men. The Amendment of their Lives and Converfations are equally unregarded by all Churches, how much foever they differ in Doctrine and Difcipline. And though all the Reformation our Saviour preached to the World was only Repentance and Amendment of Life, without taking any Notice at all of Mens Opinions and Judgments ; yet all the Chriftian Churches take the contrary Courfe, and believe Religion more concerned in one erroneous Opinion, than all the moft inhuman and impious Actions in the World.

Charity is the chiefeft of all chriftian Virtues, without which all the reft fignify nothing : for Faith and Hope can only bring us on our Way to the Confines of this World ; but Cbarity is not only our Convoy to Heaven, but engaged to ftay with us there for èver-And yet there is not any Sort of religious People in the World, that will not renounce and difclaim this neceffary Caufe of Salvation for mere Trifles of the flightelt Moment imaginable; nay, will not prepofterounly endeavour to fecure their eternal Happinefs by deftroying that, without which it is never to be obtained. From hence are all their fpiritual Quarrels derived, and fuch punctilios of Opinion, that though more nice and peevifh than thofe of Love and Honour in Romances, are yet maintained with fuch Animofities, as if Heaven were to be purchafed no Way but that, which is the moft certain, and infallible of all others to lofe it.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 47

They that profefs Religion, and believe it confifts in frequenting of Sermons, do as if they fhould fay, they have a great Defire to ferve God, but would fain be perfuaded to it.

The Religion of the Pagans had its Foundation upon natural Philofophy, as the Cbriffian may feem to have upon moral: for all thofe Gods, which the Ancients worhhipped as Perfons, did but reprefent the feveral Operations of Nature upon feveral Kinds of Matter; which being wrought by an invifible and unintelligible Power, the wifeft Men of thofe Times could invent no Way fo fit and proper to reduce them, with Refpect and Reverence, to the

$$
\mathrm{Hh}_{4}
$$

472 THOUGHTS UPON.

vulgar Capacity, as by expreffing them by the Figures of Men and Women (like the Egyptian Hieroglyphics, or as Poets and Painters do Virtues and Vices) and by afcribing Divinity to them introduce a Veneration in the Minds of the common People, (who are apt to contemn any Thing they can underftand, and admire nothing but what is above their Capacity) which they would never have received upon any other Account; and therefore with great Piety and Devotion adored thofe Notions reprefented by Statues and Images, which they would never have regarded, if they had underftood-If they had underftood the natural Reafon of Thunder, they would never have facrificed to , to divert it from themfelves. Their Capacities are naturally too dull to apprehend any Thing, that is ever fo little removed from outward Senfe, though it be derived from it; but are wonderfully acute at unridling of Myfteries, and fuch Things as have no Relation at all to it.

The Papifts fay they believe as the Church believes, and the Proteftants laugh at them for it, but do the very fame Thing themfelves; all the Difference is; the firft believes by Wholefale, and the laft by Retail-The Papifts believe fomething, but they know not what ; the Proteffant believes this or that, but he knows not what it is-The Papift believes what he cant not underftand without Examination; the Proteftant will examine, though he cannot underfand, before he will believe; fo that though they differ in Words, they agree in the fame Thing.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 473

The Chriftian Religion in the primitive Times was bred up under the greateft Tyranny in the World, and was propagated by being oppreft and profecuted; but in after Times, when it was delivered from that Slavery, it inclined to be tyrannical it felf: for when the Popes had reduced their crueilef Enemies the Roman Emperors, they affumed a greater and more extravagant Power, than the others ever pretended to ; as if Religion having ferved out an Apprenticehip to Tyranny, as foon as it was out of its Time, had fet up for itfelf.

All the Bufinefs of the World is but Diverfion, and all the Happinefs in it, that Mankind is capable of, any Thing that will keep it from reflecting upon the Mifery, Vanity, and Nonfenfe of it; and whoever can by any

74 THOUGHTS UPON

Trick keep himfelf from thinking of it, is as wife and happy as the beft Man in it.

The more filly and ridiculous Things are in themfelves, the more facred and folemn Pretences they require to fet them off.

There are more Fools than Knaves in the World, elfe the Knaves would not have enough to live upon.

Moft Men owe their Misfortunes rather to their Want of Difhonefty than Wit.

The greateft Drunkards are the worft Judges of Wine ; the moft infatiable Letchers the moft ignorant Critics in Women; and the greedieft Appetites, of the beft Cookery of Meats For thofe, that ufe Excefs in any Thing, never underftand the Truth of it, which always lies in the Mean.

Courts of Juftice are like Court-Cards, which nobody wins by, but another lofes, according as they are dealt; and commonly there is as much Chance in the one as the other, and no lefs fhuffling-One Ace beats them all as O. C. did.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 475

A Client is fain to hire a Lawyer to keep him from the Injury of other Lawyers; as Chriftians, that travel in Turkey, are forced to hire Janizaries to protect them from the Infolencies of other Turks.

It is a wonderful filly Diftinction that Divines make between getting of Children for Procreation only, and out of natural Concupifcence, which was only provided by Nature as a neceffary Means to produce the other ; as if it were a Sin to eat for Hunger, but not for the Support of Life.

This Age will ferve to make a very pretty Farce for the next, if it have any Wit at all to make Ufe of it.

Great Perfons of our Times do like Abfalom, when he rebelled againft his Father, commit lniquity upon the Tops of Houfes, that all People may fee and take Notice of it.

476 THOUGHTS UPON

The prefent Government does by the late Rebels like the Kingdom of Heaven, that is better pleafed with the Converfion of one Sinner, than ninety nine righteous Perfons, that need no Repentance.

Public Actions are like Watches, that have fine Cafes of Gold or Silver, with a Window of Chriftal to fee the Pretences; but the Movement is of bafer Metal, and the Original of all, the Spring, a crooked Piece of Steel-So in the Affairs of State, the folemn Profeffions of Religion, Fuftuce, and Liberty are but Pretences to conceal Ambition, Rapine, and ufeful Cbeat.

Dull-witted Perfons are commonly the fitteft Inftruments for Wifemen to employ, if they have but Senfe enough to obferve Directions; the Speculation of fuch Men into the Reafon of Affairs being unfafe, and their Knowledge of why, or to what End they act, as unneceflary as it is for a Saw to know what it cuts.

The chiefe? Art of Government is to convert the Ignorance, Folly and Madnefs of Mankind, as much as may be to their own Good, which can never be done by telling them Truth and Reafon, or ufing any direct Means; bu by little Tricks and Devices (as they cure Madmen) that work upon their Hopes and Fears, to which their Ignorance naturally inclines then.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 477

There is no Difference between a Government that is managed by Law, and one that is maintained by Force, but that the one oppreffes in a gentle, and the other in a rugged Way.

Princes, that have the Command of other Men, have lefs Freedom themfelves than the meaneft of their Subjects, and are tied to greater Refervations and Forbearances than the Reft of Mankind: for juft fo much Refpect as they fhew to the public Opinion of the World, will the World have of them, and no more.

If the Power of our Houfe of Commons were in any one fingle Perfon it would eafily devour all the reft, and convert them into itfelf, as it did when it was but in few Hands; for the Power of the Purfe has naturally a greater Command than any other-But nothing keeps it within its $B$ runds fo much as being divided among fo many Perfons of equal Shares, who, like all Crowds, do but hinder one another in all Things that they undertake. For an Army of all Commanders would be in a worfe Condition than one that has none at all; and though Sclomon fays, in many Counfellors there is Strength, it is but like that of a Beaft, that knows not how to make Ufe of it.

478 THOUGHTS UPON

There is nothing in Nature more arbitrary than a Parliament, and yet there is nothing elfe, that is able to preferve the Nation from being governed by an arbitrary Power, and confine Authority within a limited Compafs; as a Prop can make a falling Houfe ftand firm, though it cannot ftand of itfelf, and a Bow make an Arrow fly, though it cannot fly itfelf.

The Preferment of Fools and undeferving Perfons is not fo much an Honour to them, as Infamy and Difhonour to thofe that raife them; for when a Prince confers Honour on thofe, that do not deferve it, he throws it away out of his own Stock, and leaves himfelf fo much the lefs, as he parts with to thofe that want Merit to pretend to it ; and by that ill Hußbandry in time leaves himfelf none at all, to pay thofe to whom it is due.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 479

Princes and Governours have great Reafon to avoid and deprefs Men of penetrating and fmart Wits, efpecially if they have Integrity and Honefty-For the Imprudence and Extravagance of their Actions are not fit to be expofed to the View and Cenfure of fuch Men; to whom they cannot but appear in their mort deformed and fottifh Characters.

The Juftice that is faid to eftablifh the Throne of a Prince, confifts no lefs in the Juftnefs of his Title, than the juft Adminiftration of his Government : for an unjuft Title cannot be fupported but by unjuft Means - And for Want of this all our late Ufurpations mifcarried.

Princes ought to give their Subjects as much of the Shadow of Liberty as they can for their Lives; but as little of the Reality of it, if they regard the Safety of themfelves, or their People.

480 THOUGHTS UPON

The Ambition of fome Men, and the Wants. of others, are the ordinary Caufes of all civil Wars.

Governments, like natural Bodies, have their Times of Growing, Perfection, and Declining; and according to their Conftitutions fome hold out longer, and fome decay fooner than others, but all in their Beginnings and Infancies are fubject to fo many Infirmities and Imperfections, that what Solomon faid of a Monarchy, Wo to that Kingdom whofe Prince is a Cbild, may be more juftly faid of a new Republic; and we may with as much Reafon fay, Wo be to that People, that live under a young Government: for as both muft of Neceffity be under Tutors, Protectors, and Keepers of Liberties, until they can give the World an Account, that they are able to govern of themfelves (which a Prince does in fewer Years than a Republic can in Ages) the People always fuffer under fo many Lords and Mafters; and though a Foundation of Liberty be laid, the Fruition of it is for After-Ages, like the planting of Trees, whofe Shade and Fruit is only to be enjoyed by Pof-terity-For what Protection can a Nation have from a Government that muft itfelf be protected ? That mult maintain Guards and Armies. at their own Charge to keep themfelves in Obedience, that is in Slavery, until in Procefs of Time by flow Degrees, that which was rugged at firft becomes gentle and eafy-For as that, which was Tyranny at firft, does in time become Liberty: fo there is no Liberty, but in the Beginning was Tyranny. All unripe Fruit is harfh, and they, that live in new-builtHoufes, are apt to catch Difeafes and Infirmities. Nor is it poffible to fettle any Government by a Model, that fhall hold, as Men contrive Ships and Buildings: for Governments are made, like natural Productions, by Degrees, according as their Materials are brought in by Time, and thofe Parts of it, that are unagreeable to their Nature, calt off.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 48:

He that keeps a watchful and vigilant Eye upon that Man's Intereft whom he is to treat withal ; and obferves it as the Compafs that all Men generally fteer by, thall hardly be deceived with fair Pretences.

Principles of Juftice and Right have chiefly Relation to the general Good of Mankind, and Vol. II.
therefore have fo weak an Influence upon Particulars, that they give Place to the meaneft and moft unworthy of private Interefts.

The Deferts of good Men do not produce fo bad Effects being unrewarded, as the Crimes of evil Men unpunifhed-For good Men are but difcouraged, but the bad become more perverfe and wicked.

It is fafer for a Prince to tolerate all Sorts of Debauchery than feditious Meetings at Con-venticles-As thofe, that have the Stone, the Gout, or Confumption are not fhut up, becaufe their Difeafes are only hurtful to themfelves; but thofe, that have any contagious Maladies that are apt to fpread and infect Multitudes, are with all Care to be fhut up, and kept from converfing with others, whom their Diftempers may endanger, and in Time propagate among the People.

The worft Governments are the beft, when they light in good Hands; and the beft the worft, when they fall into bad ones.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 483

The worft Governments are always the moft chargeable, and coft the People deareft; as all Men in Courts of Judicature, pay more for the Wrongs that are done them, than the right.

Princes that have loft their Credit and Reputation are like Merchants inevitably deftined to Ruin: for all Men immediately call in their Loyalty and Refpect from the firft, as they do their Money from the latter.

The Vices of Tyrants run in a Circle, and produce one another, begin with Luxury and Prodigality, which cannot be fupplied but by Rapine. Rapine produces Hate in the People, and that Hate Fear in the Prince; Fear Cruelty, Cruelty Defpair, and Defpair Deftruction.

A Tyrant is a Monfter or Prodigy born to the Deftruction of the beft Men; as among the Ancients, when a Cow calved a Monfter, great Numbers of Cattle, that were fair and perfect in their Kind, were prefently facrificed, toexpiate and avert the ominous Portent.

$$
\text { I i } 2
$$

484 THOUGHTS UPON

All Governments are in their Managements fo equal, that no one has the .Advantage of another, unlefs in Speculation; and in that there is no Convenience that any particular Model can pretend to, but is as liable to as great Inconveniencies fome other Way ; infomuch that the worft of all Governments in Speculation, that is, Tyranny, is found to be the beft in the Hands of excellent Princes, who receive no Advantage from the Greatnefs of their Power, but only a larger Latitude to do Good to their Subjects, which the beft conftituted Forms, that is, the moft limited, do but deprive them of, and tye them up from doing Good, as well as Hurt.

Princes have great Reafon to be allowed Flatterers to adore them to their Faces, becaufe they are more expofed to the Infamy and Detraction of the World, than the meanef of their Subjects; otherways they would be dealt with very unequally, to be bound to all the Infamy, true or falfe, that can be laid upon them, and not to be allowed an equal Freedom of Praife to qualify it; for though he may be abufed at any Man's Pleafure, he cannot be flattered without his own.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 485

Oaths and Obligations in the Affairs of the World are like Ribbands and Knots in dreffing, that feem to tie fomething, but do not at all.-For nothing but Intereft does really oblige.

As foon as a Man has taken an Oath againft his Confcience, and done his Endeavour to damn himfelf, he is capable of any Truft or Employment in the Government; fo excellent a Quality is Perjury to render the moft perfidious of Men moft fit and proper for public Charges of the greateft Confequence; and fuch as have ever fo little Reftraint laid upon them by Confcience, or Religion, or natural Inte_ grity, are declared infufficient and unable to hold any Office or public Truft in the NationAnd this is the modern Way of $\mathcal{T}_{e f t}$, as they call it, to take Meafure of Men's Abilities and Faith by their Alacrity in fwearing; and is, indeed, the moft compendious Way to exclude all thofe that have any Confcience, and to take in fuch as have none at all.

The Wit of the Schoolmen, like the Righte」 oufnefs of the Scribes and Pharifees, confiited I i 3 much in the ftraining of Gnats and fwallowing of Camels-For they that are curious in Subtleties, and ignorant in things of folid Knowledge, are but penny-wife and pound-foolifh.

486 THOUGHTS UPON

He that has lefs Learning than his Capacity is able to manage, fhall have more Ufe of it, than he that has more than he can mafter. For no Man can have an active and ready Command of that which is too heavy for him.

The Underftanding of Man hath a Sphere of Activity, beyond which if it be forced it becomes unactive, as it does vigorous by being confined. Unlefs a Vine be pruned, it will bear no Fruit; and he that related to the Se nate de coercendis Imperii terminis was no unwife Statefinan. Opinion of Knowledge has ever been one of the chiefeft Caufes of Ignorance; for moft Men know lefs than they might, by attempting to know more than they can.

The Reafon why Fools and Knaves thrive better in the World than wifer and honefter Men is, becaufe they are nearer to the general Temper of Mankind, which is nothing but a

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 487

Mixture of Cheat and Folly, which thofe that underftand and mean better cannot comply with, but entertain themfelves with another Kind of Fool's Paradife of what fhould be, not what is; while thofe that know no better, take naturally to it, and get the Start of others.

The Obfervations of fome Men are like the fifting of Bakers, that retain the Bran, and let the Flour pafs through.

It is both the wifeft and and fafeft Way in the World to keep at a convenient Diftance with all Men-For when Men converfe too clofely, they commonly, like thofe that meet in Crouds, offend one another.

He that has many Languages to exprefs his Thoughts, but no Thoughts worth expreffing, is like one that can write all Hands, but never the better Senfe; or can caft up any Sum of Monéy, but has none.

The End of all Knowledge is to underftand what is fit to be done; for to know what has

$$
1 \mathrm{i}_{4}
$$

488 THOUGHTS UPON

been, and what is, and what may be, does but tend to that.

Doing and faying, and giving Advice and taking Advice, and underftanding and acting are all feveral Things, and fo averfe to one another, that they feldom or never meet in the fame Perfon-For as Phyficians and Lawyers, that live by giving others Advice, do feldom make ufe of it on their own Occafions; fo Men of greateft Underftanding and Knowledge do as feldom make that Ufe of it for their own Advantages, as they do for the Benefir of others, which being a hard Condition impofed upon them by Nature, deferves rather to be pitied, than blamed. For Nature, that in her diftributive Juftice endeavours to deal as equally as poffibly fhe can with all Men, and never beftows any Convenience without Allowance, would break her own Rules, if fhe fhould confer all her Favours upon any one Perfon, and not make him abate for it fome other Way.

All Wit and contemplative Wifdom in the World muft of Neceffity appear lazy and idle; for as it is performed by Cogitation and Thinking, and that cannot be done without a fedentary Quietnefs, together with a prefent and agreeable Temper of Mind, which no Man has always ready at command, it cannot be avoided but much Time muft of Neceffity be fpent to no Purpofe, or very little, which might be faved if Men were always in a fit Humour to perform, what they defign and propofe to themfelves. For the more curious and fubtle Men's Capacities are, the further they are from being at their own difpofing.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 489

A great deal of Learning is like a great Houfe, very chargeable to be kept in Repair; and if it be too big for the owner's Ufe and Occafions, in a fmall Time it falls to Decay, only by being not inhabited, that is, difconti-nued-For no Man is the wifer for his Books, until he is above them; and when he is fo, the utter Neglect of them will in a few Years bring him below them again; and as he was at firlt raifed by them, fo is he ruined.

In Univerfities Men are valued only upon the Account of their Ingenuity and Parts, which is feldom found to be obferved any where elfe-For in Courts they are efteemed only for their Interefts; and in great Cities only for their Wealth; and in the common Standard of thic World, for what they affume and appear, not what they are.

That which the wife Man prayed for of God in Ecclefiafles-to give bim neitber Ricbes nor Poverty-is as much to be defired in Converfation and Bufinefs, to have nothing to do with Men that are very rich or poor; for the one Sort are commonly infolent and proud, and the other mean and contemptible; and thofe that are between both are commonly the moft agreeable.

Ignorance is never fo abominable, as when it pretends to Wifdom and Learning; for among bad Things, thofe that feem to be the beft are always the worit, as a probable Lye is more dangerous and apt to deceive, than that which is apparently faife-So Monkeys and Baboones, that are between Man and Beaf, are worfe and more deformed than thofe Creatures that are all Beaff.

All forced Conftructions of difficult and learned Nonfenfe are like planing of Knots in

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 49r

Wood, which when they are rough-hewn appear deformed and crofs-grained every Way; but when they are fmoothed and polifhed reprefent the Shapes of Faces and other Figures, which to a ftrong Imagination may feem to have been meant and intended, when they fell out fo by Chance, and are rendered what they appear by a fuperficial Glofs.

Speculations with wife and knowing Men go for little, until they are approved by Practice and Experiment: for commonly they ufe us as Glaffes, and deliver that right in Appearance, that proves left in Tryal.

There are as many Sorts of Fools as there are of Dogs, from the largeft of Maftives and Irifb Greyhounds, to the fmalleft of Curs and Ifand Shocks, and all equally Fools, as the reft are Dogs.

He that would write obfcure to the People needs write nothing but plain Reafon and Senfe, than which nothing can be more myfterious to them: for to thofe, to whom myfterious Things are plain, plain Things mut bee myfterious.

They that have but a little Wit are commonly like thofe that cry Things in the Streets, who if they have but a Groats-worth of rotten or ftinking Stuff, every Body that comes nigh fhall be fure to hear of it; while thofe that drive a rich noble Trade, make no Noife of it.

Hard Students and great Artifts are commonly moft ignorant in thofe Things that border upon their Arts and Profeffions; as Priefts and Lawyers of Morality, practical Men of Speculation, and the fpeculative of Practice.

He that applies himfelf to underftand Things that are not to be known, ufes his Wit and Induftry like the Edge of a Tool, that is cut upon a Thing that is too hard for it-Befides his Lofs of Labour he does but render it more blunt and dull than it was before.

Men take fo much Delight in lying, that Truth is fometimes forced to difguife herfelf in the Flabit of Fal/bood to get Entertainment, as in Fables and Apologues frequently ufed by the Ancients; and in this fhe is not at all unjuft, for Falfhood does very commonly ufurp her Perfon.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 493

Public Eftimation commonly neglects fubftantial Things, and cries up the flight and frivolous, like the Wind that paffes over folid Bodies, and bears up Duft and Feathers.

Dr. Sps'. Dedication of his Book to Cl. is not unlike what Marco Paolo relates of the Tartars, that they never eat nor drink, but they fpill fome of it on the Ground as an Offering to the Devil.

The Writings of the Ancients are like their Coins-Thofe that have any lafting or natural Senfe, and Wit in them, are like Medals of Gold or Silver, and bear a Value a_ mong all Men in all Times; and thofe that have little or none are like thofe of Brafs, that have only a Value among a few, that efteem them merely for their Antiquity.

The ridiculous Wits of our Times have that indulgent Ignorance to themfelves, that they never impute any Thing that is fixed upon them (how apparently true foever) to their own Faults, but afcribe it wholly to the Envy or Malice of others, as Fanatics do their juft Punifhments, and call them Perfecutions for Righteoufnefs inflicted by the Wicked.

494 THOUGHTS UPON

There is a perpetual civil War in the Commonwealth of Learning, which has no lefs fair Pretences on all Sides, than politic QuarrelsFor as thofe commonly pretend Religion, Law, and Liberty; fo do thefe Truth, Reafon, and the Oppofition of Error; when really it is nothing but the Advantage of their own little Intereft, and the Contradiction of one another_—For, like Bowlers, if one lye nearer the Jack (Truth) than another can expect to lay himfelf, his next Bufinefs is to knock him away.

There is a Kind of Phyfiognomy in the Titles of Books, no lefs than in the Faces of Men, by which a fkilful Obferver will as well know what to expect from the one as the other.

Men of the quickeft Apprehenfions and apteft Geniufes to any Thing they undertake, do not always prove the greateft Mafters in it: for there is more Patience and Phlegm required in thofe that attain to any Degree of Perfection, than is commonly found in the Temper of active and ready Wits, that foon tire, and will not hold out; as the fwiftert Race-Horfe will not perform a long Journey fo well as a fturdy dull Jade--Hence it is, that Virgil, who wanted much of that natural Eafinefs of Wit that Ovid had, did neverthelefs with hard Labour and long Study arrive at a higher Perfection, than the other with ail his Dexterity of Wit, but lefs Induftry, could attain to-The fame we may obferve of Gobnfon and Sbakefpear: for he that is able to think long and judge well will be fure to find out better Things, than another Man can hit upon fuddenly, though of more quick and ready Parts; which is commonly but Chance, and the other Art and Judgment.

VARIOUS SU゙BJECTS. 495

Moft Men of Learning have the fame Judgment and Opinion of Latin and Greek. Authors, as they had when they were Children, and were taught to read them at School to underftand the Languages they wrote in, and not the Truth of their Reafon and Senfe, of which they were then incapable; and becaufe they found them excellently ufeful for the learning of Words, believe they are fo for all Things elfe.

Bull and Miftake is not the worft Sort of Nonfenfe; for that may proceed from Incogitancy or Diverfion by fomething elfe : But Metaphyfical, or that Nonfenfe, that is derived from Study and Confideration, is the more defperate; as Hippocrates fays-Sad and ftudious Madnefs is more incurable than that which is frolic and carelefs.

The Spanilb Poets are excellent Defigners of Comedy, but very ill Writers, as it falls out commonly in painting.

Our modern Authors write Plays as they feed Hogs in Weftpalia; where but one eats Peafe

As they feet Hogs in Weftphalia.] Mr. Pope introduces the fame humourous Allufion, upon an Occafion fomething fimilar to this, in the 2 d part of his fatirical Dialogue entitled One iboufand, Seres bundred and thirty eight.

> Let courtly Wits to Wits afford Supply, As Hog to Hog in Huts of Weltphaly;
> If one through Nature's Bounty or his Lord's, Has rubat the frugal, dirty Soil afords, From bim the next receives it, thick or thins As fure a Mels almoft as it came in;

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 497

or Acorns, and all the reft feed upon his and one another's Excrements - So the Spaniard firft invents and defigns Plays; The French borrow from them, and the Englifb from the French.

It is much cafier to write Plays in Verfe than Profe; as it is harder to imitate Nature than any Deviation from her; and Profe requires a more proper and natural Senfe and Expreffion than Verfe; that has fomething in the Stamp and Coin, to anfwer for the Alloy and want of intrinfic Value.

There are two Ways of Quibbling, the one with Words, and the other with Senfe, like the Figura Dictionis and Figura Sententica in Rhetoric. The firft is done by fhewing Tricks with

> The blefed Bcrefit, not there confin'd,
> Drops to the third, wobo nuzzles clefe bebind;
> From Tail to Month they feed, and they caroufe:
> The laf, full fairly gives it to the Houfe.

It muft be owned, that it is no uncommon Thing for two Wits to hit upon the fame Thought ; but yet there is fomething fo whimfical and out of the common Road in this, and, one may add, fo much of Butler's Manner and Humour in it, that it feems highly probable, either that $P$ ope had feen thefe Manufcripts, or had taken a Hint from fome Converfation with Bifhop Atterbury, who, as I have obferved before, had been favoured by Mr. Longueville with the Infpection of them.

Vol. II.
K k

498 THOUGHTS UPON
Words of the fame Sound, but different Senfes; and the other by expreffing of Senfe by Contradiction and Riddle - Of this Mr. Waller was the firft moft copious Author, and has fo infected our modern Writers of Heroics with it, that they can hardly write any other Way; and if at any Time they endeavour to do it, like Horfes, that are put out of their Pace, they prefently fall naturally into it againTrotto da A ino dura poco.

Dr. Donne's Writings are like Voluntary or Prelude, in which a Man is not tied to any particular Defign of Air, but may change his Key or Mood at Pleafure ; fo his Compofitions feem to have been written without any parti-. cular Scope.

Mr. Montagne the Effayift feems, when he wrote, to have been either a little warmed with Wine, or naturally hot-headed.

They are very weak Critics, whito fuppofe a Poet, that writes a Play, ought (like one that rides with a Halter about his Neck) to bring all his Defign and Contrivance within fo many Hours, or elfe be hanged for it-As if things of greater Importance, and much more to the Purpofe, were to be omitted for a mere Curiofity, which none but the Capricious take Notice of.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 499

Thofe that profefs the inftrumental Arts, as Grammar, Rhetoric, and Logic, are like Or-gan-makers, that underftand all the inward Fabric of the Bellows, Pipes, &cc. and can tell when any Thing is out of Order, and how to mend it, and yet cannot tell how to play fo well, as one that knows nothing but the Keys.

A Man may be deceived and cheated with Truth, if he want Judgment, no lefs than with Falfhood; as he may ftumble and fall in the right Way for want of Care; as well as in the wrong.

Since the Knowledge of Good and Evil are infeparable, it hath pleafed Almighty God, that Man fhould know lefs how to do himfelf good than he might, left he fhould know more how to do others Hurt, than is fit for him.

$$
\mathrm{Kk} 2
$$

Fools are always wrangling and difputing, and the lefs Reafon they have, the more earneft they are in Controverfy ; as Beggars are always quarrelling about dividing an Alms; and the paltrieft Trades, will higgle more for a Penny, than the richeft will do for a Pound.

A credulous Perfon is like a Pitcher born by the Ears, empty of itfelf, but apt to hold whatfoever is put into it.

Although very few Men in the World are content with their own Fortunes and Eftates, but would gladly change on any Terms for the leaft Advantage, yet no Man was ever unfatisfied with his own Underftanding (efpecially if it were defective) but always believed himfelf to be as well provided that Way, as any of his Neighbours-For Ignorance is one of thofe Infirmities, that are infenfible; and though it be ever fo defperately fick feels no Pain, nos Want of Health at all.

Clergymen expofe the Kingdom of Heaven to fale, that with the Money they may purchare as much as they can in this World; and therefore they extol and magnify the one, as all Chapmen do a Commodity they defire to part with, and cry down the other, as all Buyers are wont to do that which they have the greateft Longing to purchafe, only to bring down the Price, and gain the better Bargain by it-And yet in the general the World goes on ftill as it ufed to do; and Men will never utterly give over the other World for this, nor this for the other.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 5oI

There is nothing in the World, that breeds Atheifm like Hypocrify; and the Licentioufnefs of the prefent Age owes its original to nothing fo much, as the counterfeit Picty of the laft-And it is well for the World, that there is nothing to be gotten by Atheifm; for if there were, thofe who profefs God only to affront him for Gain, would with greater Reafon and lefs Impudence utterly difown him, if there were nothing to be loft in the Exchange.

An Hypocrite hides his Vices, as a Dog does his Meat when his Belly is full, until he has a frefh Appetite, and then he knows where to treat himfelf again.

K k 3

502 THOUGHTSUPON

The Godly will not admit, that Grace and Morality fhould be the fame, although there is nothing more true; for then their Want of both would plainly appear; Grace in their Senfe being nothing but a Difpenfation for the Defect of moral Virtue, and granted only to thofe, who are God Almighty's efpecial Favourites; as Titles of Honour are but Tickets and Exemptions, to difpenfe with Men for want of real Honour, or Mandates to enable them to take their Degrees without doing their Exercifes.

The Fanatics have changed the Method that Chrift obferved in calling his Apoftles, and take a clean contrary Courfe; for thofe, that he called, left their Trades to follow him, as St. Peter did the mending of his Nets; but thefe Men call themfelves to follow their Trades and him too; and as St. Matthew left his receiving of Money to turn Apoftle, they turn Apoftles, only that they may get in to receive Money.

Religion never made any Man in the World juft and honeft, who had not fome Foundation for it in his Nature before; for all the

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 503

Operation it can have upon others is but artificial, and all their Converfations prevail no further upon their natural Corruptions, than $t_{0}$ enable them to perform the fame unjuft and wicked Actions under other Forms and Difpenfations, which their Inclinations led them to before, and not feldom render them more barbarous and inhuman than they were before, when Zeal and Confcience light in their Way to ferve for Pretences.

Our Saviour was not fo fevere to any Sort of People among the Ferws as the Scribes and Pharifees, who were but Sectaries and Fanatics of that Religion, whom he perpetually brands with the Name of Hypocrites, condemns as the wortt of Mankind, and prefers Publicans and Sinners (which were thofe Kind of People our modern Pharifees call the Wicked) every where before them, with whom he vouchfafed to converfe; but we never hear, that he would have any Thing to do with the Zealots of thofe Times.

The firft Quarrel and Murther, that ever was committed in the World was upon a fanatic

$$
\text { K k } 4
$$

504  'THOUGHTSUPON

Emulation in Religion, when Cain killed the fourth Part of all Mankind his Brother Abel, merely out of Zeal for feeing the Truth of his Brothcr's religious Worfhip preferred before his own, though God himfelf were JudgeAnd ever fince that Time much about the fame Proportion of all Mankind has conftantly been deftroyed by the reft upon the very fame Account.

The late thorough Reformation, though pretended and defigned to force the proteitant Religion further off from Popery than it was before eftablifhed, did propagate it more than thrice fo many Years had done before ; and by endeavouring to deftroy the Church of England recruited that of Rome, more than all their Seminaries and Powder-plots could have done if they had taken Effect; befide the vaft Number of Sectaries and Fanatics, which the zealous Reformers engendered by equivocal Generation, to devour and prey upon themfelves; and in the End were but reduced to their Conventicles, and in a worfe Condition than they were before-And if there had been Priefts and Jefuits among them, as fome believed, they could not poffibly have done the

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 505

Pope better Service, or Religion in general more Mifchief than they did.

Monafteries are but a Kind of civil Bedlams, where thofe that would be otherwife troublefome to the World, are perfuaded to fhut up themfelves.

When the Devil tempted Chrift, he fet him on the higheft Pinacle of the Temple-Great Church-Preferments are great Temptations.

The Church of Rome teaches the People Religion, as Men teach Singing-birds fhut them up, and keep them dark.

Princes and States do by Religion, as the King of France does by his Salt, who makes every Man, that is his Subject, take a Quantity of it, whether he ufe it or not.

The Curiofities of Ceremony in the Church of Rome are like the painted Glafs in ChurchWindows defigned to keep out Light, not to let it in.

506 THOUGHTS UPON

The Empire and the Cburch out of it have obferved the felf-fame Method and Order in their Increafe, Height, and Decay-For as the Empire was raifed upon the Virtue and Courage of many excellent Perfons produced by feveral Ages, and when it came into the Hands of a fingle Perfon did immediately degenerate into all the Lewdnefs, Vice and Tyranny imaginable: So the Cburch, that was founded upon the Piety, Devotion, and Martyrdom of the primitive Chriftians, when it came to be fettled under the fole Authority of the Popes, did prefently fall from its firt Integrity, and grew fo highly debauched from what it was in the Beginning, that, as the one Extremity had already in a Manner deftroyed the Empire ; fo the other has very near equally done Cburch, and in time is like to be the final Ruin of it.

The Popes heretofore ufed to fend Cbrifian Princes to plant Religion with the Sword among Pagans, while they with Tricks and Artifices planted the Pagan at Home.

Equivocation is worfe than plain Lying in Matters of Religion - For a Lyer intends only to cheat another Man ; but he that equivocates does at once defign to deceive God, and his own Confcience, and another Man too.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 507

Men commonly never regard their Souls, till they have fpoiled their Bodies, like our Ricbard the Third, who when he had killed the Brother, fell in Love with the Sifter.

The Yudaical and Levitical Law was delivered by God to Mofes the civil Magiftrate, and by him to Aaron the Prieft.

There are two Sorts of People that profefs Religion, the Hypocrites, and thofe that mean well-The Hypocrites are not only the greater Number, but the more fubtle and crafty, that profefs Religion as a Trade, and therefore omit no Occafion to make the fairef Shews and pretend to the greateft Zeal-The Well-meaning are commonly fo eafy and fimple, that they always fuffer themfelves to be governed by the Hypocrites, who with wrefted and mif-applied Texts of Scripture and Pulpit-Sophiftry can eafily make them believe any Wickednefs, how inhuman foever, to be a Chriftion Duty.

508 THOUGHTS UPON

Certainly Almighty God will not be fo wnmerciful (fince his Mercy is above all his Works) to Mankind, as to expofe the eternal Being of Souls to the Paffion, Intereft, and Ignorance of thofe, that make themfelves his Meffengers, and do their own Work in his Name.

When Abfalom had refolved to rebel againft the King his Father, he had no Way fo proper to put his Defign in Execution, as that of pretending to pay a Vow, which he had made to the Lord.

All Innovations in Church and State are like new-built Houfes, unwholefome to live in, until they are made healthful and agreeable by Time.

The Practice of the Church of Rome, and that of the Reformation in dealing with Sinners is like that of a Charletan and a learned Phyfician in curing of Claps; for as the one will not undertake a Cure, unlefs the Patient will enter into a Courfe and obferve Rules, which the other will difpenfe with, and give him Leave to go abroad and follow his Oc-

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 509

 cafions, that is, fuch as gave him the Difeafe: fo the reformed Churches will not promife Forgivenefs of Sins without Repentance and Amendment of Life, which the Church of Rome freely difpenfes withal, and upon mere Confeffion and Penance performed gives them pardon, and Freedom to do the fame Things over again.Rebellion is faid to be like the Sin of Witchcraft ; becaufe both are promoted and managed with nothing elfe but Lies, and Cheats, and Impoftures-For civil Arms can neither be raifed, nor maintained by honeft Means.

The more falfe any Religion is, the more induftrious the Priefts of it are to keep the People from prying into the Myfteries of it ; and by that Artifice render them the more zealous, and confident in their Ignorance.

Men ought to do in Religion as they do in War- When a Man of Honour is overpowered, and muft of Neceffity furrender himfelf up a Prifoner, fuch are always wont to endeavour to do it to fome. Perfon of Command and Quality, and not to a mean Scoundrel: So fince all Men are obliged to be of fome Church; it is more honourable, if there were nothing elfe in it, to be of that which has fome Reputation, than fuch a one as is contemptible, and juftly defpifed by all the beft of Men.

Gathering of Churches is like the gathering Grapes off Thorns, or Figs off ThiftlesFor as thofe harfh and untractable Plants feem to be no Part of the firft Creation, but to come in afterwards with the Curfe; fo are all Schifmatics to the Churches, which they fet up againft.

Ordinary wicked Perfons, that have any Impreffion of human Nature left, never commit any great Crime without fome Averfion and Diflike, although it be not ftrong enough to prevail againft the prefent Motives of Utility or Intereft ; and commonly live and die penitent for it_-But the modern Saint, that believes himfelf privileged, and above Nature, engages himfelf in the moft horrid of all Wickednefs with fo great an Alacrity and Affurance, and is fo far from Repentance, that he puts them upon the Accompt of pious Duties and good Works.

VARIOUS SUBJECTS. 5II

I have known fome Profeffors of Religion, who had perpetually nothing but the Name of God, and the Lord, and Confcience, and Religion in their Mouths; and yet would never venture the Lofs of one Penny for either, but get as much as poffibly they could by all : and at the fame Time have feen fome Perfons, whom by their Difcourfe no Man would guefs, after a Year's Converfation, to have any Concernment at all for Relgion, and yet would rather lofe all they had, than endure to do any Thing againft their Confciences, which the other would embrace with all Alacrity for a fmall Reward, under the Pretence of Piety.

By the Laws of Nature the ftrongef have an undoubted Power to command the weaker: But in Religion and the civil Life the wifert and ableft are fain to comply and fubmit to the weakeft and moft ignorant, for their own Quiet and Convenience.

Vices, like Weeds, grow by being neglected; but Virtues, like Herbs, degenerate and grow wild, if there be not care taken of them. Both render a Man equally contemptible when they are openly profeft, and gloried in: For

512 THOUGHTSUPON

Virtue lofes iffelf and turns Vice in doing that which istontrary to its own Nature-Many Virttues may become Vices by being ill managed, bitit nó one Vice by any Means a Virtue.

Pleafures have the fame Operations upon the Underftanding that Sweet-meats have upon the Palate; the one being rendered as unapt to judge of the truc State of Things, as the other is of Taftes.

No Man's Reputation is fafe where Slander is become a Trade and Railing a Commodity; where Men may get a Living by defaming others, and eat upon any Man's Credit, that has any Reputation to lofe; where a Scribler at once fatisfies his Itch of writing, his Petulance, Malice, or Envy, and his Neceflity.

Greatnefs and Bafenefs of Mind endure Injuries, Afflictions, and Affronts fo equally, that it is a hard Matter to diftinguifh which is the true Caufe; and fometimes perhaps both may at once contribute to the fame Effect.

$$
\mathrm{F} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{~N} \quad \mathrm{I} \quad \mathrm{~S}
$$

BINDING - . . . MAR 19. I368

| PR | Butler, Samuel |
| :--- | :--- |
| 3338 | The genuine remains in |
| A175 | verse and prose of Mr. Samuel |
| 1759 | Butler |
| v.2 |  |

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

[^0]:    That all Men are born in a State of War] A fneer upon Hobbs and his Followers.

    Virtue and Fraud, &c.] This is a hamourous Allufion to a Line

[^1]:    If all Nen are born.] Cur Author here has his Eye upon Harvington, who by his Scheme of Rotation, admits all by turns into the Government, and muft confequently fuppofe all fit.

[^2]:    Which the Virtuofos.] What Rutler refers to is recorded by sprat in his Hiflory of the Royal Society_—See a preceding Note upon the Elepizant in the Moon.

[^3]:    This and the following Character were vifibly intended for Harrington and his Followers; and there needs no other Key to them

[^4]:    but what has been already obferved of that Gentleman, in the Note昷㿽 the Speech made at the Rota.

[^5]:    Like Lipfsus's Dog] The Story of Lipfrus's Dog, who had been taught to carry Meat in a Bafket, is thus related by Sir Kenelme Digby - Other lefs Dogs, fnatching as he trotted along Part " of what hung out of his Bafket, which he carried in his Mouth, "6 he fet it down to worry one of them; whilft in the mean Time,

[^6]:    " the others fed at Liberty and at Eafe upon, the Meat, that lay
    "t there unguarded; till he coming back to it drove them away,
    " and himielf made an End of eating it up."

    $$
    \text { See Digby on Bodies, p. } 320 .
    $$

[^7]:    The Reader will in this Character have the Pleafure of obferving the honeft Impartiality of our Author, who is as fevere upon the Faults and Folly of the Cavaliers whofe Principles he loved, as he is upan thofe of the Fariatics, whom he hated; and 'tis the more to be admired, as he himfelf had but too much Reafon to complain of the Neglect of the Government towards him after the Reftoration.

[^8]:    This Character furnifhes us with another Inftance of Butler's Impartiality; and, if we would imitate him in the Practice of the fame Virtue, we mult own, that the Reign of Charles II. though I am far from thinking it fo blameable as it is the prefent Fafhion of Politics to defcribe it, did but abound with too many Originals of the Copy, which is here drawn.

[^9]:    And with Scaliger would fell the Empire of Germany] This alLudes to a ranting Exclamation of Scaliger's upon an Ode in Horace, which he was particularly pleafed with.

[^10]:    H 2

[^11]:    Whatjoever be bears reell Said, &c.] In this Butier allude's to Martial's Epigram to Fidentinus.

[^12]:    Quem recitas meus eft, O Fidintine, libellus:
    Sed maie dum recitas, incipit effe tuas.
    Nart. L. 1. EP. 39.

[^13]:    We read tbat Virgil ufed to make, &cc.] This alludes to a Paffage in the Life of Virgil afcribed to Donatus. " Cum Georgica fcribe46 ret traditur quotidie meditatos mane plurimos verfus dictare fo"c litus, ac per totum diem retractando ad pauciffimos redigere : " non abfurde carmen fe urfomore parere dicens, et lambendo " demum effingere.

[^14]:    So they did bin to feed with Hor'es] This muft be explained by the fame Writer of Virgil's Life, who informs us, that Virgil in his Youth fludied Phyfic, in which having made great' Proficiency, he repaired to Rome, and applying himfelf to that Branch of it

[^15]:    Some of the old Latin Poets, &cc.] Thus Horace Exegi monumentum are perennius
    Regalique fitu Pyramidum altius
    Hor. L. 3. O. 30,

[^16]:    Sartago loquendi \}
    Fiqs Pueris Monitus Patres infundere liptos

[^17]:    More the mof ] There is an apparent Defect or Error in thefe Words; but I leave it to the Reader to fupply or correct.

[^18]:    Arts ratting Forefkins, &ce.] This, if I miftake not, is a Line of Hloward's in his Britijh Prinees.

[^19]:    Some bave latcly.] This alludes to Davenant-See Grey's Hudibras.

[^20]:    Like Epicuro-Gaffendo-Cbarltoniana ] Butler in this fneeringly alludes to Dr. Charllon, who publithed a Book under the following Title,

[^21]:    The Severity and Bitternefs of this Character, and the Verfes that follow, may be accounted for, and in fome Sort excufed by a Circumftance related in the Author's Life, viz. that he loft moft of his [^22]:    Wife's Fortune, which was confiderable, by its being put out on ill Securities, owing probably to the Unkilfulnefs or Roguery of fome Lawyer.

[^23]:    May Varlets be your Barbers] The Word Varlet, Putler ufes in another Place for a Bum-bailif, in which fenfe it muft be here taken;

[^24]:    Witbout a Lere-Senfe] A Lere-Senfe is a fecond or fupernumepary Senfe, as a Led-Horfe was formerly called a Lere-Horfe.

[^25]:    And derives the Pedigree of Magic from Adam's firf green Britches.] To the fame he alludes in the following Lines in Hudibras, in his Character of Ralpho.

    > For Myptic Learning wondrous able In Mayic Talifman, and Cabal, Whofe primitive Tradition reaches As far as Adam's firf green Breeches. Hud. P. I.C.I.

[^26]:    This fhew of the Choos was, I fancy, of the fame Sort with thofe which we have now a-days of the seation and Paradife.

[^27]:    For be will not take bis aun Teftimony concerning bis three Books of occult Pbilofopby, &c.] The 'affage alluded to is the following one in Agrippa's Preface - "Si alicubi erratum fit, five quid liberius " dictum, ignofcite Adolefcentiæ noftræ, qui minor quam Adolef. 46 cens hoc Opus compofui; ut poffim me excufare ac dicere, dum " eram parvulus loquebar ut parvulus, factus autem Vir evacuavi "quer erant parvuli; ac in Libro de Vanitate Scientiarum hunc

[^28]:    "Cornelius Agripfa (fays he) had a Dog, that was fufpected to "f be a Spirit, for fome 'Tricks he was wont to do, beyond the " Capacity of a Dog, as it was thought ; but the Author of Ma" gia Adamica has taken a great deal of Pains to vindicate both the "Doctor and the Dog from that Afperfion, in which he has fhewn " a very great Refpect and Kindnefs for them both."

[^29]:    Wbo in his Preface to Lully's Ars trevis profefles, &c.] The Paragraphs referred to are thefe - "Ea autem eft Ars inventiva "' H aymundi Lullii, cujus ea Dignitas eft ac Præcellentia, ea Gene"ralitas ac Certitudo, ut fe fola fufficiente, nulla alia Scientia

[^30]:    Or one of Tanes Horwel's Trces.] This alludes to Horwel's Dodona's Grove, where the Trees are introduced as freaking.

[^31]:    Th's kad lecn an excellent Courfe for the old roundbeaded Stcics.] This Banter upon the Stoics we have alfo in Hudibras.

    > So th' antient Stoics in their Porch Wit's ferce diffute imainiain'd tiovir Church, [^32]:    "Porticu (Stoicorum Scbola Atbenis) Difcipulorum Seditionibus, mille " quadringenti triginta cives interfecti funt. Diog. Laert. in Vita

    "Zenonis, p. 383. Thofe old Virtuofos were better Proficients
    "* in thofe Exercifes, than the modern, who feldom improve higher * than cuffing, and kicking.

[^33]:    If we may believe the Hiffory of the Spaniard.] This alludes to a Story told by Sir Kenelme Digby of a Spani/b Nobleman younger Brather to the Conftable of Caftile, who being born deaf, and confequently dumb, was taught to undertand what was faid to him by [^34]:    Like Boccalini's Drum, &c.] See this explained by Butler himfelf in Hudibras, P. 1. C. 2. V. 173, &c. and by a Quotation from Boccalini by Dr. Grey by Way of Note.

[^35]:    Eike Janello's leaden Soldiers.] This alludes to fome Kind of a Puppet-Performance in thofe Times, as I find the Name Fanella, in another imperfect Piece of Butler's, introduced as belonging to a famous Operator in that Art.

[^36]:    As French Lords, &c.] The diftinguifhing their Qualities by the Pillars of their Gallowfes may probably allude to a Crofs in Coats of Arms, which, from its Refemblance to the Letter T or a double Gibbet, is called Crux patibulata, or la Croix Potencée.

[^37]:    Which among the Ancients, Gellius fays, fgnified Injury.] Gellius places the word Honos among his vocabula ancipitia; and the Paffage referred to is this... Sed Hororem quoque mediam Vocem [^38]:    "fuiffe, et ita appellatum, ut etiam malus Honos diceretur, et fig" nificaret Injuriam."

    Noct. Alt. Lib. 12. C. 9.

[^39]:    provided with a Cup, to turn the Cock, and continue fucceffively drinking till all is run out. This is a Cufom in fome Parts of Lancafbire.

